Where should the scholar live?
In solitude, or in society?
in the green stillness of the country, where he can hear the heart of Nature beat, or in the dark, gray town, where he can hear and feel the throbbing heart of man?
I will make answer for him, and say, in the dark, gray town.  LONGFELLOW

The administrative offices of Boston University are at 688 Boylston Street (corner of Boylston and Exeter Streets and adjoining the Boston Public Library). Telephone number is Back Bay 5864. Cable address is "University, Boston."
EDITORIAL NOTES

THE new year has opened under highly favorable conditions. Although the present facilities of the University are severely taxed, important additions to the teaching staff and to the buildings and equipment have been made to provide for the increased attendance. The College of Secretarial Science has opened a fine new dormitory adjoining its clubhouse on St. Botolph Street. This College now occupies an entire city block, including two buildings for offices and recitation rooms, a clubhouse, and a dormitory.

The School of Education is now located in a large building on Newbury Street near Clarendon Street. The College of Business Administration will also occupy a portion of this building, in addition to its great main plant at 525 Boylston Street.
THE death of Dr. Alexander Graham Bell on Wednesday, August 2, 1922, makes it advisable for BOSTONIA to give for future reference a résumé of the long connection of Dr. Bell with Boston University, which lasted officially from 1874 until 1879, and cordially and appreciatively from those distant days until his death.

Our readers will find in this résumé, on another page of this issue, gratifying evidence of the esteem in which Dr. Bell held Boston University, of his cordial expressions of appreciation of the encouragement which this University rendered him in his early work, and of the prestige which his connection with the faculty gave the University both at home and abroad.

HEREAFTER the death notices of graduates of the University will be grouped under the heading “In Memoriam.” Day by day these notices reach the editorial office, recording the passing of our graduates, some ripe in years and rich in honors, some at the threshold of the world’s work upon which they had entered so hopefully, diploma in hand. Young or old, each passing brings sorrow to Alma Mater, to classmates, and to former teachers. Their names and memories shall be perpetuated in the records of the University.

THE marked increase in attendance at the School of Medicine is one of the most gratifying features of the new year. This school has long been rated by medical authorities as scientifically thorough and highly efficient. The closer co-operation of the College of Liberal Arts with the School of Medicine, providing a combination course of liberal and professional studies, has proved of inestimable advantage to both the College of Liberal Arts and the School of Medicine.

THE Graduate School, under Dean Weyssè's administration, is rapidly advancing in attendance as well as in scholastic requirements. An enrolment of 305, as compared with 219 at the corresponding date last year, is very significant when it is considered that the requirements for advanced degrees have been made more exacting, and that for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy an oral examination before the faculty of the school has been added to the previous class-room and written tests.
OUR graduates should remember that Boston University is a member of the American University Union in Europe. They will find it helpful on their arrival in London or Paris to register at the following offices: British Division, 50 Russell Square, London, W.C. 1; Continental Division, 1, Rue de Fleurus, Paris, VI. Mail may be forwarded to these offices. Among the privileges enjoyed by members of the Union is the securing of introductions to universities, learned societies, and scholars.

OUR readers will linger over the fine tribute which Professor Lyman C. Newell pays to the memory of Robert Louis Stevenson on another page of this issue. One of the pleasures which lighten the work of editing BOSTONIA is the occasional acquisition of a manuscript which in literary charm and finish would grace the pages of a stately Scotch or English review.

WITH this issue BOSTONIA returns to its original form as a quarterly. The monthly issues of last year were a temporary plan designed to further the interests of the endowment fund among the alumni. BOSTONIA will hereafter average forty pages, and will thus be enabled to devote more space to departmental news.

THE enrolment at the time of sending this issue to press is over 9,000, an increase of a thousand over the registration on the corresponding date last year. Subsequent accessions will probably bring the attendance for the year to a total of more than 10,000.

THE list of important positions held by graduates of the College of Secretarial Science, noted elsewhere in this issue, shows that this young department of the University is maintaining a high standard of efficiency.

THE editors of BOSTONIA welcome and invite personal items regarding the graduates of any department of the University. Such items form one of the most interesting features of the magazine.

BOSTONIA is sent free of charge to the graduates of all departments of the University.
SOME WESTERN SHRINES OF STEVENSON

By Lyman C. Newell, Ph.D.

STEVENSON was a wanderer. Many regions claim him — the British Isles, Switzerland, Germany, France, our Western shores, the Hawaiian Islands, and the South Seas. In all these places he tarried long enough to leave an impression of his greatness. Not all his dwelling places, however, are shrines.

In early August, 1879, Stevenson quietly slipped away from his home in Edinburgh. After a dismal voyage across the Atlantic and a still more dismal journey across the plains he arrived in Monterey, California, ill, penniless, dejected. He found a humble lodging place in an old adobe house; upstairs in an ell. Here he worked on some of his early books and essays — Prince Otto, The Amateur Emigrant, The Old Pacific Capital. He made friends with the few people in Monterey, in particular Simoneau, who kept the only restaurant. But Stevenson was a mystery to them. They wondered why he stayed so long in the upper room and why he wandered alone over the dunes dotted with thickets of live oak, along the sands studded with clumps of cypress, and among the rocks wet with the roaring surf.

A favorite spot of Stevenson's was that part of the shore of the bay near the present location of the Hotel del Monte. Then it was a waste of sand and live-oaks; now it is a luxuriant garden. We arrived in Monterey one rainy afternoon. Early the next morning — a sunny Sunday morning — we walked down the long street which in Stevenson's day was "economically paved with sea sand." The rain had cleansed the foliage and freshened the air, and the blue water of the bay was dancing in the sunlight. We were soon beside the house where Stevenson had lived. It is ponderous, unlovely, forbidding. Our thoughts, however, were of the man who came here as a knight-errant, who toiled unceasingly at tasks which promised scant remuneration, who sickened and would have died had he not been nursed by friends newly made, and who, though a voluntary exile from his island home, had become an ardent lover of the new-found shore and sea. We thought, too, of his victory over self. Almost at the nadir of his life, he skillfully appraised the literary values of his environment, made copious notes, and later wove them into his permanent writings. Runaway, outcast, dependent he may have been, but here in this very house the mysterious man who puzzled the people of Monterey was transformed. He cast aside the weights of youthful indiscretion and became the man who would seek the beauty, the vitality, and the truth of abundant living. And so this house is the first of the Western shrines of Stevenson.

A few days before Christmas, 1879, Stevenson moved to San Francisco. Here he lived in poverty and despondency. Here also he wrote incessantly. Work begun in Monterey was finished and new work undertaken — The Amateur Emigrant, Across the Plains, The Vendetta, and several essays. His restless nature led him into curious parts of the city. His wonderful gift for friendship evoked response from more curious persons still. A favorite spot was Portsmouth Square. Here he came day after day, read Penn’s “Fruits of Solitude,” rested, dreamed, hoped, and watched the strange specimens of humanity drift by. Stevenson was always interested in active men, especially the kind that can be portrayed in novels. He saw such types in Portsmouth Square, and they made an indelible impression on his mind. Some actually begot episodes, and have become immortal in The Wrecker and other stories. So vitally is Portsmouth Square connected with Stevenson that a monument was erected here in his honor, the first anywhere in the world.

We walked to Portsmouth Square one sunny afternoon and sat down beside Stevenson’s monument. An inscrutable oriental sidled up, took a drink of water, and slipped away. A sailor — a foreign sailor with a swarthy skin and rings in his ears — paused to look at “the little bronze ship” anchored atop the shaft, and then rolled along. A squad of policemen marched quietly by on their way to preserve peace among men of numerous nations. And many others passed by — orientals in abundance, workmen of varied description, seafaring men of all grades, outcasts who looked about like hawks, “many-nationed loungers” with aimless gait.

One man, a visitor doubtless, came up to the monument, removed his hat, and began to read the inscription aloud:

TO REMEMBER
ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON
TO BE HONEST. TO BE KIND.
TO EARN A LITTLE. TO SPEND

and so on. The pathos was hardly endurable, so we stepped behind the monument. But there was no relief. In the dry and sterile soil a single narcissus was growing — tall, slender, drooping. Both monument and flower were touching symbols of Stevenson, one an enduring shaft surmounted by a shining ship ready “for a cruise on the sea of dreams,” the other a pallid flower with a golden heart. And so this monument is the second of the Western shrines of Stevenson.

On May 19, 1880, Robert Louis Stevenson and Fanny van de Grift Osbourne were married in San Francisco. A few days later they went to Calistoga at the foot of Mount Saint Helena, where they planned to spend their honeymoon. They selected a spot away from sea fogs so that Stevenson could enjoy “the blessed sun and a gentle air.” Their journey took them, as it did us, through the Napa Valley, an entrancing succession of green pastures, fertile vineyards, and low, distant hills which began to draw nearer as the head of the valley was approached. All along the way Mount Saint Helena was ever in sight, its bold profile and bald summit growing larger until at Calistoga it overpowered everything else. On the single street the Stevensons found the Springs Hotel, and near by were the cottages in the midst of hot sulphur springs. Here they rested while Stevenson regained his strength. It was balmy, quiet, peaceful, but not romantic. So they went eight miles up the mountain side to a deserted silver mine, pre-empted “three rooms plastered against the hill,” and became the “Silverado squatters.” For nearly six months they lived in this unique spot on the slope of a mountain which “looked forth into a great realm of air and down upon tree tops and hilltops, and far and near on wild and varied country.” Inconvenient it surely was, but its choice as a sanitarium for Stevenson was wise. The sun was warm, the stars were bright, and the air was dry. Had they stayed in Calistoga, down in the valley, they would have been enveloped in the fog Stevenson planned to escape. The fog came but it did not rise as high as the honeymoon hut. The life at Silverado is vividly described by Stevenson in a short book entitled, “Silverado Squatters,” one of his finest pieces of writing.

