PERMANENTLY DAMAGED RIGHT HAND—BUT HE'S LUCKY

"I'm in an Ordnance Tank Maintenance Company. My job is to back the attack, supplying new equipment and repairing damaged combat vehicles. It is interesting but work. My job is Automotive Inspector. I check the engines and all the other parts concerning the moving of the vehicles. . . . Apart from an accident that resulted in a permanently damaged right hand, I've been lucky. A couple of near ones but no damage . . . Right now, believe it or not, I'm listening to the radio and its station W.BOS. Does that stir the heartstrings—you can guess.

John J. O'Donnell, B '34, '38 S/Sgt. From Muddy France

TRAINING TO BE RADIO OPERATOR

"I am now somewhere in Italy assigned to the 3rd carrier command. At the present time I am in training to become a radio operator. Since I have been overseas I have not met a single BU alumnus. I would like to talk to one very much but I just can't find them anywhere. I guess the only solution to the matter would be that some night I would go to some Italian town and roam the streets singing the Boston University Hymn. At least I could rouse interest that way. . . . I was a sophomore at CBA when, on February 11, 1943, Uncle Sam thought that he had a better spot for me. I was majoring in accounting and liked it very much. I have every intention of returning to Boston University when this terrible conflict is over."

William J. Beaulieu, B '45, Pfc.

INTENDS TO EVEN THE SCORE

"Left the States October 12. Since then I have been stationed for various periods of time in Scotland, England, France, Belgium, and now Holland. Met Charlie Guerrero E '42, in Scotland. He is a Transportation Corps officer. He had charge of the unloading of our transport. Spoke to Bob Amyouny, B '42, on the phone before I left the States. He should be in the E.T.O. by now. Mud over here is terrible! We eat, sleep, and work in it. Our Air Force is complete master of skies. While in Belgium and Holland, robot or buzz bombs went over us day and night. Asked for overseas duty after my college buddy and closest friend, Capt. William "Bill" Shoemaker, B '42, was killed in action on Guam. I intend to move more than even the score!"

Archie C. Smiles, B '42 2d Lieutenant—Infantry

IS DOING CLERICAL WORK AT HEADQUARTERS

"Several weeks ago I ran into Rus Gorman, B '40. He is in the same division. He is the only man that I have met from BU since I came overseas. Until recently I have been in Company I, 168th Infantry. At present I'm doing clerical work in this Headquarters."

Robert L. Clinton, B '40, Pfc.

LOOKING FOR HIS FRATERNITY BROTHERS

"I have attempted at various times to locate some of my fraternity brothers in England, France, and now Germany, but I can't even come so close as to find a Boston University man here. The information in your letters that I have received seem to indicate that they are all in the Pacific, Italy, or in the air, and in any case that is a long way from here, be it up or across."

Russell E. Mersereau, B '41, C.W.O.

FROM BONNIE SCOTLAND

"I was studying for my M.C.S. degree before joining the Navy. My plans are to return to the Graduate Division of the College of Business Administration right after my release in order to complete my studies for my master's degree. . . . Everything is going well with me here. The time has been passing quickly as we have been busy. I have not met any Boston University men, but I am keeping my eyes open."

Paul W. Needham, B '41, Lieut. (j.g.) U.S.N.R.

IS RECOVERING IN ENGLAND

"I finished the ASTP program at Fordham University in language study. Then when it broke up I found myself in Colorado in the Infantry. I came over with the 104th Division, saw a few big European cities, then went into the fray. Unfortunately I was wounded in Holland and evacuated to England where I am recuperating very nicely. My classmate, John MacMillan, is in the Infantry somewhere in Germany. Bornhoff and Mason are both second lieutenants in my Division. Let's hope we are back home soon."

Everett E. Hicks, B '43

AMONG THE FIRST TO REACH FRANCE

"My outfit was one of the first to reach France on D-Day and only suffered one casualty. During this time there were several scenes that will never be forgotten, and yet shall not be spoken of. The Jerrys were certainly caught 'flat-footed' and were in for a big surprise. Since then the Allies have made continued progress resulting in the Jerrys fighting in their own backyards. . . . Before coming to France I had spent quite some time in England and much of my stay there was enjoyed by visiting places of interest. My time is devoted to more serious doings here and I have not had the privilege of seeing places I'd like to. My time will probably come."

Frank Provinzano, E '42, T/S

IN CHARGE OF A TOWN IN GERMANY

"I was last in the States in October of last year as a battery commander. I left them at that time to go into Civil Affairs. I went to school at Yale for my job and went to England in February of this year. I was until June in England waiting for the Invasion. I arrived in France D plus 10 and with my C.A. detachment went to work. For the first month

"OLD BOSTON STUMP"— modernized for the new Boston
Merry Christmas
FROM INDIA

Friendly Christmas Greetings
FROM PHILIPPINE ISLANDS

May the friendliness of Christmas
Making everyone feel grand,
Keep on spreading, till it reaches
Every corner of the land—
May it find you in good spirits—
Feeling happy through and through—
And remain throughout the New Year,
Bringing added joy to you.

Merry Christmas

Christmas Joy
FROM FRANCE
The Name Above Every Name*

Boston University Christmas, 1944, Convocation Address

By President Daniel L. Marsh

In our pleasant memories of Christmas there are certain words that ring out like bells of sweet accord, and among these is the majestic announcement of the Prophet Isaiah: "For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given: and the government shall be upon his shoulder: and his name shall be called WONDERFUL, COUNSELLOR, THE MIGHTY GOD, THE EVERLASTING FATHER, THE PRINCE OF PEACE."

Notice that this sublime utterance starts with the word "for," indicating that what follows is the cause, motive, or occasion of the act or condition which precedes it. And yet how few persons know what the immediately preceding verse contains! The Prophet has just been talking about light and joy in Galilee, resulting from breaking the rod of the oppressor, and then comes this significant statement (as translated in the American Revised version): "All the armor of the armed man in the tumult, and the garments rolled in blood, shall be for burning, for fuel of fire."

What an appropriate text for a Christmas message in 1944! For too long now war with "the armor of the armed man and garments rolled in blood" — war has been wallowing its bloody way across humanity's heart, threatening to smash civilization itself to smithereens.

In this solemn mood of care, we enter the Christmas season; and while we are singing the Christmas carols in an attempt to refurbish our faith, lo! we hear the voice of the ancient Prophet falling through the pathless air upon our hearts, comforting us with the assurance that the implements of warfare, the garments rolled in blood, which certain persons in patriotic folly, or in exuberant and excessive zeal * have thought of for museum pieces, "shall be for burning, for fuel of fire."

