A Student Union Building

BOSTON UNIVERSITY ALUMNI ASSOCIATION
811 BOYLSTON STREET BOSTON 16, MASSACHUSETTS
Commencement Weekend with its round of festivities is the last major event in the University calendar year. This year's Commencement, including Alumni Day on June 5th, was perhaps the wettest, but happily one of the most successful events in the history of Boston University.

To symbolize and summarize the highlights of Commencement weekend we have chosen some one item from each event—the Alumni Day program, the banner for the twenty-five year class, the Baccalaureate and Commencement programs, the diploma case for the majority of our graduates and the white parchment diploma for the School of Medicine graduates.

But to the alumni the most important event of this year's Commencement was Alumni Day. And water-logged though it was, most of the alumni had themselves a wonderful time.

Typical of the many who returned from far-off places are our cover girls, Carol Ruggles, P'47, of New York City and Isabella Zemer, P'47, of Balboa, Canal Zone.
Queen of May Day was Miss Ruth Elliott, P'48
A STUDENT UNION

The response to the appeal for funds to build a new unit on the Charles River campus for the expanding program of student activities at Boston University has been very encouraging to date.

Typical of the response was the gift of $500 by the Class of 1948 which was presented at the Senior Prom on Friday, May 10. A steady flow of contributions from alumni is reaching the Alumni Office for this new building every day.

Plans are under way for a concentrated appeal to the public and to special gifts' contributors within the next few months. With the help of the students of Boston University, its alumni, and the public at large, this project is bound to succeed.

Class agents and others who have this project as their responsibility are working with enthusiasm to create a building to fit the needs of the students. With the two largest undergraduate departments already housed on the new campus and with one of the most important graduate schools, the School of Theology, to join them in the fall of 1949, it is imperative that construction of this building be given the greatest possible support.

The President of the University has given his unqualified approval to this campaign. All undesignated gifts to the Alumni Fund will be earmarked for the Student Union Building. Let us give to this worthy cause in generous measure. The Student Union Building will develop a better University spirit for students, faculty, and alumni and will make its important contribution to the total development of the Charles River campus.

Proper Bostonian Self-Expression

(Baccalaureate Sermon at Boston University, 6th of June, 1948)

By President Daniel L. Marsh

"THE PROPER BOSTONIANS" is the title of a book published within the past year, written by Cleveland Amory. It is not my purpose to discuss or evaluate that book. I merely use its title as a steppingstone into the subject of this Baccalaureate sermon. Mr. Amory uses the word "Bostonians" as a noun, and evidently intends that the word "proper" should imply certain natural or essential traits that characterize a selected few families native to Boston.

I am using the word "Bostonian" as an adjective. By "Bostonian," I do not refer to Boston in general, but to Boston University and its product in particular. As the word "Harvardian" refers to Harvard University, or as "Oxonian" generally pertains to Oxford University rather than to the town of the same name in which it is located, so also in this Baccalaureate sermon, I mean that "Bostonian" should pertinently apply to Boston University, and by "proper Bostonian," I mean qualities befitting a member of the Boston University family.

One of the self-evident deficiencies of Mr. Amory’s book is the fact that he does not seem to know that Boston University exists, even though the number one citizen of his "Proper Bostonians" is both a Trustee of Boston University and also the Chairman of its Executive Committee. Moreover, no other institution of higher learning, whatever its name or fame, can be shaping and molding the present and future community of Boston more profoundly than is Boston University. This would be self-evident to any shrewd observer even if he took nothing more into account than numbers of citizens.

But something more is to be taken into account, and that is the kind of citizens the institution makes. The true test of any university is not its enrollment, nor the size of its faculty, nor its endowment — no, but the kind of graduate the university turns out. Montaigne opined that "we should not ask who is the most learned, but who is the best learned." This is important for the City of Boston not only, but also for the whole wide world; for graduates of Boston University are to be found in every nook and corner of our own country and in every section of the globe. They, like all educated persons, jealously guard the right of self-expression, and it is through this self-expression that they are influencing their fellows and their environment.

THE RIGHT OF SELF-EXPRESSION is stoutly defended as an "unalienable right" by every artist or would-be artist whenever a book or a picture or a magazine article or any other work is criticized. Self-expression is the expression of one's own personality, as through any creative work. We err when we think of art as being limited to painting, sculpture, music, drama, and writing. The old Greek, Latin and German meaning of art implied the skill and ability which resulted through patient practice, and which was directed toward a definite end. That end might be aesthetical, ethical, or useful. According to their conception, fine arts were concerned with the attainment of the beautiful; the arts of conduct with the good, and liberal arts with the useful.

There are no "superior" arts, and there are no "inferior" arts. Any art is superior if the artist who produces it is superior — whether that art takes the form of painting, or sculpture, or a musical composition, or a poem, or a building, or a rug, or the laying out of a garden, or the making of a dress, or in the cleaning of a room, or setting of a table. The flower that grows in the crannied wall is a superb work of art, and the wall in which...

it grows may also be a work of art. But the greatest of all the arts is the fine art of living, or the art of fine living. As Whistler expressed his artistic self in oil painting, water color, etching, lithography, interior decoration, and even in designed costumes, so any person may express his real self in the common round of his daily work, whatever that work may be.