We found a Spring's Hotel at Calistoga, though not the same structure as in Stevenson's day. The cottages, too, are there on the steaming valley floor. The road up the mountain to the toll-house is still used. The site of Silverado itself is overgrown with vines, but the valley, the road, and the mine are even now under the spell of Stevenson who, though resting on a mountain top in Samoa, speaks from the mountain in California and tells in immortal words the story of the man who found here sweetness, and freedom, and enduring love. And so Silverado is the third of the Western shrines of Stevenson.
Near the close of January, 1889, Stevenson arrived in Honolulu after a tedious, adventurous voyage from Tahiti. He immediately rented a pretty cottage with a spacious porch at Waikiki. Waikiki was somewhat secluded, and Stevenson determined to remain long enough to catch up with his work. And here, in a "drowsy solitude unbroken save by the chatter of the audacious mynah bird or the plangeant voice of the distant surf," Stevenson wrote the concluding chapters of The Master of Ballantrae.

Stevenson, now a famous writer, was soon routed from his quiet abode. King Kalakaua gave an elaborate luau (a native feast) in his honor. This event was the beginning of a lasting friendship for the ambitious King and his people. Visitors innumerable called at Waikiki and were courteously received by the busy writer, though Mrs. Stevenson sometimes found it necessary to protect her weary husband from those who stayed too long. Government officials, officers of passing ships, native and foreign residents, extended hospitality almost beyond endurance. Two groups appealed fundamentally to Stevenson — Scotchmen and children. Scotchmen in Hawaii, as in other countries, are a bit clannish. They mean much to one another. Members of the Scottish Thistle Club, individuals as well as groups, speedily took Stevenson back in memory to his island home — a thrilling experience for them, a saddening ordeal for him. There was one Scotchman whose personal interests and love for Hawaii made a deep impression. This man was the Hon. A. S. Cleghorn, an Edinburgh Scot and husband of Princess Like-like (sister of King Kalakaua). Ainahau, the estate of Mr. Cleghorn, was nearly opposite the cottage which Stevenson occupied. Stevenson needed a retreat. And so the two exiled Scots spent many hours together, discussing frequently the impending fate of the native monarchy, but yielding more often, doubtless, to the unbroken peace and rare beauty of this Hawaiian garden.

Toward the children Stevenson expressed his innate love in many ways. He gave parties, told fairy stories, and bestowed gifts. For one child Stevenson developed deep affection, and they became bound by ties of enduring friendship. The child was the little Princess Kaiulani, daughter of the Cleghorns. She was preparing for study in an English school, in fact was nearly ready to go, when Stevenson arrived in Honolulu. Princess Kaiulani was a promising child. She was the hope of the Hawaiians. They believed an educated princess could rescue them from their degradation and restore the native monarchy to power. Plans were already made to place her on the throne when she returned. And Stevenson, a royalist at heart, shared their hopes. Consider the appeal to Stevenson — a beautiful child, the daughter of a Scotchman, an heir to a throne, and above all, she was about to depart for his island home! Day after day during four months Stevenson stepped over to Ainahau in the late afternoon where the quiet of the garden was broken only by the strident note of the peacock. The little maid ran down the path between the royal palms to meet him. Hand in hand they walked back and sat down under a banyan tree — Kaiulani's banyan. Here he told her wonderful tales of travel and adventure, seeking to inspire her with courage and to lessen the unhappiness of the approaching separation. When the time came for her to leave Hawaii, Stevenson wrote these lines “in the April of her age, and at Waikiki, within easy walk of Kaiulani's banyan”:

“Forth from her land to mine she goes,
The island maid, the island rose,
Light of heart and bright of face,
The daughter of a double race.
Her islands here, in southern sun,
Shall mourn their Kaiulani gone,
And I, in her dear banyan’s shade,
Look vainly for my little maid.
But our Scots islands far away
Shall glitter with unwonted day
And cast for once their tempests by,
To smile in Kaiulani’s eye.”

We went out to Waikiki many times during our sojourn in Honolulu. On one visit we sat down under Kaiulani's banyan tree and thought of Stevenson's career — the restlessness of youth, the emergence into manhood, the coming of love, the meteoric success of his writings, the adventures on the sea, the ceaseless warfare for health, and the merited reward of labor. Yet all these seemed of less significance than the pure affection that found expression in this very spot. And so Kaiulani's banyan is the fourth of the Western shrines of Stevenson.

Some day we may sail south, visit Samoa, and climb the mountain where Stevenson is buried. And then we may tell of the shrines of Stevenson in the South Seas.
DR. ALEXANDER GRAHAM BELL AND BOSTON UNIVERSITY

DR. ALEXANDER GRAHAM BELL was Professor of the Mechanism of Speech in the School of Oratory of Boston University from 1874 to 1879. It was while he was connected with Boston University that all his work on the invention of the telephone was done, and the salary he received was largely used to pay some of the expenses of his experimenting.

During the term of Dr. Bell’s service as professor President William F. Warren made frequent reference in his annual reports to the origin and progress of Professor Bell’s discovery. By the year 1878 Professor Bell’s work had become so widely known in the scientific world that Oxford University invited him to deliver a course of lectures at that institution. In the fall of that year he complied with the invitation, and attracted a great deal of attention through his lectures there. In his next annual report, issued some weeks later, President Warren said: “The application of the authorities of Oxford University for a course of lectures from Professor Bell was not only a high compliment to our University but, what is better, the actual initiation of a practice of international academic exchange which is destined to grow into proportions of the highest importance to civilization.” This marked the beginning of the system of international exchange professorships.

During Dr. Bell’s connection with Boston University other honors came to the University through his brilliant work. At the Exposition Universelle in Paris in 1877 he not only received a silver medal for his system of visible speech but was also awarded the Grand Prize of Honor for the telephone. The same international judges gave to Boston University representatives five educational awards, one of them in recognition of the organization and working of the institution itself.

When Dr. Bell visited Boston in 1916, to attend the unveiling of two tablets commemorating the beginnings of the telephone, he was present at a reception in his honor given by President L. H. Murlin and the Trustees and Faculties of Boston University, held at the Boston City Club on March 14, 1916. In responding to the greeting which President Murlin extended in the name of the University, Dr. Bell spoke in high terms of appreciation of Boston University which made it possible for him to devote time to scientific inquiry, out of which came the telephone. It was Boston University that gave him a standing in scholarly circles and led to his recognition by the scientific world. “I count it a great honor," he said, "to have belonged to Boston University. It was while I was connected with the school that all the work on the telephone was done." Dr. Bell then related several incidents in connection with his early experiments and demonstrations.

"My best recollections of the Boston of the old days," Dr. Bell said in closing, "are of Boston University and President William F. Warren, under whose presidency and with whose enthusiastic co-operation my work on the telephone was begun. My dearest friend was Lewis B. Monroe, Dean of the School of Oratory." Then he related how Dean Monroe helped him more than once financially in carrying out his experiments. "Gentlemen," he said, "these things which I have described are the by-products of my work in your institution, and were made possible because of the encouragement of your university."

UNIVERSITY NOTES

President Emeritus and Mrs. William E. Huntington have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miriam, to Davis Nichols Ripley, son of Professor and Mrs. William Z. Ripley of Newton Center.

This year 964 students were enrolled in the Summer Session, an increase of 292 over the previous year. The attendance for the last three years was as follows: 1920, 558; 1921, 672; 1922, 964.

Courses were offered last summer by five departments: the College of Liberal Arts, the College of Business Administration, the College of Secretarial Science, the School of Education, and the School of Religious Education. The number of courses, 123, was greatly in excess of that in any previous year, as will be seen by the following figures:

- 1920, 44 instructors, 70 courses.
- 1921, 53 instructors, 88 courses.
- 1922, 73 instructors, 123 courses.

There were enrolled representatives of 38 universities and colleges. Tufts and Dartmouth were most numerously represented, Tufts sending 36 and Dartmouth 32.

Northeastern University at its recent commencement conferred upon George Sumner Smith, a trustee of Boston University, the first honorary degree given since Northeastern was chartered. In conferring the degree (Master of Commercial Science) President Frank Palmer Speare paid the following tribute to Mr. Smith: "George Sumner Smith. Born in Boston, in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. Educated in the Boston public schools and the university of experience. A skilled business executive; a former president of the Boston Chamber of Commerce and of the Boston City Club; a director of many large corporations; a trustee of Boston University and of Northeastern University; an honored, respected, and beloved citizen of the Commonwealth; a gracious American gentleman of sterling Christian character who, though bearing heavy burdens, can always find time for public service and helpfulness in every worthy cause; a man whom Northeastern, the people's university, especially delights to honor by conferring upon you the honorary degree of Master of Commercial Science."

Alumni of Boston University have always been numerous in the Southwest, but not until the 4th of October had a permanent organization been established. On that date a dinner meeting was held in the Los Angeles City Club and a permanent Boston University Alumni Association established, with provision for three regular meetings each year.

Ralph L. Power, C.B.A. '17 and Librarian, 1914-1921, now Professor of Commerce at the University of Southern California, was elected President. Dr. Ralph T. Flewelling, Theology '02, Editor of The Personalist and Professor of Philosophy at the University of Southern California, was elected Vice-President. Mrs. Blanche Charleton Curtis, C.L.A. '08, Vice-President of the Southern California District of Pi Beta Phi, was elected Secretary-Treasurer. The Executive Board is composed of the officers, together with Frank I. Wheat, C.L.A. '87, and Dr. Florella Estes, Medical '90. The oldest member of the new Association is Dr. George H. Martin, Medical '81, while the youngest is Louis Lombardi, C.L.A. '20.

The following officers for the Women Graduates' Club of Boston University have been elected for the coming year: President, Mrs. Louisa Richardson Fisk, '83; First Vice-President, Mrs. Emma Fall Schofield, '06; Second Vice-President, Mrs. Harriette Stone Townsend, '95; Recording Secretary, Dr. E. Adrienne Polsey, '04; Corresponding Secretary, Miss Luella E. Bragg, '20; Treasurer, Miss Blanche E. Mcintire, '03; Director, 5 years, Mrs. Sara Bryant Borst, '95; Trustee for Permanent Fund, 3 years, Miss Edith M. Haynes, '02; Auditor, Mrs. A. Florence Joyce, '03.

The nominating committee for 1923 will include: Mrs. Helen Travis Taylor, '08; Mrs. Christine Jansson Howard, '93; Miss Alice M. Quirin, '02; Dr. Mary E. Mosher, '87; Mrs. Sadie Lipner Shulman, '11.