And then the Prophet tells us that this devoutly-to-be-desired result shall be achieved because a Child has been born unto us. The names of the Child are piled one upon another, as so many rungs in a ladder on which our poor fallibility tries to climb up to a comprehension of the inconceivable. Hebrews of Biblical times frequently used the name as almost an equivalent of the personality or character or nature of the person named. They felt that there was a material, mysterious but essential connection between the person and his name. Let us therefore look at the names given to the One whose coming into the world we celebrate on Christmas Day.

He is called WONDERFUL and COUNSELLOR, or as some translations put it, WONDERFUL-COUNSELLOR. Anyone who has made use of our Department of Counseling at Boston University knows that a counsellor is one who gives guidance and advice in consultation. Counselling implies a plan. We can have the guidance of the WONDERFUL-COUNSELLOR when, by attitude of mind and condition of soul, we prepare ourselves to receive what He has to offer us. He has a plan which He announced as the kingdom of God. He breathed into this old phrase a new and wondrous significance. Before His time, the word "kingdom" was a geographical or imperial term. In His teaching, it became a heavenly claim, a sacred sovereignty of impulses, thoughts, and purposes. "My kingdom is not of this world," He declared. He came not to found a physical empire which would dispute the title of temporal rulers to their respective thrones, but to establish the sovereignty of great and holy principles whose royalty will survive the splendor of material pomp. His kingdom is a human, universal, spiritual emancipation. It is not independent of, or antagonistic to the natural world. It is an interpenetration. It is a vast scheme of spiritual law and impulse, an incessant and ever-increasing inspiration. It is not a transient fabrication; not a subordinate arrangement; not a human ambition. It is the kingdom of God. When we pray, "Thy kingdom come," we do not ask that some great square figure shall fall out of the heavens ready-made to fit a materialistic age. We pray rather for the domination of ideas, purposes, and intentions of the most lofty and sacred sort. "The government shall be upon his shoulder." "He rules the world by truth and grace."

*The Scriptural references for this Christmas message are Isaiah 9: 5-7; St. Matthew 1: 21, 23; Acts 4: 12; Philippians 2: 9-11.

He is called the MIGHTY GOD. What a vast reach in these words: "Unto us a child is born . . . the MIGHTY GOD"! He is mighty: He satisfies the religious instinct. But His might is not the might of wealth nor of armies and navies. His might is the might of the spirit. Napoleon Bonaparte was in a position to know something about the rude arbitrament of physical force, and in his closing years, when he had had time to weigh the matter, he declared: "There are just two forces in the world: the sword and the spirit, — and in the final analysis, the spirit will win every time."

His is the might of gentleness. Thus King David testified: "Thy gentleness has made me great."

His is the might of truth, and "truth is mighty above all things."* As Bryant says:

"Truth crushed to earth shall rise again,—
The eternal years of God are hers."

Poet Patmore is confident that "The truth is great and shall prevail." Reassuring in this day of stress and strain are the words of James Russell Lowell:

"Truth forever on the scaffold, Wrong forever on the throne,—
Yet that scaffold sways the future, and behind the dim unknown,
Standeth God within the shadow, keeping watch above his own."

His is the might of love, which is, as Wordsworth puts it: "Mightier far than strength of nerve and sinew, or the sway of magic potent over the sun and star." Charles Fletcher Dole says that "Good Will is the mightiest practical force in the universe."

His is the might of mercy, and as the immortal Shakespeare reminds us,

Mercy is "mightiest in the mightiest: it becomes
The throned monarch better than his crown."

The One whose birthday we celebrate is also called the EVERLASTING FATHER. Another translation makes it read "THE FATHER OF THE AGE TO COME." I like that appellation. It was in Israel's darkest days, when their country was desolate and their chief city was facing ruin, that the prophet, speaking in the name of God, promised them "a future of hope." That "future of hope" lures the human race ever onward and upward.

If Christ is the Father of the Age to Come, then that age must resemble Him in character. It will be an age when mental bewilderment will give place to enlightenment; when civic corruption, malfeasance and sinister politics will be unknown; when the corroding fret of the underfed shall be assuaged; when drunkenness and commercialized vice of every description shall be banished into oblivion; when economic injustice and social inequalities shall be straightened out; when prejudice and bigotry and intolerance of every type shall no longer motivate men; when nations shall settle their disputes by the exercise of reason, in the spirit of cooperation and goodwill, rather than by physical force and violence. He is "THE FATHER OF THE AGE TO COME"!

He is the PRINCE OF PEACE. The celestial announcer of the birth of Jesus, on the first Christmas, proclaimed: "On earth peace, good will toward men." Many times in the nineteen hundred years that have intervened, mankind has fondly hoped that this great ideal was about to be realized. Alas, how sadly has each succeeding generation been undeceived! Woodrow Wilson gave voice to humanity's hopes in the First World War, — only to see those hopes drooping and withered before he died. Prime Minister Churchill expressed mankind's present hopes when, in his Quebec broadcast of last August, he said that we would march forward to the end of the present military struggle when "the whole world may turn with hope, with science, with good sense and dearly bought experience, from war to lasting peace." He left out one thing (unless he meant to include it in "good sense"), and that is that there can be no lasting and universal peace except as we give unalloyed loyalty to the ideals of the Prince of Peace, — the ideals implied in yielding allegiance to the Mighty God and in loyalty to the kingdom of God.

We long for peace. But peace means more than longing for it; more than noble sentiments; more than high-sounding generalities. It means that we must direct and discipline our national life by the exercise of reason instead of by a boastful reliance upon physical force and violence. It means that the code of ethics which obtains among cultivated gentlemen must be applied to international relations. It means mutual courtesy, respect and good will.
It means that while we firmly insist upon our own rights, we recognize and respect the rights of others. Instead of being irritated by petty grievances and mob prejudices, we will aim to settle all disputes on the high plane of conference, reason and understanding.

It is not inappropriate that I should here give expression to a deep-seated conviction concerning a subject that is bound to shake this country from end to end in the not distant future. I refer to universal peace-time conscription for military purposes. I am sure that it would be a grievous blunder for the United States Congress, while we are at war, to enact legislation of a military character to govern us when peace shall have been re-established. Compulsory universal military training for peace time is one subject on which public opinion is not to be trusted while the country is enveloped in hectic war-hysterical atmosphere. Let us wait until there shall have been time for a revival of sanity after the war is over, and then there will not be so much danger of crystallizing fear and hysteria into laws that will contravene Christmas ideals and abrogate the very genius of American democracy.

One other name must be mentioned in a Christmas Convocational address, and that is JESUS: "Thou shalt call his name JESUS: for he shall save his people from their sins." JESUS means Saviour. When Mary was told to call her new born Son by this name, it was a happy augury. It is the New Testament form of the Old Testament Joshua, the name borne by the mighty warrior who led Israel through victory to possession of the Promised Land.