The right of self-expression is no more "unalienable" than is the right of happiness. The Declaration of Independence asserts that all men are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, among which is the pursuit of happiness, not necessarily happiness itself! So also nobody can claim from society the right of self-expression if such self-expression sins against truth, goodness, beauty, decency, or good taste. The unalienable right is to have a self worth expressing! We must respect every individual, and guarantee to everyone freedom of conscience and freedom of worship; but that does not mean that we approve of the expression of a self that menaces decency or that undermines the foundations of right and truth. I was once pleading with a colleague in administrative responsibilities to be dependable, to make his word reliable. He retorted: "You are trying to change my character, and I don't want it changed!" We could not comfortably remain colleagues long! I repeat: the inalienable right is to have a personality, a character, a self worth expressing.

Boasted "self-expression" is often a euphemism for self-conceit. The writer of the Biblical Book of Proverbs meets out unmitigated condemnation to the fool, and yet he says that there is more hope of a fool than of "a man wise in his own conceit." That is, there can be no progress without docility of spirit, and self-conceit drives out all true humility. Sometimes "self-expression" is born of self-deception. There are some persons who think that they are full of light which is creative, and revealing, and hospitable, and joy-inspiring, whereas the light that is in them is darkness. They may think of themselves as strong, while they are rotting away at the very heart. Sometimes so-called self-expression is nothing more than self-indulgence. Self-indulgence is a form of selfishness. The Indian poet, Jalaluddin Rumi, in unforgettable lines pictures a self that is better left unexpressed:

"Lo, from that idol of self another idol is born. The idol of self is the mother of all idols; Those are the snakes, but this is the dragon; Self is the flint and steel, and the idol is the spark; The spark indeed may be quenched by water, But how shall water quench the flint and steel?"

Selfishness is self-destructive. The whole universe is a protest against the selfish man.

Self-expression rightly understood is self-realization, the fulfillment by one's own self of the possibilities of his character or personality. It is a wonderful thing to live, and at the same time it is a terrifying responsibility. Responsibility is always measured by ability. Much is required of the person unto whom much has been given, whether by way of natural endowment, education, social position, opportunities of leadership, or economic power. It is the realization of the real self that counts and tells and weighs for time and eternity.

The self worth expressing has in it something of self-conquest, self-control, self-mastery, self-discipline, and self-sacrifice. Beauty, truth, and goodness are inside before they are outside. Life is real, but reality does not begin and end with the sordid, the sexual, the forbidden. The sewer and garbage are real, but they are not the only reality. There is still a truer than any we have yet told. There is a beauty more beautiful than any we have yet produced. There is a goodness surpassing any goodness we have yet practiced. Goodness is Love expressed in conduct; Truth is Love expressed in thought; Beauty is Love in self-expression, in whatever medium.

The self-expression of a self worth expressing is at once the fine art of living and the art of fine living. The same elements and principles which run through all the so-called fine, and useful, and industrial, and applied arts are applicable to this art also. Therefore, let us correlate the art of fine living with what we know about the visual, musical, and literary arts.

Composition is the putting together of many parts in such way as to make what the French call a tout ensemble, one whole. Sometimes it is described as creative planning, and sometimes as design. The painter composes his pictures by combining line, color, light and dark. The musician composes by combining musical notes into a melody. The writer composes by combining words into sentences and paragraphs. So likewise the architect, the sculptor, the costume designer and the gardener, all create their compositions by combining into an harmonious whole, according to certain principles, the materials with which they respectively work. If we are going to have a self worth expressing through the fine art of living, it is imperative that we should have a plan, a design. And the plan must be one that will result in what we individually accept as the purpose.
of life. The plan which each one of us makes for his own life should be as useful in accomplishing its end and aim as the ancient Greek temple was in fulfilling the purpose for which it was designed. The Greek artists decided upon the form of the temple, and that remained fixed. Each part had a different function which it accomplished in the simplest and clearest way. The pillars were made to support, and their shape and slight decoration were in accordance with that purpose. The walls were made not to support, but to inclose the statue of the deity. The whole building became a home for the deity.

If yours is a proper Bostonian self-expression, then you will manifest those traits of character, those qualities of personality, that are inherent in the very nature of Boston University. Those traits and qualities are suggested by the chartered purpose of the University, namely: to promote virtue and piety, and learning in the liberal and useful arts and sciences. They are seen also in the University's traditions: its high academic standards, its impatience with superficiality, and its stout and uncompromising opposition to educational quackery; its instinct for fearless pioneering; its passion for reality and closeness to life; its essential democracy; its detestation of prejudice, bigotry and intolerance; its unvarying friendliness; its oft-quoted declaration that it has fostered from the beginning simple relations of mutual respect, and has placed its reliance on the good taste, good judgment, and good will of its members. Its qualities are revealed also in its colors of scarlet and white, denoting courage and purity, and in its seal and its coat of arms, in both of which the floriated Holy Cross is a symbol forever of its Christian heritage, and its obligation to render sacrificial service to all mankind.

Proper Bostonian self-expression — the expression of a self composed of such ideals — is in harmony with the definitions of life which solve life's internal contradiction — definitions given by great teachers of humanity from the most remote time. Tolstoy* sums up the definitions of the true good and, therefore, of the true life, as revealed to men by the greatest minds of humanity, — definitions which are by their essence the same:

"Life is the dissemination of that light which came down from heaven for the good of men," Confucius said, six hundred years before Christ.

"Life is a wandering and perfecting of the souls attaining a greater and ever greater good," said the Brahmins of about the same time.