The annual reunion of the Boston University alumnae and undergraduate students attending the Conferences at East Northfield was held on Monday evening, July 17. Eighteen representatives of Boston University were present. The graduates included Mary F. Cushman, M.D., '92, and the following graduates of the College of Liberal Arts: Ida B. Johnson, '92; Mrs. Bessie Moore Pickersgill, '99; Maud D. Hodges, '11; Helen Deering, '11; Sara M. Chase, '14; Marion R. Cummings, '19; Mary W. Vassar, '01; Hazel P. Murray, '21.
Dr. Heber R. Harper, assistant to the President of the University, was elected last spring Chancellor of the University of Denver. Dr. Harper has been connected with Boston University since 1913, when he received the degree of S.T.B. He was subsequently appointed Jacob Sleeper Fellow and studied abroad in German universities. In 1914 he returned to the School of Theology to teach Hebrew. At the outbreak of the war he enrolled in the Y.M.C.A. and went overseas to France, where he became superintendent of the entire Besançon district. Returning in 1918, he was sent to Honolulu as the director of a Y.M.C.A. financial drive. Successfully completing this work, he returned in 1919 to the School of Theology as Assistant Professor of Hebrew and Old Testament Literature. From that position he was called to Washington by the U. S. Government as one of the two organizers of vocational training in the U. S. Navy. Since his return to Boston University in June, 1921, he has been active in the campaign for the Fiftieth Anniversary Endowment Fund.

Governor Channing H. Cox has appointed President L. H. Murlin chairman of the special committee under the terms of a resolve passed at the last session of the Legislature to investigate the advisability of establishing a State university in Massachusetts and to ascertain the opportunities and methods of higher education in the Commonwealth.

Dr. and Mrs. William E. Chenery returned in September from a cruise of the Mediterranean and the Far East. While on the Continent they attended the Passion Play at Oberammergau and made an extensive auto trip through the Bavarian Tyrol, the Dolomites, and the Piave battlefields.

Mr. Ion E. Dwyer, bursar of Boston University, resigned his position last summer. Mr. Dwyer had been connected with the University since 1918. Prior to that time he was for six years Professor of Commerce in Robert College, Constantinople. He is the author of several commercial text books, including "The Business Letter."

Of the 658 students who received degrees last June, 440 came from Massachusetts and 52 from Boston. The following foreign countries were represented: China, Japan, Porto Rico, Portugal, Korea, Armenia, Canada, Bermuda, British West Indies, and South America.

The place of Elizabeth Forrest, '21, secretary in the office of the Teachers’ Courses and the Summer Session, has been taken by Elizabeth B. Hall, a graduate of Wheaton, '21, and of the secretarial course of Simmons College, '22.
Up to the first week in October there were enrolled in the Graduate School 305 students, as compared with 219 at this time last year. This year there were enrolled 104 new students, as compared with 74 a year ago. These 104 students already hold degrees from fifty-two different colleges or universities, representing twenty-nine States and three foreign countries.

On July 14, the national festival day in France, Dean Weysse was in Paris and made a brief address at the tomb of the unknown soldier beneath the Arc de Triomphe. There were one hundred or more American students in Paris as members of the International Students' Tours, some touring France, some on their way to Italy, and others bound for the Summer School at Geneva. These students thought it would be a gracious act to place a bronze wreath on the tomb in behalf of the students of the colleges and universities of the United States. It was necessary to secure permission for the ceremony from the French government, and this was readily granted. Dean Weysse was asked to make the address, and early in the afternoon went by automobile to the Arc de Triomphe, accompanied by the French Under-Secretary of State, a lady from the Faculty of Vassar College, and a French lady connected with one of the colleges of greater New York. At the arch they were met by four students — two men and two women — representing four American universities. A student from Yale carried the wreath from the automobile to the tomb, where were assembled the American students as well as a large number of French people. The party took up their position at the head of the tomb. Dean Weysse received the wreath from the bearer at his right, made a brief address in English and then repeated it in French, and handed the wreath to a student from Cornell University at his left, who deposited it on the tomb beside similar tokens. Many people commented favorably on the dignity and simplicity of the ceremony. The wreath was a large, graceful palm leaf in bronze, with a shield attached bearing the names of the colleges and universities represented by the donors.

11. Frances Huntington Martin has brought out, through the Boston publication office of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church, a pageant entitled, "Send Out the Light." This pageant was presented last July under the direction of the Detroit district of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society in the Central Methodist Episcopal Church, Detroit, Mich. It has also been brought out in various places under the direction of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society.

16. Samuel Dupertuis, A.M. '16, has returned from France. His home address is Hopedale, Mass.

16. Everett William Robinson, '16, was married Saturday, June 24, to Miss Helen Morton Packard in Halifax. Mrs. Robinson is a graduate of Wellesley '19, and during the past two years was a member of the faculty of Mansfield High School. Mr. Robinson graduated from the Mansfield High School '06, Dartmouth College '10, and took his A.M. at Boston University in 1916. He is submaster of the Mansfield High School. Mr. and Mrs. Robinson are residing at 11 West Street, Mansfield.

'21. The Macmillan Company, New York, has brought out the dissertation entitled, "The Psychic Health of Jesus," which Dr. Walter E. Bundy prepared as one of the requirements for the degree of Ph. D. in 1921. Zion's Herald of May 17 contains a very favorable criticism of the work.

'22. Miss Anna Lulu Golisch, A.M. '22, sailed from Seattle, Wash., on Saturday, September 30. She returns to her work as a missionary in West China. She is principal of a girls' high school in Shengtu. All the work of the school is conducted in Chinese.

'22. Julian E. Lakey, S.B. '21, A.M. '22, is teaching general science, economic geography, chemistry, and Roman history in the high school in Norton, Va. His address is Box 423, Norton, Va.

COLLEGE OF LIBERAL ARTS

Dean and Mrs. William M. Warren have announced the engagement of their daughter, Virginia Fairfield, to Mr. Edward Ellis Allen, Jr., Harvard '21. Mr. Allen is the son of Director and Mrs. Edward Ellis Allen of the Perkins Institution for the Blind of Watertown.

The Executive Committee of Epsilon Chapter has appointed Frank Kingdon, '20, Secretary of the chapter, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation last month of Ralph W. Taylor, '11.

FACULTY NOTES

Dean Baldwin Woods of the University of California announces that Dr. E. Charlton Black, Senior Professor of English at Boston University, has been appointed to the Faculty of the Californian university as lecturer on modern English Poetry and the Shakespearian Drama at the Summer Session to be held at Los Angeles, Hollywood, and Berkeley. Professor Black's first course of lectures on English Poetry, from Wordsworth to Masefield, will be given at Los Angeles in July, 1923. It is clearly understood that this appointment will not in any way interfere with Professor Black's position as Professor and Chairman of the Department of English at Boston University.

Professor Lyman C. Newell represented Boston University at the sixty-fourth meeting of the American Chemical Society at Pittsburg, September 4 to September 8. At the Wednesday meeting of the Section of Chemical Education Professor Newell was leader of the discussion, following the presentation of several papers. At the Section of the History of Chemistry on the following day Professor Newell spoke on "Some Characteristic Letters of Davy" (showing the original letters) and "Two Diplomas signed by Dalton" (with the original documents). Professor Newell was re-appointed Secretary of the Section by President Edgar F. Smith of the Society.
Two members of the faculty of the College of Liberal Arts have been granted leave of absence for the current academic year: Professor Dallas Lore Sharp will devote the time largely to literary work; Professor Samuel M. Waxman will spend the year in Spain and France.

Owing to the leave of absence of Professor Dallas Lore Sharp, Mr. William M. Tanner will be in charge of the English Composition work. An addition to the English department is Thomas R. Mather, a Williams College and Harvard graduate, formerly teaching fellow at Princeton, and more recently Instructor in the University of Minnesota and the United States Naval Academy. Vincent G. Parisi of the University of Virginia will assist in the department of Romance languages. Frank Nowak, formerly connected with the University of Rochester, has been added to the Department of History.

Professor Sharp has brought out through Houghton Mifflin Company a new book under the title "Education in a Democracy." The book is a vigorous expression of Professor Sharp's conviction that the American public school is as truly a national institution as the American flag. The Boston Herald of Saturday, October 14, contained an appreciative review ending as follows: "He writes with humor as well as with vigor, and whether the theme is nature or this great educational issue, his pages always have a literary flavor of their own."

Among the new courses announced for this year is one on Appreciation of the English Bible, given by Professor W. G. Aurelio; courses in Advanced English Composition and the Theory of Literary Criticism; a new course in Old French; and an introductory course in Philosophy. The course in the Works and Backgrounds of New England Writers, by Mr. Ralph W. Taylor, which was given in the last Summer Session, has been added to the regular curriculum.

Dr. Emil C. Wilm, Professor of Philosophy in the College of Liberal Arts, has brought out a memorial volume on the late Professor Borden Parker Bowne. The book contains a number of studies in philosophy and theology by eight former students of Dr. Bowne who are now holding positions of influence in this country. The list of contributors includes: Professor George A. Coe of Union Theological Seminary; Professor Edgar S. Brightman of Boston University; Professor D. A. Hayes of Garrett Biblical Institute; Professor Albert C. Knudson of Boston University; Bishop Francis J. Mc-Connell of Pittsburg; Professor Herbert C. Sanborn of Vanderbilt University; Professor Benjamin W. Van Riper of Randolph-Macon Women's College; Professor Herbert Alden Youtz of Oberlin Theological Seminary. The purpose of the memorial, as stated by the editor, Dr. Wilm, is "not to add to the reputation of Bowne or to expound or defend the type of philosophy for which he stood. Bowne's place in the history of philosophy is pretty definitely known and cannot be enhanced by any eulogies which might be pronounced." The book is published by the Abingdon Press, New York and Cincinnati. Price, $2.00 net.
Professor Edgar S. Brightman attended at Evanston, Ill., last June a meeting of the Joint Committee on Religious Education and on Personal and Vocational Guidance, appointed by the Educational Association and the Board of Education of the Methodist Episcopal Church. The conference was held at Northwestern University.

Professor Frederick A. Cleveland is a member of the committee of judges to award the prizes offered by the Knights of Columbus for original studies in American History.