JESUS saves from sin by revealing it, condemning it, emphasizing God’s eternal hatred of it, making it hideous and loathsome in His all-revealing light. He brings deliverance from it — from its guilt, its defilement, its power. In saving us from sin, He saves us from ignorance and from misery. He cures the sickness of human nature, and heals the breach between God and man.

It was because of the Child who was born — the One who was given what Saint Paul calls "a name which is above every name" — that the ancient Prophet felt warranted in declaring that "all the armor of the armed man in the tumult, and the garments rolled in blood, shall be for burning, for fuel of fire."

Let me share with you a little poem I have written for this Christmas as a summary of this message. I call it "An 'Adeste Fideles' For War Time." It may be sung to an Eighteenth Century Melody called "Portuguese Hymn" which everybody at Christmas time knows by the name of "Adeste Fideles." This is my Christmas prayer for 1944:

O come, faithful Jesus, wonderful and mighty, O come Thou, O come Thou, to war-torn hearts. Come and redeem us from war's awful thraldom. Henceforth let war unknown be; Let sinful men atone Thee; Bring selfish men to own Thee, Prince of Peace.

O come, faithful Saviour, Counsellor dynamic, O save us! O guide us to righteous peace. Turn minds of men from all the ways of evil. Give peace, we do implore Thee; Bid strife to cease before Thee; Let all men now adore Thee, Prince of Peace.

The Musketeers

In March, 1944, we carried a story of a group of seven Boston University men who had started Berlin Bound and kept together until only three were left. Here we have another group of three out of five who started together.

This should be entitled "And Then There Were Three," I guess. Away back in August, 1941, a stalwart band of five green second and first lieutenants set out from Bean Town to "fight the wars" in Louisiana. Myself of B’35 (Major Stewart A. Colpitts, Jr.,), Windsor S. Carpenter, ’38, John Quinn, ’38, John Chisholm, ’38, and Ray Forte, ’38. It’s a far cry from there to a recent combat area in New Guinea by way of Camp Blanding, Camp Shelby, Fort Ord, New Zealand, New Caledonia, Guadalcanal, the Russell Islands, Munda and thence to here by way of New Zealand again. We lost John Chisholm and Ray Forte away back in the States and assume they are still carrying forward the name and fame of old B. U. in some other theatre. As for ourselves, Captains Quinn and Carpenter are vying for top honors in the Division as Adjutants in the 2d and 3d Battalions, respectively, 103d Infantry. I am Executive Officer of the 3d Battalion and probably the bane of Carpenter’s existence. We were very pleased to meet along the way one of our mentors and friends, Colonel Mark E. Smith, Jr., C. O. Service Command at Guadalcanal. He has a host of pupils who will remember him as one of their most brilliant instructors back in those good old days. We none of us are much decorated except for campaign stars and service stripes, and will all settle for a Victory Medal and discharge papers any day. No kidding, we’re beginning to be afraid we will run out of sleeve for those service stripes. The motto of our regiment is "To The Last Man," and from the way this rotation is going we are about to draw straws.
Congratulations are due the Boston University Women’s Council for their successful bazaar which was held in the Charles Hayden Auditorium on December 1. Their goal of $5000 will be met when all returns are in. There were many booths, one of the most attractive being devoted to books. The authors who were present to autograph their volumes were President Marsh, "The American Canon"; Dean Earl Marlett, "Lands Away"; Dr. William L. Stidger, "There are Sermons in Stories" and "More Sermons in Stories"; John Holmes, "Map of My Country" and "Along the Row"; Dahl, "What — More Dahl"; Marjorie Mills, "Cooking on a Ration"; Virginia Arville Kenny, "Convent Boarding School"; Olive Floyd, "Dorothy in Mexico"; Esther Forbes, "Johnny Tremain"; Sara Ware Basset, "Heart’s Heaven"; Emilie Loring, "Keepers of the Faith"; Mary Frances Doner, "O Distant Star"; Louise Dyer Harris, MRS. GEORGE F. WRIGHT, Co-Chairman
MRS. EVERTT O. FISK, Co-Chairman
MRS. ATLEE L. PERCY, General Chairman

"More Pen Grins." - General chairmen of the Bazaar were Mrs. Atlee Lane Percy, and Mrs. James R. Houghton. Mrs. Everett O. Fisk and Mrs. George F. Wright were honorary chairmen. Mrs. William F. Rogers was secretary; Mrs. Howard W. Selby and Mrs. Lewis O. Hartman, treasurers. The Publicity committee consisted of Miss Carolyn M. Gerrish, chairman, Mrs. Daniel L. Marsh and Mrs. Edward R. Collier.
"Friends of The Library"

Outside it was a dreary afternoon, but indoors everything was perfect. "Friends of the Library of the College of Liberal Arts" turned out in large numbers on October 14, in appreciation of a meeting, the first of the year, at the home of Professor and Mrs. Samuel M. Waxman, where Mrs. Waxman — Bashka Paef — gave a lecture demonstration on modeling a head.

Professor Robert E. Moody, presiding, made preliminaries brief, that the demonstration might have the benefit of the afternoon light.

When Mrs. Waxman was introduced, she asked Professor Herbert B. Myron if he would come forward and serve as model. With a delightful combination of diffidence and courtesy, he complied and took the indicated seat. This revolved, in order that the head might be seen in profile from all angles. Mrs. Waxman, talking and answering questions as she worked, explained that she was using an imported clay that kept its plasticity indefinitely and that she always aimed principally at bringing out character. Under her skilful handling, and to the intense enjoyment of the onlookers, the clay was gradually shaped into a striking likeness of the sitter.

Later a visit to the studio on the floor above gave the Friends an opportunity to see more of the work through which Bashka Paef has won a high place among modern sculptors. Around the tea table there was a chance to meet acquaintances old and new, and to exchange comments on art and libraries. Altogether the afternoon was a refreshing interlude between thoughts of a world at war.

while the front on Normandy was so stable I organized and administered refugee camps to move people away from the front lines. When things broke, my detachment received two assignments as Civil Affairs to re-establish government agencies in French counties and aid our Armies to get through without having to stop to control the populace. Continued on with the Army into Belgium and performed two more such missions in that country, and find myself now the Military Government Officer in charge of a town in Germany, trying to set up non-Nazi government to run the town and control the people . . . I have been constantly on the go since arriving on the continent and am enjoying my experience but like all good soldiers I look forward to the end of the war, and a return to the homeland of peace and tranquility."