"Life is self-renunciation for the sake of attaining blissful Nirvana," said Buddha, a contemporary of Confucius.

"Life is the path of humility and abasement for the sake of attaining the good," said Lao-tse, another contemporary of Confucius.

"Life is that which God blew into the nostrils of man, in order that he, fulfilling the law, might attain the good," says the Jewish wisdom.

"Life is subject to reason, which gives men the good," said the Stoics.

"Life is love of God and of our neighbors, which gives men the good," said Christ, including all the former definitions into His own.

If the world's greatest thinkers, as here quoted, have correctly defined the end and aim of life, then the self worth expressing must be composed along similar lines. Such a life will be one of usefulness which will make it a joy to serve others; to help the poor and unfortunate and dispossessed; to assuage human suffering; to lift burdens from the weak; to construct the Kingdom of God on earth, whose motive is love, and whose behavior is in keeping with the Ten Commandments given by Moses, and whose attitudes are in harmony with the Beatitudes of Jesus, — a useful life of influence for good that leaves the world better than it was found.

Do not get the idea that only persons of prominence and power are responsible for their influence! A "nobody" can build a fire to make a church comfortably warm for worshipers on a cold winter's day, or he can burn the church down. Even so, a "nobody" by the influence he sheds can snuff out the light of faith in a child, or he can bring a torch of consecration to set fire to a nobler life than his own. I like the picture language of Carlyle, in one of his essays, where he says: “The work an unknown good man has done is like a vein of water flowing hidden underground, secretly making the ground green.” Yours may be a humble and inconspicuous life, and yet it may have the beauty of holiness upon it, even as the painting of a landscape that takes in only an unknown knoll may be as beautiful as one that pictures the Matterhorn. The whole question is, Has your life been planned with an eye to beauty and usefulness, fitting part into part as Mendelssohn planned and composed the Saint Paul Oratorio, or as our architects planned the buildings for our new campus, which plans are being executed by builders into magnificent and serviceable edifices where untold generations of students yet to be may fashion selves fit to be expressed in fine living?

Composition is accomplished through fidelity to certain fundamental elements and principles, such as good taste, emphasis, balance and symmetry.

Good Taste is a fundamental principle in all the arts. It connotes not only what we generally mean by good taste, but it also includes what some art appreciators call “unity” and what others call “harmony.” Proper Bostonian self-expression will be characterized by good taste, by unity, by harmony. It has been said that good taste is good art applied. Good taste has been defined as “a just sense of the relation of things.” In picture-making, there must be harmony of ideas as well as harmony of line, shape, hue, values, textures, space, and all other elements. Greek artists saw clearly what they desired to produce, and set about it without hesitation and without self-consciousness. They sank themselves out of sight. It is said that once Protogenes painted a picture of a satyr, and then as a mere trifle, he painted a picture of a partridge down in the corner of his canvas. He noted that spectators were so impressed by the lifelikeness of the partridge that they gave to it more attention than to the satyr. Then Protogenes painted out the partridge in order that it might not detract from the central figure of his painting.

The person who has a self worth expressing is so guided by singleness of purpose that he can say with Saint Paul: “This one thing I do.” He might also have Saint Paul’s faith: “We know that all things work together for good to them that love God.” That is real harmony, harmony within one’s self, and harmony with the universe. Marcus Aurelius in his Meditations says: “All that is harmony for thee, O universe, is in harmony with me as well.” Proper Bostonian self-expression is always in harmony with disciplined good taste.

Emphasis is another underlying principle in all art. It attracts attention to the important thing, lays stress on the dominant features. It is accomplished by position, by isolation, by suppression of the less important, by light and dark, by repetition, and in various other ways. It stresses singleness of aim and purpose. To preserve unity, a literary composition must have a dominant theme, and a musical composition requires a dominant key.

Emphasis in the art of fine living was stated in a song that was popular two or three years ago, thus:

“You’ve got to accentuate the positive,
Eliminate the negative,
Latch on to the affirmative.
Don’t be a Mister in Between!”

That is, one must specialize in the good life. He must form the right kind of habits. He must be strong, courageous, free from compromise with low ideals, true to his friends, loyal to his convictions, an example of right thinking and right living. Proper Bostonian self-expression emphasizes learning, virtue, piety, and all the other qualities that inhere in the nature of Boston University.

Balance and Symmetry are also indispensable elements in all the arts, including the art of fine living. They satisfy our sense of repose. They recognize limit and law. Once when I was in Istanbul, I saw the Sarcophagus of Alexander the Great, which had been found at Sidon. The first impression I gained at sight of the carved side of that Sarcophagus was a mass of figures; but when I studied it, I found that in the center a horseman emerged as from the background, and on either side of that central horseman there was perfect balance, the Persians on one side, and the Greeks on the other. In fact, I got a better idea of one of Alexander the Great’s battles by studying that Sarcophagus than by visiting a battlefield.

Balance in the art of fine living maintains an equilibrium between contending forces. It makes us know when to say “yes,” and when to say “no.” It enables us to keep an open mind, and to listen to the man who knows enough to be an authority. It bestows a sense of proportion, enabling us to see that which is important as important, and that which is unimportant as unimportant. It stands for education that is both liberal and useful, balancing and blending the two values, — an education that makes a living and that makes life worth living. It keeps us true in the dark and sincere in the spotlight. It gives us strength for mighty and phenomenal contingencies, and humble fidelity for the humdrum drudgery of ordinary tasks and duties. It enables us to jingle in the ear of eternity the coin which flesh and sense would give us in exchange for our souls. It invites us to take the long view which makes possible the interpretation of facts near at hand. It keeps us poised in the presence of petty and pugnacious emotionalism, and calm when we confront calamity.