Professor Ernest R. Groves has brought out, through the University of Chicago Press, a work entitled, "The Rural Mind and Social Welfare." The book has a foreword by President Kenyon L. Butterfield of Massachusetts Agricultural College.

THE ALUMNI

REUNION OF '87

The class of 1887 celebrated the thirty-fifth anniversary of their graduation, as they did the twenty-fifth and thirtieth, at Badger Farm, Holden, Mass., as the guests of Miss Louise Murdock, '87, and her friend Miss Baxter. After ten days of rain the weather was all that could be desired and the old house and delightful grounds were looking their best. On entering the house we were greeted with beautiful flowers in every room. However, we soon neglected the house for the old-fashioned barn, now a garage but still keeping its old-time atmosphere. There we found a long table decorated with bowls of roses and sweet William and covered with a bountiful luncheon. After our real country appetites were satisfied, Miss Murdock called on each member of the class to tell what he had accomplished during the past year. Miss Murdock did not use our names but described each one in a few words, and it was for us to fit the description and give our answer. Much interesting information was the result, which the secretary seized upon for the class list. When the secretary’s turn came she read a report in statistical form of the accomplishments of the class in the thirty-five years. She also read an interesting account of the work at Columbia of a son of the class, Edward Rochie Hardy, taken from one of the New York papers. A much admired decoration of the barn was a large placard headed with the words, "Floreat '87," and ending with a picture of the class taken in the orchard under the apple trees at the thirtieth anniversary.

After the luncheon we adjourned to the same orchard, and while letters from the absent members were being read Mr. Mason took another picture of the group. Letters were read from Mrs. Thomas Bond Lindsay, an honorary member, from Mrs. Frances Meserve an "in-law," Sarah Hobson, Emma Lowd, Abby Bates, Mabel Clarke Smith, Dr. Chenery, Margaret Bradford Hildreth, Frank Wheat, Will Sullivan, Lillian Rogers, Elizabeth Hanscom, and Dency Root Herrick.

After a few more informal chats and bright sayings we went our different ways thanking our hostesses for a delightful day and deciding this the best reunion yet and promising to be on hand for the fortieth.

There were present Dr. and Mrs. Huntington, Arthur Wilde and Mrs. Wilde, Martha Sprague Mason and Mr. Mason, William Marshall Warren, Anna Gooding Dodge, Minnie Cass Reynolds, Julia Cole Yarnall and her brother, Waldo Cole, Helen Teele, Emily Tyler, Minnie Byron, Emily Clark, and Lillian Packard.

MARY J. WELLINGTON, Secretary.

'87. Emily Clark is assistant to Dr. Lamb, editor of the Journal of the American Chemical Association, and Director of the Chemical Laboratory at Harvard.

'87. Elizabeth Hanscom is to have leave of absence for the second semester, and plans to be in Europe.

'87. Lillian Packard is no longer at Lasell but is lecturing and carrying on Bible study.

'87. M. Helen Teele is a trustee of the Arlington Public Library.

'87. Mrs. Julia Cole Yarnall is President of the Delaware County, Pa., League of Home and School Associations. She announces the marriage of her son, Russell, to Miss Bessie Phillips July 30, 1921, and the birth of a grandson, Russell Atlee, Jr.

Brown, '96 and Elizabeth Gordon Atwood, '04.

'98. Annie Joslyn Gray, who writes under the pen name of Joslyn Gray, has brought out a new book, "The Newcomer in Penny Lane." A critic of the Boston Herald of September 16 speaks highly of the work as follows: "It is the first in the Penny Lane series, and deals delightfully with the life of a group of children in a small village. Without ever making her youthful characters priggish, Miss Gray manages always to emphasize the fine, wholesome virtues that all children need to have impressed upon them." The publishers are Charles Scribner's Sons.

'00. The sincere sympathy of her classmates and of the University is extended to Josephine Pickering Tibbetts, whose husband, Alva Grover Tibbetts, a graduate of Boston University School of Law '05, died Saturday, May 27, at the Home Sanatorium, Roxbury.

'01. Mabel F. Barnum, who was away during the second semester of last year on leave of absence, has resumed her duties as librarian in the College of Liberal Arts.

'02. Colonel Leonard Porter Ayres has severed his connection with the Russell Sage Foundation. He is now Vice-President of the Cleveland Trust Company, Cleveland, O.

'02. H. Osborne Ryder is teaching in Hamline University, St. Paul, Minn. He is President of the Twin City Classical Club. At a recent meeting of the Boston University alumni in St. Paul and Minneapolis he was made president of the association. Recent addresses are: "Geometrical Devices in the Teaching of Latin and Greek;" "Martial, the Roman Humorist."

'06. Mrs. Emma Fall Schofield, A.B. '06, LL.B. '08, has been appointed by Governor Cox a member of the Industrial Accident Board.

'09. Miss Ulrika E. Benson has returned after an absence of two years in Europe. During 1920-21 she studied in Paris and traveled in France. She spent 1921-22 in travel and residence in Italy, Germany, and Sweden. She has resumed her work in the French Department of the Bridgeport High School, where she had taught two and one-half years prior to her departure for Europe.

'10. Helen L. Brown's new address is 98 Hancock Street, Cambridge.

'10. Mary K. Taylor, who last year was in Hungary in charge of the Child Health program of the Social Service Department of the American Red Cross, is now engaged in Medical Social Service at the Presbyterian Hospital in New York and is connected with the Committee on Dispensary Development at that institution. Her address is 358 West 22d St., New York City.

COLLEGE OF BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION

The College of Business Administration was fortunate in securing as the speaker at the opening night of the College year General Herbert M. Lord, successor to General Dawes as Director of the National Budget.

Twenty students from Boston University reported at Camp Devens for the R. O. T. C. Camp, where they made an excellent showing. The Richardson twins of the College of Business Administration were tied for first honors as the best all-round student in the camp, the prize being finally awarded to Donald Richardson.

An appointment of unusual interest is that of Professor Charles E. Stratton as Director for Freshmen. Freshmen may at all times confer with Professor Stratton for advice, information, and guidance during their first year of college work.
Dean Everett W. Lord has accepted an appointment on the Advisory Committee of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs. The Committee consists of twenty-one prominent educators and business and professional men and women.

To provide specialized instruction for employees of the Boston Consolidated Gas Company, the College of Business Administration of Boston University has made arrangements with the Company to prepare, conduct, and supervise all of the courses of the Boston Consolidated Gas Company Institute. Under the direction of Professor Harold Whitehead over 350 employees of the Company are registered in ten different courses.

Some two hundred and fifty leading business men of Boston have cooperated with the College of Business Administration in forming a Vocational Advisory Board to assist students of the College in selecting positions for which they are best qualified. Every Junior is to have a conference with at least two members of this Board who will advise him and make recommendations regarding him to the Vocational Department of the College.

As a suitable memorial to the College men who gave their lives in the World War it is planned to erect a noble flagstaff on a pedestal of granite and bronze, set just in front of the College building. Arrangements have been made whereby every student is to have the opportunity to give the proceeds of one day's employment to the Memorial Fund. If the results equal anticipations, the total earnings will cover the cost of the Memorial.

This year, among the special courses which the College is giving for the benefit of business men are two in Life Insurance, one given on Tuesday evenings by Mr. L. H. Howe, Actuary of the John Hancock Life Insurance Company, and another, especially intended for life-insurance salesmen, on Monday evenings and Thursday afternoons. The Boston Board of Life Underwriters co-operates with the College in offering these courses.

The College has acquired the building at 101 Newbury Street for faculty offices and girls' quarters. The Departments of Economics and Law have been removed to that building; the former Economics office is occupied by the Director for Freshmen, Professor Stratton, and Assistant Dean Davis.

The girls' study, rest room, and lockers have been transferred to the new building, relieving congestion at 525 Boylston Street.

Students, alumni, and faculty members will be glad to know that Professor Leo D. O'Neil, formerly Professor of Spanish and Economics and later Director of the Havana Branch, has been appointed Head of the Department of Foreign Trade.

Professor Guillermo Hall, formerly of the Havana Branch, has been appointed Head of the Spanish Department and Chairman of the Language Group.
For the first time courses in German are offered under the direction of Professor J. Grant Cramer.

Mr. George A. Cummings of the Department of French and Mr. T. M. B. Hicks of the Department of Business Methods and Sales Relations have been promoted to the rank of Assistant Professor.

Mr. Paul R. Blanchet, formerly Head of the Modern Language Department of the University School of Cleveland, has been appointed Assistant Professor of French.

Donald W. MacArdle, S.B., Massachusetts Institute of Technology, has been added to the Faculty as an Instructor in the Department of Mathematics and Science.

Edgar B. Pitts, formerly Assistant to the Bursar of Boston University, has succeeded David A. Fiske as Assistant Registrar.

Dean Lord announces the appointment of the following students to the Dean’s Cabinet for the first term of the college year 1922-23: Zelia Tortolani of Providence, Stanley Parker of North Adams, Paul Russlow of Randolph, Vt., representing the Junior class; Sterling W. Greene of Watertown, representing the Sophomore class; John J. Murray of Cambridge, representing the Veterans’ Bureau students of the College.

We congratulate Harvard University upon securing the services of Professor Abbott Payson Usher, formerly Professor of Economics at the College of Business Administration. While we are sorry not to have him with us, we wish him all success in his new position.

Attention is called to the new course offered in the Evening Division, Canadian Resources and Industry, under the direction of Assistant Dean Davis. Among the special lecturers in this course are President Arthur D. Little of the Arthur D. Little Company, research industrial chemists; Dr. Harold S. Davis, Ph.D. (Harvard), formerly Assistant Professor, University of Manitoba, research physicist at General Electric Company, New York, research fellow at Mellon Institute, Pittsburgh, and now industrial research chemist, A. D. Little Company; Dr. Stewart MacDonald, Ph.D. (Cornell), Head of the Economics Department, Middlebury College, and sales manager with the L. R. Steel Corporation; and Mr. W. Warner Lang, B.A., LL.B. (Toronto), formerly instructor at Northwestern University.

Professor Charles E. Bellatty, Director of the Ellsworth Summer Session, reported the close of a successful summer on August 31. One hundred and thirty-four students completed the three months’ course at Ellsworth.
Eighty-nine new Veterans' Bureau students have registered in the Day Division of the College of Business Administration, bringing the total of ex-service men in attendance at the College up to three hundred and six.