IN THE ETO FOR TWELVE MONTHS

"I was selected by my friends and neighbors to join the Army in January, 1943. After completing basic training at Camp Pickett, Virginia, I was sent to Fort Benjamin Harrison for technician study and training. Qualified as a surgical technician, I was sent overseas. Soon after landing I found out that they were apparently well supplied with trained men, as I was re-classified as a basic private and assigned to the medical section of an infantry battalion. Two months after assignment I was made assistant section leader and given the rank of corporal. Training continued for the next several months in Northern Ireland until the time arrived for departure to the scene of battle. I suffered an injury to my left eye necessitating confinement to a hospital for some time. Subsequently, I was assigned to my present organization which is non-combatant. I have been in the ETO for the past twelve months . . . I have not had the pleasure of meeting any alumni of the University in my travels."

IN HIS THIRD CAMPAIGN

"I am in the midst of my third campaign with the 7th Division. First was Aleutians, then the Marshalls, and now the Philippines. This last was the roughest. Battle is still going nicely. I certainly miss old BU and the football games. The natives here know how to play but don’t enjoy that much."

College of Business Administration

Recognition by the Massachusetts Society of Certified Public Accountants of his ability as an educator and a practicing public accountant has come to Professor Raymond L. Mannix, of the Department of Accounting, through his selection as Chairman of the organization's Committee on Education. The function of the committee is to direct the educational program of the society.

Lieutenant Colonel Leo Banks was the speaker at an assembly held in the Hayden Memorial, Thursday, December 7. Colonel Banks, with the topic, "Youth," brought to his audience a remarkable, keen perception of the relations existing between the veteran and the community. He advocated the institution of universal military service laws and asserted that the thought that no other wars would follow this one was an example of failure to face facts, it being his contention that we must recognize that wars will be unavoidable as long as human beings exist. Colonel Banks served during the last World War and again in the current conflict until he was disabled by premature explosion of a mortar. He is now engaged in his pre-war activity, instruction in military training, physical fitness and health education, in the Boston Public School System. Varis Giguere, a veteran in attendance at CBA through the rehabilitation plan of the Veterans Bureau, gave a very moving recital of conditions at Pearl Harbor before and after the Japanese perpetrated their sneak attack.

The Veterans Club of CBA sponsored the assembly and Leo F. Ford, president of the Club, headed the committee in charge.

Bernard DeVoto, editor of "Easy Chair" in Harper's Magazine, spoke on "Book Censorship" before the members of Etaoin Shrdlu, all-girl journalism society, Thursday, November 30. Especially interesting were the speaker's analyses of many current books which have been widely discussed.

School of Theology

Dean Marlatt was one of the speakers at the Conference of the Religious Education Section of the Methodist Board of Education held at Cincinnati, November 27-28. He spoke on "Philosophical Bases for Religious Education in the Post-War World". Representatives of all leading seminaries in the United States were present and laid plans for the programs of Religious Education in the years following the present global war.

School of Social Work

Great interest is expected in a new course to be added next semester on social work after the war. The course is entitled Counseling with Returning Servicemen, and includes the following special lecturers.

Felix Deutsch, M.D. — Readjustment of the Normal Man; Readjustment of the Injured Man; Readjustment of the Neurotic Man.

George S. Stevenson, M.D. — Mental Hygiene Problems.

Maurice P. Freedlander — Resources of Veterans Administration.

Charles A. McCarthy — Job Counseling; Occupational Information.

Helen Spalding — Clinical Psychiatric Social Work.

Many of our graduates who are now in the service could make a good contribution to this course because of their experience in personnel and counseling in the service.

At the Massachusetts Conference of Social Work held in Boston November 27 to 30, Sgt. Roland D. Elderkin, M.S. in S.S. 1941, presented a paper on Case Work in a Military Setting. From the Point of View of a Psychiatric Social Worker at-an Army Camp. Sergeant Elderkin is stationed at the Convalescent Hospital, Lovell General Hospital, Fort Devens.

The Dean calls attention to the death on November 10 of Mrs. James Jackson Storrow, Senior, who was one of the school's best friends. In 1942 Mrs. Storrow gave us a well-timed scholarship grant of five thousand dollars which enabled us to meet the shock of decreased enrollment from men inducted into the armed forces. It was a most important factor in saving the school from a crippling blow and it enabled us to regain the enrollment we had before the war.

Dean Lucy Jenkins Franklin

Was honored by the Women Graduates' Club on the twentieth anniversary of her coming to Boston University as Dean of Women. High tribute was paid her and she was presented with a dinner purse and check in grateful appreciation.

"Sargenta"

At C.P.E.S. two pre-holiday events of note took place, both of which included a large number of members of the college and their guests.

The fourth annual conference of supervisors, teachers, administrators and senior students was held November 30 at Lennox Hall. This yearly event is conducted by the senior class to aid in clarifying the many professional problems which beset student teachers. Attendance at these dinner meetings has steadily increased and it was gratifying to welcome among the guests Mr. Stacy Bragdon of the Wellesley High School, Mr. John Matthews of the Malden High School and Mr. Samuel Grover of the Winchester High School.

The panel speakers included Miss Dorothy Ryan of Malden, Miss Mary Sargent of Melrose, Miss Helene Breivogel of Newton, Mr. James Sullivan, Supervisor at Dedham, and Mr. Richard Schmoyer, Director of Physical Education at Lynn.

Among the topics discussed were programming, the importance of rhythmic activities, policies in administration, problems of a typical children in relation to programming, etc. Many helpful suggestions were made and both col-

Life of a WAC Abroad

Corporal Justine V. Inglis, A'43, has written from the Headquarters, Far East Air Forces, to tell us a bit about the life of a WAC overseas. She cautions us: "Keep the doors of Boston University open wide as we'll all be home soon, and then to hold the best reunion ever!"

"As you can see I am in the service of our country — seventeen months so far. I was in service a year before coming overseas. We left the States on June 25, and landed, of all places, in Brisbane, Australia. While there a few of us were picked for the Air Corps — 3rd Air Corps. We stayed on an airfield working in town, commuting by means of G. I. buses. Brisbane is quite a city. It is a typically war-weary one. Although it has never been bombed, it has been ruined by the G. I.'s. We (WACs) had a hard job getting used to the money. Everything was very reasonable, but our money disappeared just as fast. Steak dinners at forty-five cents American money were super. We really enjoyed it.

"It ended all too soon, and we left by Coronado Flying Boat for New Guinea. We all had fears about the place, but as usual our fears were without foundation. It really isn't too bad here. The weather is always the same — hot. It usually rains at least once a day. The country is really beautiful, — lakes, mountains, beautiful beaches.