A SELF SO EXPRESSED will fulfill the exhortation of Jesus: “Be ye therefore perfect.” The Greek word translated “perfect” is teletoi. It is the word which is found in the prefix to such modern words as telegraph, telescope, television, and many others. It means far, or far off; hence operating at a distance. Thus to telegraph is tele, distant, and graphein, to write: to write at a distance. A telescope enables you to see far off. Television gives you a vision here and now of something that is far away. Therefore, these words of Jesus which have been translated “Be ye perfect” might be freely translated into our vernacular as: Get a vision of what you would like to be when you reach the far-off end of your life, and make that vision real here and now! Be right now as strong and courageous, as honest and loyal, as pure and abstemious, as sincere and humble, as tolerant and brotherly, as mellow and kind, as patient and reverent, as generous and good as you hope to be when you reach the end of your life! This image of your better self forever pleads your future possibilities.

Self-expression through the art of fine living exerts a greater influence for good than can possibly be exerted by painting, or sculpture, or music, or books. Jesus spoke of a good self, radiantly expressed, as light: “Ye are the light of the world... Men do not light a candle, and put it under a bushel, but on the stand, and it shineth unto all that are in the house. Even so let your light shine before men; that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father who is in heaven.” The candle, by giving itself, sheds light which banishes darkness, so that things stand out in their true perspective, and men can see where they are going.

In Shakespeare’s King Lear, the Earl of Kent says that the influence of the Duke of Cornwall is “like the wreath of radiant fire on flickering Phoebus’ front.” Phoebus is the sun personalized. Hence Cornwall’s influence was like the sun! That is a beautiful simile: a good man’s influence is like the sun, — relieving dark and angry shades, gilding ominous clouds, pouring radiance from its throne of gold, shortening winter, bringing springtime with its birds and flowers and leaves, and summer with its harvests!

If there have been ages of light and advancement, it is because bright lights in the intellectual firmament have traveled across them. If there have been ages of reform and piety, it is because men of piety and reform have influenced them. A bad man cannot be a reformer, nor can a good man be a corrupter; for the "tree is known by its fruits."

Have there been corrupt ages of the world? It was because bad men lived in them, and their self-expression was poison and death. Have there been dark ages? It was because the men were benighted. Have there been ages of superstition? If so, the men who set the intellectual style were superstitious. Have there been bloody ages? It was because the men were bloody.

When Bunyan pictured Apollyon as emitting smoke from his nostrils he suggested the evil influence of vicious self-expression. The artists, on the other hand, have tried to represent the good influence of a good man’s self-expression by putting a halo, or a divine nimbus, over him, or an aura about him.

The little grandson of a former distinguished trustee of Boston University, the late Bishop William F. Anderson, heard his elders talking about saints, and he interposed a question which prompted one of the adults to ask the little fellow whether he knew what a saint was. The only meaning the word had for him was the representation of saints which he had seen in the stained glass windows of his church, and so he replied: "Sure, a saint is a person the light shines through!"

Good! "Saint" means holy, and holy implies wholeness, completeness. When a whole, wholesome, efficient, rightly integrated personality is expressed through the art of fine living, that is in very truth proper Bostonian self-expression. Its influence for good I have tried to suggest in a little poem which I have written, thus:

In the clouds the sun still lingers
Even after day is done—
Clouds lit up like fiery pillars
By the setting of the sun;
In refulgent splendor shining,
High up in the western sky,
Teaching us in golden silence,
"Influence is slow to die."

In the ear still lingers music,
Even though the song is sung—
Music sweet as any message
Ever told by mortal tongue;
Melody that’s now immortal,
Ravishing the soul to-day,
Telling us in notes supernal,
"Influence shall live for aye."

Seeds are carried on the breezes
Into hidden depth and glade
Where the hand of man nor woman
Never yet a way has made.
Blocks of ice are slowly melted
Underneath the sunbeam’s power,
Where a blow would break and shatter,
As hard hail would crush a flower.

In the cloud the sun still lingers,
In the ear the singer’s song;
Thus remains the good man’s spirit,
Staying in the throbbing throng.
Although his form has disappeared,
His life lends a guiding light,
Leading from defeat to victory,
Cheering in life’s darkest night.

Silent and unostentatious
Is the power of righteous ways,
Working like the gentle breezes,
Melting like the sun’s bright rays.
Books and sermons are forgotten,
Tears and prayers men may despise.
But this saves, when we’ve departed:
Influence of holy lives.

SAMUEL JAMES HARRISON, graduate of Boston University; now President of Adrian College, with previous experience in the Mission Field in China, and in the pastorate, — the latter being the best of all schools for the development of the shepherding instinct which is so essential to a good college president, — I confer upon you Boston University's honorary degree of Doctor of Science in Education.

ROLAND HAYES, descendant of an African tribal king who was brought to America against his will; son of Angel Mo whom you have so greatly honored; you have risen above circumstance, and have made it easier for the dispossessed and underprivileged to achieve, and for the prejudiced to be tolerant; your voice affects the sense of hearing as velvet affects the sense of touch, as Bartlett pears affect the sense of taste, as a rainbow over a field of clover blooms affects the sense of sight, all blent into an ineffable sweetness, so that when you sing it seems as though some sweet chariot were swinging low to carry us to the celestial home of song, and through it all you have lived a life fairer than any song you have ever sung. — I confer upon you Boston University's honorary degree of Doctor of Music.