The Day Division registration to date is reported as 1,364, divided as follows: Freshmen, 297; Sophomores, 277; Juniors, 243; Seniors, 252; Veterans' Bureau (not candidates for degree), 265; transfers from other departments, 30.

Dean Lord has been elected to membership in the National Institute for Social Science. The Institute was organized in 1912. One of its functions is to award medals to those who have rendered distinguished and patriotic services.

Assistant Dean Roy Davis was one of the speakers at the graduation exercises of the Boston Mechanic Arts High School Thursday evening, June 22. Professor Davis is a graduate of the school and a member of the advisory committee.

Captain Einar W. Chester, Assistant Professor of Military Science, was married to Miss Laura R. Perkins of Brookline on Saturday, July 15. Mrs. Chester was during the war a member of the medical department at the headquarters of the First Corps area.

In response to requests from a number of Boston business men a series of twelve lectures for Boston executives and salesmen on the writing of sales letters will be held in the College of Business Administration beginning Wednesday evening, October 11, under the direction of Hiram N. Raseley, formerly Secretary of the Better Business Letter Association. The lecturers include George W. Coleman, President of Babson Institute and past president of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World. The first address was delivered on October 11 by Charles R. Weirs of Philadelphia, Vice-President of the De Long Hook and Eye Company. The lectures begin at 7.45 p.m.

Robert Lincoln O'Brien, editor of the Boston Herald, addressed the college assembly on Tuesday, October 3, taking as his theme, "Where News Comes From."

General Herbert M. Lord, National Director of the Budget, spoke on "The Budget in National Finances" at the opening meeting of the college year in Huntington Hall, Thursday evening, September 14.

'17. The Brockton Enterprise of Tuesday, June 6, announced the marriage on the previous evening of Clarence B. E. Rosen, B.B.A. '17, and Emy Edwina Rosendahl of Brockton. Mr. and Mrs. Rosen are residing on Park Street, West Roxbury.

'18. The Brockton Enterprise of Tuesday, June 6, announced the wedding on that day of Arthur Joseph Dwyer, '18, and Miss Mary Margaret Derby of North Easton. John F. Clarke, B.B.A. '20, was one of the ushers. Mr. and Mrs. Dwyer are living on Florence Street, Brockton.
'20. Richmond K. Bachelder of Lowell has been appointed Bursar of Boston University to take the place of Ion E. Dwyer, who recently resigned. Mr. Bachelder graduated cum laude from Boston University College of Business Administration in 1920, having been elected a member of the scholastic honor society, Delta Mu Delta. He studied at the Lowell High School. Since his graduation from college he has been employed by the Charles F. Rittenhouse Co. and spent the last year in Florida as Assistant Treasurer of the Philbrick Tie and Timber Co.

'20. Walter M. Hatch, Jr., '20, was married to Miss Madeleine Camille McCarthy of Brockton on Friday, July 14. Mr. Hatch is in business with his father in the Boston firm of Walter M. Hatch & Co., importer of Japanese goods.

'20. Richard Taylor, '20, was married to Miss Gretchen Eichorn last June. Mrs. Taylor is a graduate of Sacred Heart Academy, Manhattanville, N. Y., and also of the School of the Museum of Fine Arts. During the World War she enlisted in the Surgeon-General's Army Nurse Corps and was stationed at Spartansburg, S. C. Mr. Taylor is a graduate of Boston College and Boston University and served with Base Hospital 44 overseas during the war.

'20. Ruth Ann Thornton was married August 22 to William Noel Drew, son of the late William Holmes Drew, A.B. '78. Mr. and Mrs. Drew are residing on E Street, Chula Vista, Calif.

'22. Olive L. Cox is teaching in the High School, Middleboro.

'22. Nelson N. Marshman has been appointed Secretary of the Convention Bureau of the Springfield Chamber of Commerce. He has been connected with the Chamber for the past year as Associate Secretary, Secretary of the Junior Division, Secretary of the Retail Merchants' Association, and Secretary of the Committee on Public and Industrial Safety.

COLLEGE OF SECRETARIAL SCIENCE

The number of graduates of the College of Secretarial Science, of course, is small. At times it is difficult to realize that the College was established only three years ago. The graduates, however, are filling varied types of excellent positions. Several are teaching commercial subjects.

Miss Dorothy Corey is assisting in the stenography department at the College; Miss Katherine Nowland, at Norwich Free Academy; and Miss Alice Dooley, at a business school in Maine.

Four of last year's group are secretaries at Harvard University — Miss Pearl Kidston (C.S.S.) and Miss Kathryn Sargent, B.S.S., in the Bureau of Business Research; Miss Esther Hinckley, A.B., B.S.S., in Professor Robinson's office; and Miss Carol Pierce, B.S.S., in the office of the Dean of the Graduate School.
Miss Amy Webster, A.B., B.S.S., who completed the college-graduate course in 1922, has a high-salaried position at the school headquarters in Aurora, Minn.

Miss Edith Robbins, who studied with the college-graduate group, holds a responsible position at the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, where she directs the work of a number of girls. Another member of this group is now considering a very unusual opportunity to work as office manager with a firm of engineers in China.

Several of the girls who completed the two-year certificate course, and who hold the title of "Certified Stenographic Secretary," are now school secretaries. Miss Margaret Oldham was at National Park Seminary for one year and is now attending college again. Miss Barbara Perry is Secretary of the Allen Military School; Miss Emily Hallowell, of the Mitchell Military Boys' School; and Miss Charlotte Robbins, at Mt. Ida. Miss Marjorie Kenney (C.S.S.) is Secretary to the Dean and Miss Gertrude Taylor (C.S.S.) is Assistant in the Dean's Office at the College of Secretarial Science.

Among the secretarial positions filled by our graduates, several different types are represented: at the Army and Navy Club, Miss Joyce Barnes (C.S.S.); at Lever Brothers, Miss Laura LaFond, B.S.S.; at the New England Confectionery Company, Miss Lois Kemp (C.S.S.); at the Old Colony Trust Company, Miss Gladys Ewell; at Porter Sargent's, Miss Elizabeth Moore; at Arthur D. Little, Incorporated, Miss Anne Jenkins (C.S.S.); with the Boston Herald, Miss Anne Ford and Miss Doris Senior (C.S.S.); with the Bristol Leather Company, Miss Florence Plumstead (C.S.S.); with the Island Falls Lumber Company, Miss Susan Rogers, B.S.S.

Miss Dorothy Hill has gone to China as secretary to Mr. Sidney L. Gamble of the Princeton unit of the Y.M.C.A.

The requirements for the degree of Bachelor of Secretarial Science have been increased from 120 to 136 hours. Psychology and logic will hereafter be required of every student. Elective courses in philosophy have been introduced. Students who are planning to work as secretaries to physicians or other professional men will be given an opportunity to take work in chemistry and other sciences. The graduate school of the University will hereafter accept as candidates for the Master of Arts degree graduates of the College of Secretarial Science who have elected suitable subjects during their undergraduate work. An arrangement has been completed between the School of Education and the College of Secretarial Science providing for a special training course for commercial teachers in high schools and colleges.

The College of Secretarial Science has inaugurated a new course in citizenship and American history for the freshmen. Dr. Thomas Chalmers of West Newton will conduct the course. He is a graduate of Harvard '91, and studied abroad in the Universities of Marburg, Germany, and Saint Andrews, Scotland. He received the degree of Doctor of Divinity from Dartmouth in 1908. He is the author of several articles and books on historical and Americanization themes. He has been a lecturer at Dartmouth, Wheaton, Phillips Exeter Academy, Milton Academy, and other schools and colleges.

At the opening exercises of the College on Wednesday, September 20, Dean Davis introduced several of the new members of the faculty: Professor H. R. Shipnerd of the Department of English; Dr. Thomas Chalmers, Lecturer on American History and Citizenship; Mr. José Ofate, Instructor in Spanish; Mr. J. M. Carpenter, Instructor in English; Mrs. Lesetta Erickson, Instructor in Office Practice. Brief remarks were made by these and other members of the faculty. Other recent appointments to the faculty are Professor Charles F. Rittenhouse, head of the Department of Accounting; Dorothy Corey, '22, Assistant in Stenography; Bertha Leighton, Assistant in Stenography.

Henry G. Blount, recently Assistant Professor in Accounting in the College of Secretarial Science, has been elected Superintendent of Schools of the New Hampshire district, comprising Salem, Atkinson, Hampton, Plaistow, Newton, and South Hampton. Professor Blount is a graduate of Harvard University. He had been principal of Pembroke Academy and had taught in New Hampshire State College, Durham, and Tufts College.

SCHOOL OF THEOLOGY

On learning that Dr. Marcus D. Buell had relinquished active work in the School of Theology, the Faculty of Garrett Biblical Institute, Evanston, Ill., sent him last May the following cordial testimonial of their esteem and their recognition of his long term of efficient service in the University:

"The Faculty of Garrett Biblical Institute hears of your retirement from active service after nearly forty years in your professorship with deep regret that the passage of time and the necessities of your home have made this necessary, and they wish to express to you their great appreciation of the service you have given to the Church and the world in your commanding position, in arousing and maintaining the esprit de corps of a great institution, and in training an efficient ministry. We pray the richest blessing of God to rest upon Mrs. Buell and yourself in all the coming days. May they be the best days you have known, hallowed as they will be by the consciousness of life-work well done."

The enrolment in the School of Theology is as follows: Traveling Fellows, 2; Graduate Students, 67; Seniors, 54; Middlers, 80; Juniors, 63; Specials, 35; Special Students from S. R. E., 65; making a total enrolment, October 5, of 366 as compared with 375 for the whole of the previous year. One of the most significant things about the enrolment is the large number of students who are continuing further study after completing work for the S. T. B. degree. The second fact is the unusual size of the middle class. That seems to be accounted for by the fact that last year a large number of students entered the School whose educational work had been interrupted by the War, and who entered in this one year, whereas ordinarily they would have been distributed over several years.

President Murlin, Dr. Heber R. Harper, and Dean Beebe visited the alumni of the School of Theology in the Fall Conferences in Iowa, Nebraska, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois, and Ohio.