"We live in tents, four to a tent. We are allowed to fix them up any way we like. The G. I. Joes made us chairs, tables, foot lockers, cupboards and everything. It really isn't too bad. The food isn't so good, a lot of dehydrated food, and bully beef and salmon galore. I've lost about fifteen good pounds over here.

"We are all working hard — six days a week, three nights and one full day off. I am in charge of the file section with four girls working with me. We really put out the work. Sometimes I feel as if our office is winning the war alone. I am in the A-1 section. Officers Section, deal with nothing but officers and information pertaining to them. It is all very interesting. I don't use much of my college knowledge here, unless it's handling people — which I am quite good at by now.

"All in all, this Army life is O.K. I've really enjoyed every moment of it — even New Guinea and mosquitoes. "We lack nothing along the amusement line. The boys have built Non-Com clubs and give us dances and parties every week. Always something to do on your nights off. Swimming is one of the best amusements here. We go every chance we get. "Keep the doors of Boston University open wide as we'll all be home soon, and then to hold the best reunion ever !! Keep up the B. U. spirit."

Bound for Tournament

Eleven girls from C.P.E.S. participated in the annual Northeastern Women's Hockey Tournament, Albany, New York, on November 18. Four of the girls were members of the All-Boston Hockey first team and the other students were on the All-Boston Reserve list.

Third Row: Eileen O'Reilly, Virginia Crook.
Back: Marion Thompson.

*Chosen a member of the first team for Boston; also made the Northeastern Reserve.
An Alumnus Honored

A Convocation for the conferring of Honorary Degrees was called by University of Toronto on Tuesday evening, November twenty-first. Among the six candidates for the Doctor of Laws degree (honoris causa), was a distinguished graduate of B.U., C.L.A., JOHN CALVIN FERGUSON, who has already received three degrees from his Alma Mater, A.B., Ph.D., and LL.D. The list of recipients on this occasion included His Excellency the Honorable Ray Atherton, Ambassador to Canada from Washington; Dr. Winifred Clara Cullis, from the University of London; Dr. John R. Mott of Y.M.C.A. fame; Senator George Wharton Peppu of Philadelphia, and the Ambassador from Belgium. It was a splendid and very colorful scene, the platform of the great convention Hall filled with men and women in cap and gown from the University, professors from the different colleges and schools, and other notables.

In the centre sat the Chancellor, Dr. H. J. Cody. At his right hand the Lieutenant Governor of Ontario, at his left sat the Principal of the University College. The Doctor’s robe is of scarlet wool, with a matching pink silk sleeve, the hoods being of the same gorgeous color, so that the effect of the candidates for the LL.D. as they sat in the front line, as well as many of those in the high seats, was one of great splendor and magnificence.

The exercises differed somewhat from similar convocations in the States. The procession was headed by a Professor bearing the mace. As soon as all had taken their places, the audience stood to sing God Save the King, The Star Spangled Banner, and The Canadian National Hymn. The Chancellor then proceeded to name the candidates, each one presented by a Dean or some other distinguished man. This presentation was a long carefully written and read citation in which the candidate’s qualifications for the honor, whether scholastic, civic, educational or religious, were given in full. At the close of this reading each one in turn was greeted by the Chancellor in a few chosen words with a handclasp, and told to inscribe his name in the “Golden Book,” which contains the names of all previous degrees given by the University. Dr. Ferguson, who was honored as “Advisor to the Executive Yuan of the National Government of China,” was presented by Bishop White, Director of the School of Chinese Studies. After the citations and the bestowing of the hoods, each Doctor made a speech of five or ten minutes in length. These speeches were very individual and differed greatly in import and interest. The Procession was again formed and left the Hall. Before the Convocation there were dinners given by Chancellor and Mrs. Cody for the distinguished men and their ladies. And last of all was a Reception held in the House of Parliament, given by the Lieutenant Governor and Mrs. Albert Matthews. This, too, was a splendid and very British occasion. Dr. Ferguson and C.L.A. are to be congratulated on this signal honor from the University of Toronto.

College of Liberal Arts Class Agents Meet

Class Agents for the College of Liberal Arts met at the Woman’s Building on November 30. DEAN RALPH W. TAYLOR spoke of the inadequacy of the old “688.” All were pleased to hear about the beautiful million-dollar building on the planning boards, which will be the second on the Charles River campus.
The Boston Contest

At the time of the Founders' Day celebration last March a contest was announced, the purpose of which was "to develop citizen interest and citizen participation in a forward looking and practical master program designed to promote the sound growth and prosperity of the Metropolitan Area." The Boston Society of Architects conceived the idea and asked Boston University to conduct it. Its sponsors included Governor Saltonstall, Mayor Tobin, Boston Society of Architects, Boston Chamber of Commerce, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Harvard University.

On December 6 the awards were made. The group winning the first prize of $5000 was from Harvard and was headed by Carl J. Friedrich, Professor of Government. The second prize of $2000 went to a team of business and professional men; and a special third prize was given to eleven Boston University faculty members for a manuscript planning for a "Faneuil Hall City" in the old Faneuil district, proposing a reproduction of old Boston on a scale similar to that of Virginia's Williamsburg. Prizes of $100 went to nine persons submitting plans of prize-winning value.

Message to Servicemen

Taken from "The College Item," College of Liberal Arts

Down on Cape Cod one summer day I stood beside the entrance of my busiest hive and watched the bees come and go. Young bees, as usual, were moving about on the alighting board as guards. Presently I saw a burly bumblebee winging up against the breeze that had brought the fragrance of new honey. One of the guards darted to meet him in the air. They grappled for an instant. Then the bumblebee turned back in zigzag flight. The guard bee flew heavily to the alighting board, rolled sidewise, gropped a bit, then lay quiet. The other guards took no notice of the tragedy, the foraging workers came and went as if nothing had happened. In a moment the wind had blown the dead bee off the board into the grass, and the incident was closed: except, yes, except that no talk of "instinct" and "automatic reflexes" will ever convince me that this young guard of the hive had no feeling for the swarm and no vague understanding of what bee colonies with honey and brood in keeping expect of door guards.

It was an instance of loyalty on low level, but it brings home the fact that there are actions so good, through and through, that, no matter where, why, by whom they come to pass, we feel their value and the urge of their example. A good action done is good and stays good, however badly it may have been entangled with evil. The resolute courage of Joan of Arc, in a very net of hate and cruelty at Rouen, outshone the flames of her burning.

See how this truth holds in the world-wide evil we call disease. Sickness means inconvenience, the stab or grind of pain, dependence on others' care, anxiety, despondency, delirium, dreaded or welcome death. Could anything be worse? Certainly: just this same devastation by disease, were there no patience in the sufferer, no faithfulness in the nurse, no knowledge and skill in the physician, no benevolence to found hospitals, no honesty and devotion in laboratories for medical research. And is not a sick man or a surgeon the better for thinking much about the good that disease calls into play?