SHOT KUMAR MONDOL, a Bishop of the Methodist Church in India; type and flower of the product of modern Christian schools in that ancient land of the sun; educator, president of interdenominational religious movements, and one of the most distinguished national leaders of Christian forces on 'India's coral strand.' — I confer upon you Boston University’s honorary degree of Doctor of Sacred Theology.

CHARLES WESLEY BRASHARES, graduate of Boston University: as a preacher, 'approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed,' divinely dividing the word of truth; as a Bishop of the Methodist Church, personalizing the Golden Rule in administration and the sweet reasonableness of religion in preaching, — I confer upon you Boston University's honorary degree of Doctor of Laws.

ARTHUR ANDREW HAUCK, President of the University of Maine, a man with broadly based experience in education, extending geographically from Hawaii to Maine, and academically from elementary school teaching to university presidency; upon this broad foundation you are rearing a commensurable superstructure of service that wins our favorable regard, — I confer upon you Boston University's honorary degree of Doctor of Laws.

JOHN WARD STUDEBAKER, United States Commissioner of Education; builder of a noble professional career from foundation to turret in the temple of educational administration. Programs for the welfare of handicapped children, Adult Education, Red Cross, Crime Prevention and other forms of service proclaim you a consecrated servant of suffering and sad humanity as well as an educator of distinction, — I confer upon you Boston University's honorary degree of Doctor of Laws.

TRYGVE LIE, Secretary General of the United Nations; important liberal leader in the Government of Norway before and after World War II, prominently identified with the founding of the United Nations, and, since 1946, Secretary General of that organization, for the success of which mankind breathlessly prays. Because you personalize an instrumentality for the setting of international disputes by appeal to reason and goodwill rather than by the rude arbitrament of atomic bombs and bacteriological warfare, I confer upon you Boston University's honorary degree of Doctor of Civil Law.
EDUCATION AND MORAL LEADERSHIP

Dr. John W. Studebaker
United States Commissioner of Education

President Marsh, Members of the Graduating Class, and Friends:

There was a time not so many years ago when commencement orators in addressing graduating classes from thousands of platforms such as this one spoke hopefully of new frontiers of service, and bade graduates fare forth into the arena of adult responsibility with confidence born of faith in the cult of science and of belief in the inevitability of progress. Would that it were possible so to do today. But, alas, two great wars have intervened, and today the future, far from appearing serene and unclouded, looks somewhat dark and uncertain. This round ball of earth on which we speed through space seems fairly bursting at its seams. Through its thin crust pour the fumes of suspicion and of discord, the smoke of sullen animosities and of fear, the stench of human want and misery.

Beneath the enveloping clouds that so closely shroud the earth the agents of an ancient doctrine bait their traps with tempting promises of a new Utopia. They offer men and women, worn and weary and bowed with their weight of misfortune and misery, hungry, hopeless, and harrassed, the promise of surcease from insecurity. They say, "Forget the fine empty words about liberty and democracy thrown at you by the capitalistic imperialists. They would give you freedom, yes, — freedom to starve; freedom to fight their wars; freedom to exist upon their doles." Even in America this Party "line" is not without its lure to the homeless and the dispossessed, the so-called "second-class citizens," to the chronically malcontent, and to a few starry-eyed idealists and wishful thinkers who fancy men may yet possess complete security without sacrifice of freedom.

Today, the tiny flame lighted by Marx and Engels with their Communist Manifesto, one hundred years ago, has become a roaring furnace threatening to consume the world. And today there is no single issue that so splits the world as the preservation of democracy against the engulfing tide of communism. While opinions may honestly differ as to the extent of menace from the fifth column activities of communist conspirators in our midst, there can be no question, I think, that free governments and peoples everywhere are faced with gravenest challenge. How shall this challenge be met? And particularly, what is the responsibility of the members of this graduating class as you fare forth into a confused and troubled world?

One question that is heard on every hand is this: prepare to meet force with force; strengthen our nation's armament; spend more for scientific research to improve our weapons of destruction. That answer may be all right, — as far as it goes. Only the strong can be free in such a world as ours. But the answer doesn't go quite far enough. It doesn't go far enough in its analysis of the elements of national strength. In particular it doesn't meet the issue of the communist ideology, an ideology that will not be contained or countered by force alone; not merely by financial aid to sixteen European nations and to China. No, that ideology must be met and countered by another of superior promise, one whose promise has been proven in practice — the ideology of a dynamic Christian democracy.

"It is high time in America that we realize that a mild, undemanding, half-Christianity cannot successfully combat a malignant, masterful paganism," said Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, Pastor of Foundry Methodist Church in Washington recently. "This desperate crisis finds us with a political creed, as well as a religious faith, which is timid, tame, and tepid, in a land too largely devoted to gadgets, comforts, moneymaking, and pleasure.

"A member of the United States Congress," continued Dr. Harris, "recently returned from parts of Europe, Asia and Africa where he saw at first hand fantastic communism burning with the intensity of an acetylene torch, and feeling on his return the chill of an undemanding democracy and a listless church here in America, was moved to exclaim, 'Would to God we had the flaming zeal and the consuming beliefs that would make us, as Americans and Christians, in this decisive day march with our intensity and convictions the sacrifice and devotion of the Communists.'"