The Campaign in the interest of the School of Theology has reached the intensive stage, and Dr. Charles R. Bair, '09, and Mr. Howard Callahan, a former student of the School, have been secured to give full time working among the churches of New England. Professors Linfield and Wark are assisting in the Campaign, in addition to carrying on their class work in the School.

The opening address on Matriculation Day, Thursday, September 21, was delivered by Dr. William S. Mitchell, '04, pastor of Calvary Methodist Church, Philadelphia.

During the summer the private library of Dr. Hinckley G. Mitchell was assembled and catalogued in a special room, and is now an integral part of the library of the School of Theology. The Nutter Library of Hymnology is similarly assembled in another special room.

Under the title "The School on Beacon Hill" the School of Theology has brought out an illustrated pamphlet containing half-tone views of the buildings, and maps showing the present location of the graduates of the School.

The George H. Doran Co. of New York have brought out "The Essentials of Christianity," by Dr. Henry C. Sheldon. The book is reviewed in Zion's Herald of Wednesday, October 4.

'97. Rev. Lucius C. Clark has been appointed Chancellor of the American University in Washington, succeeding Bishop John W. Hamilton.

'05. Professor John G. Hill of the University of Southern California contributed to Zion's Herald of May 17 some reminiscences of Professor Borden P. Bowne based upon notes which Dr. Hill had taken in the classroom.

'12. J. Kirkwood Craig, S.T.B. '12, M.R.E. '21, has been appointed Superintendent of Religious Education for the Hennepin County Sunday-School Association in Minnesota. Mr. Craig began his duties August 15, taking charge of the community training and of the daily vacation and weekday school of religion.

'13. Professor W. J. King of Gammon Theological Seminary was one of the speakers at the World Student Federation Conference, Peking, China, last summer.

'15. Henry S. H. Leitzel has been granted the degree of S.T.M. by Union Theological Seminary.
'16. Earl M. Rugg is District Superintendent of the Northwest India Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church. His address is, Methodist Episcopal Mission, Phalera, Rajputana, India.

'18. Rev. S. Raymond Luthy, who for the past eighteen months has filled the pastorate of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Holbrook, Mass., closed his ministry at that church Sunday, September 3. He has been transferred by Bishop E. H. Hughes to the pastorate of the Memorial Methodist Episcopal Church at Plymouth.

'18. Paul P. Rugg, who has been connected with the Department of Missionary Education and Stewardship in the Board of Sunday Schools of the Methodist Episcopal Church, has been appointed to have charge of the Church-Training Division of the Committee on Conservation and Advance.

'19. Rev. Clarence T. Craig has returned from Europe where for the past two years he has been studying in Switzerland and Germany on a Jacob Sleeper Fellowship. He has been appointed pastor of Clifton Methodist Episcopal Church, Cincinnati, O.

'20. Mark R. S. Shaw has received appointment from the Board of Foreign Missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church as a prohibition missionary to Japan. He sailed for his new field last August.

'21. James W. Rervey is Dean of the Evangeline College and Preparatory School, Basile, La. This school was established two years ago, primarily for the Acadian French people of Louisiana.

'22. Rev. and Mrs. Fred J. Kellar sailed from New York September 20 for France, where they intend to study at the University of Grenoble with a view to acquiring a working knowledge of French before proceeding to their work as missionaries in Tunisia, North Africa. Mr. Kellar was formerly Director of Religious Education at St. Mark's Methodist Episcopal Church, Brookline, and was subsequently Assistant Pastor of First Church, Boston.

SCHOOL OF LAW

Dean Albers was the commencement speaker at Central Wesleyan College, Warrenton, Mo. At its commencement exercises this college conferred the degree of LL.D. upon him. Dean Albers is a graduate of that institution in the class of '82, and received the degree of A.M. in '85.

The Boston University Law Review, which issued its first number three years ago, has attained a circulation which places it among the leaders in American law reviews. The Review is issued quarterly. Contributions are made by undergraduates, alumni, members of the faculty, and distinguished lawyers and jurists. In addition, the Review contains comments on recent cases, alumni notes, and critiques of recent books. Among the contributors have been Chief Justice Taft of the United States Supreme Court, Chief Justice Riddell of Ontario, Canada, Hon. W. S. Holdsworth of Lincoln’s Inn, London (one of the most erudite of English jurists), the late Simeon E. Baldwin of Connecticut, and others of almost equal distinction.

Dr. Gustavus L. Robinson has been appointed a full-time Professor in the School of Law and began his duties in September. He is a graduate of Harvard, '05, summa cum laude. In 1909 he graduated from the Harvard Law School. In 1915 he was given the degree of S.J.D., with honors, by that school. He has taught at the law schools of Tulane University, New Orleans; the University of Missouri; the University of California; and the University of Nebraska. He served as captain in the World War and was stationed at Camp Grant. He is a member of the Massachusetts and New York bars. While at the Harvard Law School he was an editor of the Harvard Law Review. He has now been appointed Faculty Editor of the Boston University Law Review for the coming year.

The Law School opened the year with the largest registration in its history, having a grand total of 792 students.

'77. In announcing the appointment of a successor to Mr. James Monroe Olmstead, who resigned last June as referee in bankruptcy, Judge James M. Morton, Jr., of the United States District Court, spoke in terms of high appreciation of the work of Mr. Olmstead, who had served continuously as referee since the enactment of the Bankruptcy Act in 1898. After receiving the degree of LL.B. from Boston University in 1877 he was admitted to the Suffolk bar and later to practice in the United States Circuit Court. In 1895 he was admitted to the bar of the Supreme Court of the United States.

'86. Robert Frederick Herrick was married on Tuesday, October 3, to Mrs. Peggy Rice, a well known member of the exclusive society of Westwood. Mr. Herrick is a graduate of Harvard and while there won prominence in athletics. Of recent years he has been active in American and international polo matches. Since his graduation from the Boston University School of Law he has practised in Boston.

'90. Governor Cox nominated on Wednesday, July 5, Alonzo R. Weed as Judge of the Superior Court, to succeed Judge Walter Perley Hall, who is promoted to be Chief Justice. Justice Weed graduated from Harvard in 1887 and from the School of Law of Boston University in 1890. From 1893 to 1902 he was an Instructor in Equity in the Law School, and in Equity Pleading from 1902 to 1913. He was Acting Dean in 1911. He was twice a member of the Newton Board of Aldermen and was Mayor for two years. For thirteen years he was a member and for five years he was chairman of the Massachusetts Board of Gas and Electric Light Commissioners. For the past three years he has been a member of the Massachusetts Department of Public Utilities. Since 1908 he has been a Trustee of Boston University.

At the same time Governor Cox nominated Congressman Joseph Walsh of New Bedford as one of the additional justices authorized under a 1922 law to relieve the present congestion of the courts. Congressman Walsh was born in Brighton in 1875 and studied in the public schools and in the School of Law of Boston University. For three years he was Clerk of the United States Bureau of Fisheries; for five years moderator of the town of Falmouth; a member of the State legislature for two years, and a member of Congress for four terms. He was one of the leaders and probably the best authority on parliamentary law in Congress, and in the absence of Speaker Gillett has been Acting Speaker.

'93. Miss Clara Louise Power, Assistant Registrar of Probate, Suffolk County Probate Court, was appointed last June a Justice of the Peace in Massachusetts. Until the full operation of the law giving women equal rights with men in holding public office no woman had been allowed to act as a justice of the peace, although a large number had been made notaries public. The Lowell, Mass., Sun of Thursday, June 22, says that Miss Power is the first woman to be appointed a justice of the peace in Massachusetts. Calling her one of the pioneer women lawyers of the State, the Sun says that she was the first Massachusetts woman to be appointed a notary public, the first to be admitted to practise before the United States Supreme Court, the first to be admitted to the bar of the United States circuit court, the first to be admitted to the Suffolk County bar, the first to become a member of the Bar Association of the City of Boston, the first to hold the position of assistant registrar of probate in Suffolk County, and the first woman lawyer to become a clerk in the probate court.

'96. President Harding has nominated Elisha Hume Brewster, of Springfield, as a Federal Judge in the Massachusetts district. Judge Brewster was born in Worthington. He prepared for the University at Williston Seminary and graduated from the School of Law, '96, cum laude. He was a member of the Massachusetts House of Representatives, 1902-04, and has been a member of the Executive Committee of the Massachusetts State Bar Association. He is the author of "Massachusetts Succession and Legacy Tax." He began the practice of law in Springfield in 1906.

'99. Governor Cox in August appointed David A. Lourie as an Associate Justice of the Municipal Court of the City of Boston.

'00. Frank L. Brier has been appointed an Assistant District Attorney of Suffolk County by Thomas C. O'Brien, District Attorney. Mr. Brier has been in the legislature representing the 19th Suffolk District since 1919.

'08. The Boston Herald of Thursday, June 22, announced the marriage, on the previous day, of Daniel T. O'Connell, LL.B. '08, LL.M. '10, LL.D. '13, to Miss Esther Moran of Allston. Mrs. O'Connell is a graduate of Notre Dame Academy.

'08. Governor Cox has appointed Mrs. Emma Fall Schofield a member of the Industrial Accident Board.
Joseph Torrey Bishop was married to Miss Elsie May Kellaway of Newton Center on Wednesday evening, July 12. Mrs. Bishop is a graduate of Simmons '13 and has been at the head of the Department of Domestic Science at the Girls' Latin School, Cambridge, during the past year. Mr. and Mrs. Bishop are residing on Irving Street, Newton Center.

The Boston Transcript of Wednesday, June 21, announced the marriage on the previous evening of John W. F. Hobbs, LL.B. '13, and Miss Erminie Melba Burtnett of Somerville. Mrs. Hobbs is a graduate of Dean Academy. Mr. Hobbs prepared for college at Phillips Exeter Academy and graduated from Dartmouth in the class of 1910, taking his law degree in Boston University three years later. Mr. and Mrs. Hobbs are living at 305 Morrison Avenue, West Somerville.