Here is the practical point in this letter to our men and women in the service. You are finding your chance for self-management cut down more than you like; you are having experiences you will later try to smother from memory. Evil in all the forms that war brings is as close to you as the air. So what? In all the evil that war brings, look for the generous and worthy action. You will be stronger, if you keep thinking of the good that glimmers everywhere, even in the hell of war.

Dean Emeritus
The R.O.T.C. Unit was established in Boston University in 1920. From that time until the United States entered World War II, thirty commissioned officers from the United States Army had been assigned to duty in the unit. One of these officers has attained the rank of Major General, and at least seven others have attained the rank of Brigadier General.

Paul W. Baade, the first commanding officer of the R.O.T.C., came to Boston University in 1920 as a Captain and left in 1924 as a Major. He is now a Major General with Patton’s Army in France.

The following have held the rank of Brigadier General and some of them may have been promoted to a higher rank; their ranks and length of service in Boston University are indicated:

Benjamin G. Ferris, Major in 1921 and 1922.
George A. Davis, Captain from 1921 to 1925.
Arnold J. Funk, Captain from 1925 to 1929. He was stationed in the Philippines and has been reported a prisoner of war.
Hugh T. Mayberry, Captain in 1926 and 1927.
William H. Wilbur, commanding officer of the unit from 1928 to 1931. The Congressional Medal of Honor was presented to Brigadier General Wilbur by President Roosevelt in the presence of Prime Minister Churchill, Vice Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten, General George C. Marshall, Admiral Ernest J. King, Lt. General George Patton, Jr., and others “for conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity in action above and beyond the call of duty”—for his part in the landings on French Morocco.

Horace O. Cushman, Captain from 1929 to 1931.
Henning Linden, Major from 1939 to 1941.

A complete check of present ranks of all the Army officers assigned to the R.O.T.C. will be announced later but the above list indicates the caliber of officers selected for the Boston University Unit.

Dr. Walter L. Nathan, former assistant professor of Fine Arts at the College of Liberal Arts and School of Theology, has recently sent from Luxembourg two books as his gift to the College Library: “Japan-Handbuch”, edited by M. Remming, and “Die deutschen Stamme”, by Christoph Obermüller. He inscribed them as “captured” from a German office in Luxembourg, September, 1944.”

Dr. Nathan is now working with the Propaganda Department of the Office of War Information and holds a temporary rank as captain in the United States Army. His work has been interviewing German prisoners of war and preparing and issuing broadcasts directed to Germany. He is now doing a daily fifteen-minute broadcast in the form of a little play based on “captured” material—letters, diaries, and the like—and on conversations with German prisoners. He has also secured a recording of the proceedings at the surrender of General Elster and his army of 19,000 men, who tried vainly to escape from Normandy back to Germany.
An Inspiring Career

When the Rev. Dr. Moses R. Lovell, A’17, died on September 22, The Board of Deacons of The Cadman Memorial Church published an “In Memoriam” from which we are privileged to quote. We regret that space will not permit us to print the tribute in full.

"It is with profound personal sorrow that we make this record of the death of our beloved pastor, Moses Richardson Lovell, at his Brooklyn home in the afternoon of September 22, 1944. His friendship, counsel and preaching had exerted deep and enlightening influence on the lives of men, women and children in so many walks and conditions of life and in so many places, that his loss is mourned far beyond the boundaries of our church and parish. Letters came to Mrs. Lovell almost spontaneously after her husband’s death from his great circle of friends, many of whom were clergymen. Rabbis, priests and ministers all felt that he belonged to a wide community; they admired and loved him and enjoyed his splendid vigor and the keen quality of his mind and his capacity for warm and enduring friendship. One rabbi wrote that our pastor reminded him of those words of Tagore’s, ‘If one would find a soul, let him shine outwardly like the flame of a lamp. . .’

". . . In 1938 he succeeded Dr. S. Parkes Cadman as minister of the Central Congregational Church of Brooklyn and when that church united with the Clinton Avenue Congregational Church and the Simpson Methodist Church to form The Cadman Memorial Church he was chosen its pastor and served from January 1, 1943, to September 22, 1944. On that day at the peak of his powers and almost in the twinkling of an eye he was summoned to his heavenly home.

"His own radiantely happy home life was blessed by his devoted wife, a staunch helper in all he did, and by his two loveable children. He wished others to enjoy ideal marriages also and this generous impulse caused him to set up a marriage clinic soon after he came to Central Church. During the months the course was carried on, experts sought to enlighten and guide the scores who came on Sunday afternoons so that they too might learn to make their marriages successful and happy.

". . . In 1938 in Washington Dr. Lovell set up as his contribution to modern mind-studying and soul-serving the Washington Life Adjustment Center which still continues its work. To many people in Washington, Waterbury and Holyoke, especially those who sought to approach intellectually the solution of life’s steady stream of problems, Dr. Lovell was one of their most inspiring influences. When he came to Brooklyn it was characteristic of him that he should promptly found in 1939 the Brooklyn Life Adjustment Center to aid our drifting population. In this complex and confusing epoch he sought to make available to those in need the discoveries of science so that they might achieve the inner peace of the good life. The work started with three psychiatrists; now there are seven working under the direction of Dr. Clarence H. Bellinger who conduct a mental hygiene clinic for adults and older adolescents which is both free and nonsectarian. The patients are Jews, Catholics and Protestants in almost equal numbers who are helped to recover from mental illness, to retain profitable employment, to support their families and to function as useful citizens. For many, treatment in a mental hospital has thus been avoided, but those who need such care have been helped to get it. Patients needing spiritual advice were directed by the executive director of the Center to Dr. Lovell who later referred them to the psychiatrists. Dr. Lovell was keenly interested in this fine, practical work, led raising the money needed for it and rallied to its support a fine committee of public spirited sponsors. During the twelve months prior to his death 896 patients sought the aid of the clinic. Our church building provides the Life Adjustment Center with a cheerful setting. The doctors all give their services and as it is open only at night employed patients can come without embarrassment or loss of pay. This practical ministry was inspired through all its five years of operation by Dr. Lovell’s vital, living presence . . .

"Each officer and member of our church and every friend will doubtless cherish some personal memory of our pastor. A hearty handclasp, a warm smile, some word of blessing or of prayer, some intimate inspiration or uplift meant only for you, or you, or you. . . This church owes much — perhaps more than it now realizes — to Dr. Lovell, it cherishes his memory with gratitude and affection and God helping us will gallantly carry on the work our lost leader so nobly advanced.”