No. Military might alone is not enough. We are engaged in a battle for the moral leadership of the world; and that moral leadership will require a degree of spiritual fervor too few of us possess at present.

Here we are, a company of educated men and women, inheritors of the culture of a vaunted Christian civilization. Have we the strong convictions concerning the infinite worth of each of God's...
humblest creatures that is the basic tenet both of our Christian and of our Western democratic faith? And do those convictions and that faith express themselves in works? Or is our faith, in Dr. Harris' phrase, "timid, tame, and tepid"? Is our faith in our way of life a match for the passionate eagerness and the flaming zeal that characterize young communists? Do we really believe, in those memorable words of the Declaration of Independence, "that all men are created equal, endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights"? And do we feel a genuine responsibility to defend those rights — for all men, everywhere? Do we believe in the essential unity of all God's creation; that in this ONE WORLD of His, enduring peace and prosperity can come to one nation only as they are shared by all nations? Are we willing to strive for the achievement for other peoples, as for ourselves, of the blessings of liberty, justice, peace and prosperity? Do we believe in the sovereignty of Him who is the only Lord and Master of the whole world, and from Whom individuals and nations alike hold their part of the earth as trustees and stewards for the good of all? And do we believe that our ultimate reliance must be upon the power of truth and justice and goodwill and brotherhood rather than upon the threat of force and the compulsion of arms?

I repeat in the words of Dr. Harris, "It is high time in America that we realized that a mild, undemanding, half-Christianity cannot successfully combat a militant, masterful paganism." And I would add that unless the young men and women being graduated from American colleges and universities do have some burning convictions concerning democracy, we may hardly look communism fearlessly in the face or feel confident that it is but a temporary aberration in man's endless search for freedom and for justice; or feel confident also that the democratic faith will continue to issue in the search for truth. Freedom of speech and of the press alike are dangerous unless they rest upon a sense of obligation to seek out and to proclaim the truth.

Second, we must make education concerned more forthrightly with the pursuit of the truth. The greatest Teacher of all times once said, "Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free." Freedom to search for truth in the laboratories of science we must have, to be sure. But there is more to truth than science. We must be free to search as diligently for social truth in the laboratories of industrial relations and of statecraft and of human relations as in the laboratories of the natural sciences. No graver challenge is presented to the educated man and woman of today than to find and follow the facts, difficult as that may be, through all the smoke-screens of propaganda that are laid down about us on every side today. Academic freedom means nothing unless it is dedicated to the search for truth. Freedom of speech and of the press alike are dangerous unless they rest upon a sense of obligation to seek out and to proclaim the truth.

Third, and finally, we must through education achieve a better understanding of the modern necessity of establishing some system of international law, enforceable against great and small nations alike. I do not myself profess to know how this may best be accomplished. But of this I am convinced, that moral law being inherent in the nature of the universe God has created; we must organize to assert the sovereignty of that law both as between men and nations. It is really too great an over-simplification of a complicated problem to believe that we must eventually pool some part of our national sovereignty with those men and women of other nations who will organize with us to assert the greater sovereignty of moral law.

These then are some of the challenges which this postwar world presents to American education and to you and me, its beneficiaries and chosen representatives. How successfully these challenges will be met only time can tell. May you, young men and women of this graduating class, see the challenges more clearly than your elders; and may you, individually and collectively, resolve to grapple with them in real earnest. May you find in your chosen work scope for all your talents and rewarding satisfaction in your contribution to the common weal. May you grow in social understanding and in enlarged human sympathy. May you honor truth and seek it faithfully. And may you see and revere the great moral imperatives, obedience to which alone holds possibility of a future of peace with liberty and justice under law. God speed you one and all!
Commencement weekend at Boston University is a time of year when every graduate's social calendar is as crowded as those of the current crop of Boston debutantes. It is a time of year when alumni, their hearts filled with nostalgia and their appetites whetted for a chicken dinner, inundate the campus for one whole day.

Unfortunately, however, the alumni were not alone in inundating the campus this year. There may have been rainier days than June 5 in the history of Boston University, but even the Old Farmer had to thumb back through his records to find it. Yet despite water-logged hats, mud-spattered shoes, and rain-drenched bonnets, the alumni were out for a good time. Nothing seemed to dampen — and least of all the weather — the effervescent good spirits which pervaded the many class reunions held in the afternoon and the Sunset Supper at night.

Throughout the day in buildings on the new campus, in hotels around Boston, and even under the soggy canvas of the Big Tent, reunion year classes met, and their enthusiasm more than compensated for the vagaries of New England weather. In all, throughout the entire day and evening, more than 5,000 alumni returned for one or more of the various events scheduled.

Twenty-Five Year Classes

One of the most spirited groups present was the twenty-five-year class with members from several departments. General Chairman for the Class of 1923 was James Flanagan, Law, who coordinated the activities of the group. Departmental chairman were Mrs. Edith Mullen, PAL; the Reverend Frank Pizzuto, CLA; Philip Richardson, CBA; Mrs. Carl Alvord, CPES; Harriet Ellis, Ed; Stephen Callender, Theo; and Nyman Kolodny, Law.