Judge S. Victor Prince, '15, was married to Miss Florence Patricia Casey of New London, Conn., on Wednesday, July 12. Mrs. Prince is a graduate of the State Normal School in Willimantic. For the past ten years she has been teaching in New London. After graduating from the School of Law in 1915 Judge Prince was admitted to the bar in June of the following year. In the fall of 1920 he was appointed Judge of the Police Court of the City of New London by Governor Lake to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge William B. Coit.

Felix Forte, '16, was married to Miss Alma Locatelli of Somerville on Wednesday evening, June 28. Mrs. Forte graduated from Notre Dame Academy, Roxbury, in 1917. Mr. and Mrs. Forte are residing at Bradford Apartments, Summer Street, Somerville. Mr. Forte is Instructor in Evidence at the Law School.

John V. Phelan, '16, was married to Miss Helen A. Crowley of Revere on Sunday evening, July 30. Mrs. Phelan is a graduate of Revere High School. Mr. Phelan served overseas from April, 1918, to January, 1919. Mr. and Mrs. Phelan are residing at 104 Ocean Street, Lynn.

Miss Rebecca Thurman, '17, of Dorchester, was married Sunday evening, June 25, to Israel Bernstein of Portland, Maine. Mrs. Bernstein graduated from the School of Law, magna cum laude, and was awarded the Ordroneaux prize, which is awarded to the student who has shown the greatest ability during attendance at the school. In 1918 she received from the University the degree of Master of Laws. She is a member of the Massachusetts Association of Women Lawyers. Mr. Bernstein is a practising attorney in Portland, Me.

Corporation Counsel Mark Sullivan has appointed Leo Schwartz as an Assistant.

Joseph G. Brin, Managing Editor of The Jewish Advocate, was on the faculty of the summer course given under the auspices of Young Judæa of Boston. In July Mr. Brin gave three lectures on "Modern Jewish History and Life." The courses were given at 47 Mt. Vernon Street, Boston.
At the opening session of the School of Medicine on Thursday, September 28, Dean John P. Sutherland delivered the opening address. We hope to print this important address in full in the January issue of Bostonia. Announcement was made by Dr. Edward E. Allen, Registrar of the School, that already the School had the largest registration in its history — 192 men and women. As enrolment was still going on, it was predicted that the attendance would go beyond the 200 mark. Among the speakers representing the early graduates was Dr. Samuel H. Calderwood, '75, Chairman of the Massachusetts Board of Registration in Medicine. Dr. Calderwood said in part:

"Fifty years ago a student was lucky if he got two years' training in medicine before beginning practice. Now a high school certificate and four years of study of at least 38 weeks a year are necessary before a student can even take the State Board examinations."

"The lines between the sects in medicine as well as between the creeds in churches should be abandoned," continued Dr. Calderwood, in speaking of the recent additions to Boston University's curriculum.

Dr. Edward B. Hooker, '77, of New Haven, Conn., for many years a member of the licensing and examining board of Connecticut, spoke briefly on the present-day field of medicine. He urged the students to fit themselves to be public health officers and to study industrial medicine.

"The greatest field of medicine in the future is in the development of healthy children," said Dr. Hooker. "It is as much the duty of the educational institution to develop the bodies of the children as to develop their minds."

Dr. John L. Coffin, '76, Professor-Emeritus in the School of Medicine and for many years Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Westboro State Hospital, also spoke. He told of the necessity for regarding patients as individuals who are sick, and not merely as "cases." In old days in medicine the physician came more into human contact with the patient, he averred, and present-day laboratory tests must not be allowed to take the place of the human insight and interest of the doctor in the clinic.

Dr. Alexander S. Begg has been elected a member of the Executive Committee of the Medical School.

Mr. Leland C. Wyman has been added to the staff as an Assistant in the Department of Physiology.
'92. Dr. Mary F. Cushman has been appointed by the American Board of Missions to do pioneer medical work in West Central Africa. She sailed for her new field in September. Dr. Cushman is the first woman ever appointed to a State board of registration of medicine. She was recently appointed by Governor Baxter of Maine to the board of registration of medicine of that State.

'00. Dr. William H. Watters represented the Massachusetts Homeopathic Hospital at the conference on hospital standardization of the New England section of the American College of Surgeons, held at Portland, Me., May 15.

'14. Dr. C. Wesley Sewall was married to Miss Helen F. McAndrews on September 2. Mrs. Sewall is a graduate of Brown University and has been secretary for some time for Dr. Allan W. Rowe of the Medical School. Dr. and Mrs. Sewall will make their home in West Roxbury.

'16. Dr. Ettore Ciampolini was married on Saturday, June 10, to Miss Helen Charnley Atwater at New Haven, Conn.

'21. Dr. C. Haines Osborne began his duties as House Officer at the Evans Memorial Hospital on June 1.

SCHOOL OF EDUCATION

The Harvard Graduate School of Education and Boston University School of Education unite this year in a co-operative plan of extension courses. The faculties of both institutions will be drawn upon for lecturers, and credit for the courses will be given for undergraduate work in the Boston University School of Education and for graduate work in the Graduate School of Education of Harvard or in the Graduate School of Boston University. Already the requests for the courses are more numerous than expected, and the interest manifested among school superintendents indicates that the only lack will be of men to give as many courses as are wanted.

Extra-mural courses in the Harvard-Boston University Extension system are already appointed for Lynn, Bridgewater, Malden, Melrose, Medford, Wakefield, and Haverhill. Others are in process of development in Brockton, Chicopee, Salem, and Beverly.

No course is given for less than 40. The student pays $16 for the course of fifteen sessions of one and one-half to two hours each, and the credit is two points, or semester-hours. Methods, time, and fees are substantially the same as in the regular courses of the School of Education.

Miss E. Beatrice Mahany, '21, and Miss Julia Dickson, '22, have been appointed to the faculty of the Boston Normal School. Miss Julia Shipman,
'20, was recently appointed Instructor in Geography in the New Britain, Conn., Normal School. Mrs. Isabel M. Day, '19, is the head of the Spanish department of the High School of Commerce of Brooklyn, N. Y. Mrs. Day has supplemented her training in the School of Education with study for a higher degree at Columbia and by study and travel in Spain. Miss Catherine G. Foley, '19, has been attached to the Boston Superintendent's office as Primary Supervisor; and in the same office Miss Katherine G. King, '21, has been appointed Assistant Director of Practice and Training.

Two new professors begin their service this autumn in the School. Professor John J. Mahoney has a long experience in Massachusetts schools as teacher, executive, and more recently as head of the division of Americanization in the State Department of Education. His books have had wide adoption as text books. He has become a national authority in Americanization and in the teaching of English. Professor Guy M. Wilson comes to the School from a rich experience in the Middle West as school superintendent, professor of education, and author. He was last head of the department of education and director of the summer session in the State College of Iowa at Ames.

The School of Education shows at the opening of the new year a gain of 67 per cent in full-time students over the previous year at the corresponding date. The enrolment on the 11th of October was 888, as compared with 782 a year ago at the same time. Interest in work for a college degree is increasing among teachers who have been graduated from normal schools and have been pursuing improvement courses. Now they intend to assemble their work for the definite end of a college degree.

Dr. Guy M. Wilson, Professor of Educational Psychology in the School of Education, continues his contributions to educational measurements and to the principles of education in two articles printed in September periodicals. His article on "Language Error Tests," in the Journal of Educational Psychology, has attracted much attention.

The Washington Educational Journal contains an article on "First Steps in Scientific Curricula Making — a Platform."

Professor Wilson has been constant in his researches in the field of education, and his two books, "How to Measure" and "Motivation in School Work," have become handbooks for thousands of teachers.

Honor students from eleven New England normal schools have been awarded scholarships by the School of Education. High scholarship and all-round ability are the basis of these awards, which are made by the University upon the recommendation of the various normal school faculties. The normal schools represented by the students to whom scholarships are awarded are: Framingham, Lowell, Bridgewater, Worcester, Boston, Fitchburg, Plymouth, N. H., Gorham, Me., Machias, Me., Eastern State, Castine, Me., Farmington, Me.
A course of fifteen lectures on the Mental Health of Children will be given this semester by a number of experts on child health under the direction of J. Mace Andress, Ph.D., of the Department of Psychology and Child Study, Boston Normal School, with the co-operation and endorsement of the Massachusetts Society for Mental Hygiene. The lectures, which began September 25, are given on successive Monday evenings at 8 o'clock in Jacob Sleeper Hall. They will continue to December 18; after intermission for the holidays the closing lectures will be given January 8 and 15. Credit of one point will be given toward the degree of Bachelor of Science in Education in the School of Education, and the Boston Board of Superintendents will accept the course for promotional credit.

'22. Earle B. Grundy was director of the Chestnut Street Methodist Episcopal Church School, Portland, Me., for the month of July.

'22. Jennie L. Hendricks is teaching European History in the Meriden, Conn., High School.

SCHOOL OF RELIGIOUS EDUCATION AND SOCIAL SERVICE

The School of Religious Education has opened the new year with an initial enrolment equaling the total enrolment for last year. This indicates a probable increase of 20 per cent in attendance for the year. This increase is almost entirely in the graduate courses. Among our new students are a number of college professors who are spending their sabbatical year in graduate work in this School. There are also six interdenominational Sunday-school leaders and as many denominational field workers who have been released by their boards for a period of special training in the School of Religious Education and Social Service.

The School will continue its contributions to the musical life of the churches of greater Boston this year, and in addition will conduct regional conferences in the field of Fine Arts in Religion. It is planned to hold these conferences in Worcester, Springfield, Manchester, N. H., Portland, Me., and Providence, R. I. Professor H. Augustine Smith, Professor Albert E. Bailey, and Miss Esther Willard Bates will be in charge of these music, art, and pageantry demonstrations.

The addition of 1,500 volumes, the gift of the New England Deaconess Association, will add materially to the library facilities of the School this year.

Among the faculty members who have written new books during the past year are Professor Albert E. Bailey, whose volume, “The Use of Art in Religious Education,” has recently come from the press of the Methodist Book Concern, and Miss Edith Lovell Thomas, whose work, “A First Book in Hymns and Worship,” has just been issued by the same publishers. Other members of the faculty who are authors of their own textbooks are: Walter S.
Athearn, H. Augustine Smith, Charles E. Carroll, Albert J. Kennedy, and Alberta Munkres. Henry C. Sheldon, Professor-Emeritus of Systematic Theology of the School of Theology, has just prepared a text entitled, "Essentials of Christianity," for the special need of the students of this School.