College supervisors, Miss Emily Hartman and Miss Elise Neben, felt that the evening had been most profitable to all and especially to the senior student teachers.

"Sargenta," the formal promenade, looked forward to for many weeks, was held December 2 in the two college gymnasiums. About two hundred couples enjoyed this lovely traditional dance. Decorations of chrysanthemums and greens added to the background of black and silver and rose and gold curtains, which made a pageant of lovely evening gowns and uniforms.

The reception began at nine o'clock and at eleven, three fashion judges chose "Miss Sargenta" as queen. She proved to be Jane Eaton, senior, who was crowned at midnight by Dean Walke. Favors for all students were leather picture frames. For the seniors these were to be filled later from pictures taken of each couple that evening.

At twelve midnight, the dancing ceased. Ruby Newman and his orchestra continued to furnish music until one o'clock, during which time refreshments were served.

It is memories such as these which make up the social life of the college and this "Sargenta" will linger long in the thoughts of those who attended and so became a part of this most attractive event.

On December 9 the annual Christmas party was given by the college Y.W.C.A. for settlement house children. The Tumblers Club entertained with many stunts and Santa Claus presented everyone with an appropriate gift.

The days before the holidays began were filled with overflowing with exams, papers to be finished and personal needs to be looked after, but the Christmas Assembly brought everyone together again. The ceremonies were simple. Included was the Hanging of the Greens, participated in by the Presidents of the Classes, Organizations and Clubs. The lighting of the Christmas tree and the hanging of the wreaths and garlands made a beautiful prelude to the candlelight processional of Glee Club singers in red capes approaching a tableau of the Madonna surrounded by angelic cherubs. Carol singing, Christmas poems, a message from Dean Walke and the Ave Maria sung by Jane Thomson while the audience gazed reverently at a second beautiful tableau of the Madonna and the Babe in the Manger, completed the program.

The day of homecoming came almost immediately and with a volley of goodbyes, Merry Christmases, bags and wraps the college settled down to the quiet care of the few who keep the watch.

Boston University Queens

During the first week of December three queens were crowned in as many contests at Boston University. Jane Eaton, '45, was chosen by the judges at the CPES formal to take the title, "Miss Sargenta." The ceremony took place on December 2 at the annual Sargenta Promenade, in the college gymnasium. Miss Eaton was selected from the members of the senior class of the college on the basis of personality, poise, and attractiveness. The judges were Margaret Fitzhugh Browne, portrait painter; Muriel Cox, director, Chamberlain School; Madelyn Grigsby, head of costuming, Garland School.

The typical College of Liberal Arts girl is selected annually by the officers of Gamma Delta. In addition to personality and poise, she is rated on extra curricular activities and her contribution to Gamma Delta and to Boston University. On December 1 at the formal banquet in Jacob Sleeper Hall, Doris Stovold, A'45, was named "Miss Gamma Delta."

In our photograph she is being congratulated by Hope Whiting, Gamma Delta president (at right).

In pre-war days the Military Ball was an annual event much anticipated in undergraduate circles. When war conditions brought about a change in student activities, the Scarlet Key Ball was substituted. This year on December 9 at their second annual event, Gertrude Bugler, College of Liberal Arts junior, was made "Scarlet Key Queen." She was selected by a committee of four faculty judges.

"The Somerville Journal" of recent date has printed the following story about Staff Sergeant Dexter H. Locke, B'42, who was decorated with the Silver Star for his feat in assisting in the smashing of a German radar station.

A U. S. TROOP CARRIER BASE, EUROPEAN THEATER OF OPERATIONS — It has been announced that Staff Sergeant Dexter H. Locke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Locke of 30 Garrison avenue, West Somerville, has been awarded the Silver Star for meritorious performance of duty in a mission of great importance.

Sergeant Locke was cited and awarded the Silver Star for his participation in the invasion and capture of the island of Ventotene. This was an assignment that was doubly dangerous for Sergeant Locke as, while he was a radio operator on one of the Troop Carriers’ C-47 “Skytrains,” this was a seaborne invasion.

The island itself seemed insignificant as it was both small and had only a garrison of German defenders. In reality however, it was one of the most efficient radar stations in the Mediterranean and had to be knocked out if successful air and sea operations were to be continued. Secondly, it was thought that the radar equipment being used was of a new and highly efficient type. It was because of the radar equipment that Sergeant Locke was chosen to go on the invasion.

Leaving from a port on the Sicilian coast, the task force proceeded to its objective. After a few hours shelling by the Navy, a landing party of U. S. Paratroops, Sergeant Locke, and six more operators, set out for shore. The defending garrison thought the party was much larger than it was and without taking time to smash their equipment, gather their personal belongings, or even complete the task they had been engaged in when the assault begun, most had evacuated the island. The few found on the island were quickly dealt with and research operations were begun immediately on the radar station. All escort, except a handfull of Paratroops left the island, and for many days Sergeant Locke and his party worked in the greatest of secrecy, never knowing what minute might bring a renewed assault by the enemy. At last, their mission completed, they were relieved.

In addition to the Silver Star, Sergeant Locke has been awarded the Air Medal, with two Oak Leaf Clusters for his meritorious achievements while participating in aerial combat flight. These he won for his participation in three invasions, Sicily, Italy, and France. Recently, he participated in the invasion of Holland. Also, he wears the European-Middle East-African Campaign Ribbon, with three Battle Stars, a star each for Sicily, Italy, and France.

Sergeant Locke is a first operator on one of Troop Carrier Forces’ aircraft. He has been with his unit since many months before it was assigned to overseas duty.

President Marsh’s Annual Report as printed in the November BOSTONIAN has called forth much favorable comment from within and without the University. "The Christian Science Monitor" considered the Boston University post-war planning of sufficient importance and general interest to devote space on December 9 to the following:

B. U. PLANNING NEW BUILDINGS TO MEET CALL

By W. Clifford Harvey
Staff Writer of The Christian Science Monitor

Anticipating an immediate, post-war resurgence in education effecting "the highest college and university student enrollments in history," Dr. Daniel L. Marsh, President of Boston University, today disclosed preparations by the University to build two new structures on the institution’s Commonwealth Avenue campus just as soon as materials are available after the war.

Enlarging upon his annual report published in the University’s alumni magazine just off the press, President Marsh disclosed that action had been started to raise $1,000,000 for a new Liberal Arts building and an additional $500,000 for a modern Natural Science building to be erected alongside the Charles Hayden Memorial building on Commonwealth Avenue. The latter houses the College of Business Administration.