The College of Business Administration group held a stag luncheon at the Hotel Somerset followed by a social hour to which wives were invited later in the afternoon. The College of Practical Arts and Letters held its luncheon at the Larz Anderson Memorial and then returned to the Dunn Memorial for a P.A.L. meeting and reception preceding the Sunset Supper.

The College of Liberal Arts held their class luncheon in the Big Tent. It was followed by a business meeting in the C.L.A. building after which there was a showing of the Boston University film.

The Fifty-Year Class

Members of the Class of 1898, the fifty-year class, turned out in good numbers for Alumni Day festivities. The special event held in connection with their reunion was the annual fifty-year-class dinner given by President and Mrs. Marsh at their home on Sunday, June 6. Guests who were present at this event were:

College of Liberal Arts — Mrs. Albert B. Black; Dr. Josephine A. Chase; Mrs. Frank Dunton and daughter; Mabel A. Fitz; Lucy A. Gardiner; Reverend and Mrs. Alliston B. Gifford; Olive B. Gilchrist; Addie B. Hobbs; Mr. "Swede" Nelson presents the "Swede" trophy to Boston University athlete, Evie Dorr, as part of the Alumni Day program.
and Mrs. Clarence H. Jones; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Kenworthy; Mr. and Mrs. Frederick J. H. Mansfield; Mrs. John E. Martin; Elizabeth H. Norman; Emma D. Shelton; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur N. Small; Mrs. Everett W. Small; Mrs. Joseph W. Stephon; Dr. and Mrs. Ralph R. Stratton; Mrs. Louis R. Swan; Miss Wallace; School of Theology — Reverend and Mrs. Charles H. Charlton and Reverend and Mrs. David Fraser; School of Law — Mr. and Mrs. C. Neal Barney; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Fagen; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas P. Kimmett; John F. Miller; School of Medicine — Dr. John C. Brennan; Dr. and Mrs. Francis X. Corr; Dr. and Mrs. Wesley T. Lee; Dr. and Mrs. Wilmot L. Marden; and Dr. and Mrs. T. H. McClintock.

Special Reunion Classes

Special reunions for several classes were held throughout the afternoon. The College of Liberal Arts Class of 1896 held its annual class luncheon at the College Club with Miss Grace N. Brown as Chairman. Mrs. Herbert Boyd served as Chairman of the C.L.A. Class of 1903 which held its luncheon at the Hotel Vendome. C.L.A.'08 gathered for a talk fest and class meeting in the new College of Liberal Arts building. Mrs. Paul Wadsworth was Chairman of this group.

C.L.A.'13 joined the Class of 1923 and the School of Education alumni under the Big Tent on the campus for luncheon after which they adjourned to the College of Liberal Arts for their class meeting. Miss Marjorie Bailey was Reunion Chairman for the class. The Class of 1918 held an all-University social get-together at the Hotel Kenmore in the late afternoon. Reuben Hall, L'18, served as General Chairman with Mrs. Shields Warren as Departmental Chairman for the College of Liberal Arts. Members of the Class of 1918, C.P.E.S. held a reunion in conjunction with the Boston Sargent Club in the Claflin Room of the College of Liberal Arts in the late afternoon. President of the Boston Sargent Club is Mrs. Priscilla White.

Louis Steinberg, L'28, was Chairman of the All-University get-together for the Class of 1928 at the College of Liberal Arts. C.P.E.S.'28 held an open house and tea with the Boston Sargent Club as well as a class get-together in the College of Liberal Arts. Mrs. Frank Poehlman served as Chairman for the group. Mrs. Paul Brodeur, E'28, arranged for her class to join other alumni of the School of Education under the Big Tent for the luncheon. P.A.L.'28 had a get-together during the day with Mrs. Betty Baker serving as Organizing Chairman. C.L.A.'28 reunited in the new College of Liberal Arts building with Israel Bloch serving as Chairman.

A luncheon and business meeting was held for the Class of '33, C.L.A., in the Myles Standish Hotel under the direction of Francis Blackwell. Ed'33 joined the other School of Education alumni for luncheon with Mrs. Ruth Blumsack as Chairman. P.A.L.'33 under the direction of Mrs. Raymond Roberts had a class meeting and reunion at the Hotel Fensgate. Law, C.B.A., and C.P.E.S. all had general reunion plans during the afternoon.

The Hotel Fensgate was the scene of a large get-together for the Class of 1938. Carleton 'Club' Chandler was Reunion Year Chairman, and he had as his co-workers, Douglas Raymond, E'38, Grant M. Dixey, M'38, Dorothy Cash, C.P.E.S. '38, Gilda Drago, Mus'38, Mrs. Floyd Dodge, P'38, Marie Nazarro, B'38, and Naomi Henes, L'38.

The Class of 1943 held a similar all-University get-together at the Hotel Kenmore during the afternoon. Mrs. Madeline DeVizia Brown, P'43, was Reunion Year Chairman and working with her were Mrs. Nicholas Bounakes, Irma Wrenn, both E'43, Thomas Healey, B'43, Joseph Hughes, B'43, Norman Fradd, A'43, John McPartlin, A'43, John Green, Mus'43, and Charles Garabedian and Mrs. Margaret Scott, L'43.