The fourth annual consecration service for students and faculty, which was held on October 1, was well attended and most impressive. Dr. Henry H. Crane of the Centre Methodist Episcopal Church of Malden preached the consecration sermon and the music was under the direction of Professor Smith.

Dr. Mary Alice Emerson taught missionary dramatics at Ocean Park, Me., last summer and directed the annual missionary pageant on Wednesday evening, July 26.

'22. Miss Blanche Carrier of Marion, O., a graduate of Boston University School of Religious Education and Social Service, has been made supervisor of week-day schools of religion for the city of Dayton in her home State. Miss Carrier received her practical training in the week-day religious schools of Malden.

'22. Bessie A. Hollows sailed last June for China where she is to engage in missionary work under the direction of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

In Memoriam

FACULTY

Ferdinand A. Wyman, Jr., lecturer on Business Method and Sales Relations at the College of Business Administration, died in Boston, Sunday, July 16. Since 1918 he had been sales manager of S. S. Peirce Co. He was born in Hyde Park in 1886 and was educated in the Hyde Park schools. He is survived by a widow and an infant son.

Dr. Luther T. Townsend, for fifty years a member of the faculty of the School of Theology, died Wednesday, August 2, in his eighty-fourth year.

Dr. Townsend was born in Orono, Me., in 1838. He prepared for college at Tilton Seminary, and entered Dartmouth College, graduating in 1859. From Dartmouth he went to Andover Theological Seminary, graduating from that institution in 1862. In 1872 he was appointed to the Harris Professorship of Practical Theology in the School of Theology of Boston University, and continued in the active work of the professorship until 1893, when he was made Professor-Emeritus. Since his retirement from active work in the school he had devoted his time to preaching and literary work, and he is the author of a number of books. His only immediate survivor is a daughter, Mrs. Clifford S. Cobb, of Brookline, with whom he had made his home.

Dr. Caroline E. Hastings died Monday, July 10, at the Massachusetts Homeopathic Hospital, in her eighty-second year. Dr. Hastings was born in Barre and received her early education in the public schools of that town, after which she entered Mount Holyoke Seminary, from which she was graduated in 1868. She was a member of the faculty of the School of Medicine of Boston University for 14 years, beginning in 1873 as a lecturer on anatomy and kindred subjects. She was promoted in 1881 to a professorship in that department, continuing until 1887. In addition to practising medicine she had been active in various community interests and served for several years as a member of the Boston School Committee.

ALUMNI

'70 (Theol.). Rev. John N. Short, founder and pastor for twenty-two years of the First Church of the Nazarene, Franklin Street, Cambridge, died on Wednesday, April 12, at his home in Cambridge. He was born in Middlefield, and after attending the schools there entered Boston University. He became a Methodist clergyman and held several pastorates. Mr. Short leaves a wife and one daughter, Mrs. Mabel Vincent, wife of Dr. E. T. Vincent of Boston. Funeral services were held at the First Church of the Nazarene, Cambridge, Saturday afternoon, April 15. The burial was at Lowell.

'76 (M. D.). Dr. Nathaniel R. Perkins died very suddenly on Wednesday, September 27. Dr. Perkins had been for twenty-two years a member of the Massachusetts Board of Registration in Medicine. He had been Assistant Secretary of the Board since January, 1921, when he retired from general practice.

'79 (S. T. B.). Dr. Edwin O. Buxton, S. T. B. '79, Ph. D. '90, died at his home in Millersburg, O., on Saturday, July 22. Dr. Buxton was President of Baldwin-Wallace College, Ohio, from 1902 until 1901, and was superintendent of the Akron district East Ohio Conference from 1909 until 1915. He retired two years ago. The funeral services were held at his home in Millersburg and the burial was at Brandon, O.

'81 (LL.B.) Judge James H. Flint died on Thursday, October 12, at his home in Weymouth where he had lived for forty years. He was born in Middleton in 1852. He studied at Danvers High School and Phillips Academy, graduating from the Academy in 1872 and from Harvard in 1876. In 1881 he graduated from the School of Law of Boston University. After spending a year in a New York law office he came to Boston, where he was admitted to the Bar in 1882. The forty years of his professional life were spent in practising law at the Suffolk Bar. He was three times a member of the State House of Representatives, and twice a member of the State Senate. In 1890 he was appointed Associate Justice of the District Court at Quincy and in 1899 was appointed Judge of the Norfolk County Probate Court. As an author he was well known. He contributed to the English and American Encyclopedia of Law. He was the author of "Flint on Trusts and Trustees," and was editor of one of the editions of "Lewin on Trusts."
'81 (L.L.B.). Judge George Littlefield Wentworth, justice of the municipal court, died at his home in South Weymouth on Friday, July 14. Judge Wentworth was born in Ellsworth, Me., in 1852. He received his early education in the public schools of Brewer, Me. He graduated from the School of Law of Boston University in 1881. In the fall of that year he was admitted to the Bar and became actively engaged in general practice. He practised alone for a time and then formed a partnership with General Edgar R. Champlin and George H. Ryther, an association which continued until about 1893. He was a member of the Weymouth School Board from 1887 to 1889 and a Representative from that town in the lower house of the Massachusetts Legislature in 1894 and 1895, serving both years as a member of the Committee on Rules. Later he was Special Commissioner for the County of Norfolk and was the principal organizer of the South Weymouth Co-operative Bank. He was appointed Special Justice of the Municipal Court of the City of Boston in 1896 and Associate Justice in the same court in 1899. He was married in 1881 to Miss Annette Small of Belfast, Me., who survives him. The funeral services were held at his residence in South Weymouth on Monday, July 17. The burial was in Mount Hope Cemetery, Weymouth.

'82 (M.D.). Dr. George H. Talbot died Friday, July 28, at his home in Newtonville. He had been ill more than two years. He was born in Norwich. He first practised in Bellows Falls, Vt. He went to Newton in 1888 and had long been a member of the staff of the Newton Hospital. He was a member of the Massachusetts Homeopathic Medical Society. He is survived by his wife and two daughters.

'84 (L.L.B.). Frank M. Copeland died in Newton, Tuesday, August 1, after a long illness. He had been ill more than two years. He was born in Mansfield in 1864. He graduated from Marietta College in 1875. He taught school in Foxboro and Mansfield and for several years was Principal of the Mansfield High School. Later he attended the Law School of Boston University, and after graduating in 1884 he was admitted to the Suffolk Bar. In 1891 he moved to Newton and was appointed a special justice of the police court in October, 1903. In 1921 he resigned that office because of ill health. He is survived by a brother. The funeral services were held in Newton on Friday, August 4.

'85 (S.T.B.) Dr. Frederic H. Knight, Superintendent of the New England Home for Little Wanderers, died in Boston on Sunday, October 15. He was born in Saco, Me., and graduated from Dartmouth College in 1882 and from the School of Theology of Boston University in 1885. In 1894-95 he studied at the University of Berlin. In 1899 he received the degree of Doctor of Philosophy from Boston University. He had filled various pastorates in Vermont and Massachusetts. From 1902 until 1907 he was President of New Orleans University. Since 1908 he had been Superintendent of the Little Wanderers’ Home. He is survived by his widow, Marion Butterfield Knight, '85; two sons, Howard R. Knight, '12, who is associated with the Ohio Institute for Public Efficiency, Columbus O.; and Frederic B. Knight, '13, Professor of Psychology at the Iowa State University, and by two brothers, Howard W. Knight of Portland, Me., and Wilfred L. Knight of Saco, Me. The funeral services were held on Wednesday, October 18, at St. Mark's Methodist Episcopal Church, Brookline. The services were conducted by Rev. William R. Leslie, S.T.B. '12, and President-Emeritus William E. Huntington, who performed the ceremony when Dr. Knight was married thirty-five years ago. Addresses were made by Rev. Dr. F. W. Coleman, former pastor of St. Mark's Church, and Dr. L. O. Hartman, S.T.B. '02, editor of Zion's Herald. The burial was in Wakefield.

'04 (Litt.B..) Jennie Barlett Allyn died at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Boston, on Thursday, June 15. She was a native of Cambridge, Mass. After graduating from the College of Liberal Arts in 1901 she was awarded the degree of A. M. the following year. For a time following her graduation she taught in Cambridge, then went to Arlington, teaching first in the intermediate grades and subsequently in the high school. After teaching there eleven years she was appointed to a position in the Watertown High School, where she had been teaching mathematics three years at the time of her death. She is survived by her mother, Mrs. Sarah E. Allyn.

'05 (LL.B.). Alva Grover Tibbetts died May 27 at the Home Sanatorium, Roxbury. Mr. Tibbetts was born in Foxboro September 9, 1878. At the time of his death he was Income Tax Assessor for Suffolk County, having held this position since 1906.

'12 (A.B). Gertrude Farnum Peirce died suddenly Sunday, July 16. She had been ill about two months, but seemed improved and on the road to recovery until the sudden termination came. The funeral was held at the home of her sister, Mrs. Horace W. Osborne of 52 Gifford Street, Brockton. The interment was in Melrose Cemetery, Brockton.

Miss Peirce was born in Oakland, Calif., December 21, 1885. She had lived in Massachusetts since early childhood. She attended the Hancock and Whitman schools in Brockton and graduated from the high school in that city in 1904. She then entered the Bridgewater State Normal School, graduating four years later. In all her school work she won high honors in scholarship. Graduating from Boston University, she taught in the Everett High School, and while teaching continued her studies in the Graduate School of the University, receiving the A.M. degree in 1914. She continued teaching in the Everett High School until 1919, when she became a member of the faculty of the Bridgewater State Normal School in December of that year. She continued her teaching at Bridgewater until May, 1922, when she relinquished her work because of the illness which terminated two months later.

'21 (LL.B.). Edward H. St. Jacques of Waltham died in the Newton Hospital on Tuesday, August 29, of pneumonia. Mr. St. Jacques graduated from the School of Law, '21, and passed the examinations, but had to defer the beginning of his practice until he had reached the age of twenty-one. At the time of his death he was one of the youngest practising lawyers in the State.