Thus the war, bringing a heavy enrollment of women students to the already overcrowed Boston University branches in the Copley Square district and the promise of extra heavy male enrollments when the "boys" come home, has stirred University heads into pushing forward long-term plans for developing a modern campus on the banks of the Charles River.

No. 1 Unemployment Relief

Since education undoubtedly will obtain priority rights on post-war construction, President Marsh foresaw the Boston University buildings as post-war projects number one for the relief of unemployment in Greater Boston. At the same time, he said that the new construction was dictated by necessity, due to a growing student housing crisis in the Copley Square section "rather than by dreams of postwar planners."

Under the postwar building project, the present College of Liberal Arts at the corner of Boylston and Exeter Streets would be moved into its own building on the Charles, adjoining the Hayden Memorial which was dedicated in 1939 as a nucleus for a far-flung plan of future expansion. Science classes which are now scattered throughout the University’s 11 different schools would be concentrated within a single building on the Charles River site.

Postwar building plans were based on sound studies of the prospective rush of war veterans back to classrooms, and the assumption that most of the heavy percentage of female wartime enrollments in the University would hold up after the war. There are some estimates that the 1,500,000 student enrollment in the nation’s institutions of higher learning in 1940, would double, and even triple after the war, although Dr. Marsh was inclined to be more conservative. He did agree, however, that education is in for vast changes and heavy expansion after the war, that the present Liberal Arts School obtained in 1905 by the University "has long since served its purposes and is now outmoded" and that exclusive of the veterans (Continued on Page Twenty-Nine)

On June 19 HAROLD H. CRITCHLOW, Theo, and Mrs. Critchlow will celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary. They are living in Greenport, Long Island, New York, to be near their son and his family. Mr. Critchlow, who will be eighty years old in February, retired from the conference in 1952. He says, "Give my best to the boys.'

THOMAS WILLARD SPROWSL, Theo, died October 31 at his home in Blackshear, Georgia. After his graduation from Boston University, he transferred to the Wisconsin Anti-Saloon League. In 1915, he became assistant director of the Hermon Beardsley Butler Memorial, a Christian Community Center in Chicago, and after twenty-two years here he retired to his home farm in Georgia, where he continued to render service—in the Church and in the community—until his sudden death from a heart attack. He is survived by his wife and a son.

PAULINE CLOUES, of Melrose Highlands, has passed the bar examination, having received her LL.B. degree from the Portia Law School.

"My work is fascinating, for I am private secretary to a patent attorney. If variety is the spice of life, for me there's no shortage of spice, since I write about such things as improved designs for diapers and highchairs, filters and engines, tools and pneumatic presses, etc., never knowing from day to day what will be the chosen topic. Since passing the bar, I have hung out my shingle, and put out the welcome mat before my 'law office,' so that I manage to keep myself pretty well occupied."

"My chief hobby is that of collecting dolls, of which I now have about sixty ranging from those over a hundred years old to modern ones. Some of the most interesting include Dirty Girtty who actually came from Bizerte, and Lucia, who came from Sicily, both having survived the hazards of warfare. At the other extreme, there are Mary Todd, who is about one hundred twenty-five years of age, of wood and kid, and a Staffordshire China Lady, Julie Barrie, who boasts of an equal age."

Mrs. Robert Carlyn (ETHEL GOLDBERG) of Chelsea is an engineering aide in the Planning Department at the Boston Navy Yard while Lieutenant Carlyn is serving with the Army Air Forces. Radio Engineering is Mrs. Carlyn's hobby.

Mrs. Curry A. Long, Jr., (EMILIE ALMA PENEAUX), of Lynn, states "housewife and mother" as her occupation. "There is not much time now for hobbies with two active youngsters, but I reckon my special interest is waiting for my husband to return from war." Anna is thirteen months old; the baby is named Curry Andrew, Captain Curry Long, Jr., is in the Air Corps.

Mrs. Norman F. Barnes (CAROLYN L. FROST), of Schenectady, New York, has a son, Teddy. He is three years old.

Boston University in the News

who will return to school and the anticipated vast influx of new civilian students, Boston University already is overcrowded.

As a conservative estimate President Marsh believed that Boston University's normal enrollment of 10,000 would be pushed up by at least one third after the war. And if the University could erect even one new building by January, 1946, he said, "the crisis we face in our physical plant requirements could be averted."

While some authorities are attempting to base tests as to what veterans will do after the war upon what the discharged veterans are doing now, Dr. Marsh pointed out that there can be no reliable parallels drawn between the discharged and the demobilized veteran. The discharged veteran, he said enters a business field of abundant jobs and wartime wages, while the demobilized veteran will be released under conditions of high competition for jobs, declining demands for workers and greater uncertainties concerning the future.

The University head deplored as a possible damper upon education's postwar promise the proposals for one year's compulsory military training for all youths reaching the age of 18. "If we have to have compulsory military training," Dr. Marsh advised, "let it be in conjunction with regular educational programs, and not remove youths completely from the civilian routine for one complete year."

The "Boston Contest" launched by Boston University and described briefly...
BEARING OF GENETICS ON THE QUESTION OF RACE

Though the following did not appear in a Boston paper, but in a magazine, we are including it among the clippings. A footnote on p. 565, vol. XXXIV, no. 4, 1944, of the "Geographical Review", occurring in an article on "A Geologic Sketch of Early Man in America," by Carl O. Sauer, tells of the work of Dr. William C. Boyd, Associate Professor of Biochemistry in the Boston University School of Medicine.

Death of Dean Meyer

As we go to press, news reaches us of the death of Alfred H. Meyer, Dean of the Boston University College of Music. He died at his home in Newtonville on December 29. He had been at the University since 1929, having been professor of the history and theory of music before he became dean in 1941. He was a graduate of Oberlin College, and had studied at Harvard University and the New England Conservatory of Music. A tribute to him will appear in a later issue.

Boston University Alumni Association

WHO, HOW, and WHAT?

Who is eligible to belong?

“If you have been a student at Boston University,” says President Daniel L. Marsh, “you are a permanent member of the University family.” As such, you are eligible to join the Alumni Association.

How do I join the Alumni Association?

There are no dues. All subscribers to the Annual Alumni Fund Roll Call automatically become members in good standing. The amount of your contribution is determined by your ability and will to support the University. (In 1944, gifts varied in amount from two dollars to several thousand; the average was about ten dollars.)

What do I get from membership in the Alumni Association?

You have the right to vote for Alumni Association officers; to hold office in the Association; to participate in Alumni affairs. You get a subscription to the alumni magazine, BOSTONIA, published monthly during the college year.

But, more important, you gain the satisfaction of taking an active part with your fellow alumni in supporting the University, and in contributing to the strength and development of your Alma Mater.