Our youngest alumni, the Class of 1947, held several meetings throughout the afternoon. Jean Kelley gathered her classmates together at an informal meeting and tea at Dunn Memorial during the afternoon. George Hertiby served as Chairman of the Law School Alumni Association get-together at the Hotel Kenmore at 4:30 P.M. Ed'47 with Wes Page as Chairman joined the School of Education Alumni Association luncheon in the big tent at 12:30 P.M. 1947 C.B.A. alumni gathered for an informal meeting and football pictures at the Hotel Kenmore in the afternoon. John Hand served as Chairman. C.L.A.'47 met at Charlestage Hall for entertainment, refreshments and a business meeting. Bronia Sielwicz was Chairman. Simon Guin and John Markarian gathered the Music alumni of the Class of 1947 together at the Myles Standish Hotel in the afternoon as well.

Other loyal workers for the special reunion year classes were: Mrs. John Titus, C.P.E.S.'13, Elsie Doelman, C.P.E.S.'18, Mary Joyce, B'18, William Goss, Mus'28, Edward Jelen, B'28, Kenneth Christophe, M'28, Eugene Giroux, L'28, Mrs. George Makechnie, C.P.E.S.'33; Nancy Clarke, A'33, Norman Belden, B'33, Dr. James Corkery, M'33, Louis Lobel, L'33.

Departmental Association Events

Seven of the departmental associations held special affairs on Alumni Day. Mention has already been made of the large luncheon planned by the School of Education Alumni Association under the direction of Miss Anne Leathers, President, and Miss Ida Johnston, Secretary. Law School alumni held a get-together at the Hotel Kenmore late in the afternoon under the direction of George Herlihy. Mr. Edward M. Dangel is President of the Law School Alumni Association.

College of Liberal Arts alumni who were unable to return for the special dedication program of the new building in March had the opportunity to view the impressive new structure on Alumni Day. C.L.A. held an Open House for all graduates following which there was a reception and Open House at Charlesgate Hall in the afternoon. Mrs. Marion Parsons, President, and Mrs. Arthur Watzingter should receive special credit for plans made for C.L.A. alumni. P.A.L. held a business meeting at Dunn Memorial in the middle of the afternoon and later sponsored a reception to the 23-Year Class at Dunn Memorial. Mrs. Irene Rink, who has been re-elected President of the P.A.L. Alumni Association organized plans for these events.

One of the most successful events of the entire Alumni Day program was the dance and reception sponsored by the College of Business Administration Alumni Association at the Hotel Somerset in the evening following the Sunset Supper. Bob Chadbourne, pinch-hitting for President Harold Young, did a splendid job of arranging for this event. Many of the young alumni of C.B.A. were present as well as a goodly portion of the representatives from earlier classes.

The School of Nursing Alumni Association held a luncheon meeting at the Hotel Beaconsfield in B'oalkline followed by a reception later at the School of Nursing in the afternoon. Miss Theresa Fallon, President, and Miss Anna Ryan (Continued on Page Twenty-Seven)

Boston University Sweeps The Dad Vail Regatta

Boston University won all three races in the Dad Vail Regatta held May 22 on the Charles River in Boston. Ed Chapdelaine stroked the Terrier’s Varsity Eight to victory three hours after he had done the same thing for the Freshman Eight. In between, the Boston University Junior Varsity Oarsmen swept to a five-length triumph to complete the greatest rowing day in Boston University history. Chapdelaine was substituting for Captain Herman Mowatt who had been hospitalized the day before the event.

This was the second Vail victory in Maitland by three feet. Boston University’s vengeance was celebrated by the acceptance of a Confederate flag from Rollins.

In the Junior Varsity Race, the Boston University crew won by five lengths from Rutgers for the largest margin of the day. The freshmen won over Dartmouth and Iona in 7:43.4 with Chapdelaine turning in his first masterpiece.

The races started near the M.I.T. Sail Boat Wharf and ended near the Boston University Boathouse. This was the second time that the event was rowed upstream in order to allow more spectators to see the colorful finish.

Enrollment Figures

Official registration figures for Boston University’s current 109th academic year, released last month by Dr. Daniel L. Marsh, President, show a grand total of 30,694 students in the University’s family of 15 schools and colleges, an increase of 4,969 over last year’s total enrollment. Included in the total are 9,300 extension and summer session enrollments, President Marsh pointed out, while the total of regular students exclusive of these, numbers 21,194.

Men students in the 15 schools and colleges total 18,906, and co-eds number 12,188. A grand total of 14,758 veterans, including 1,228 women, are enrolled in the 1947-48 academic year. The largest number of veterans is in the Evening College of Commerce where 2,306, more than half the 4,880 students registered there, are attending classes.

Students are registered as follows in the separate Boston University colleges: College of Liberal Arts, 1,933; College of Business Administration (day) 2,339; College of Practical Arts and Letters (day), 651; College of Music, 542; College of Physical Education for Women, Sargent, 507; General College, 1,334; School of Theology, 231; School of Law, (day) 1,038; School of Medicine, 233; School of Education, 3,038; School of Social Work, 264; School of Nursing, 649; School of Public Relations, 656; and Graduate School, 744.

Additional students who are attending on part-time evening programs are enrolled as follows: College and Extension, 1,316; Evening College of Commerce, 4,880; College of Business Administration (graduate), 197; College of Practical Arts and Letters (evening), 415; School of Law (evening), 205.

The editors of BOSTONIA hope that BOSTONIA readers will continue to send in news of their activities through the summer. Our deadline for news in the October issue will be August 1.

Alumni Club News

Worcester

The Boston University Women’s Club of Worcester is one of the most active of all the alumni units in the country. Under the directorship of President Margaret C. Callahan, Ed’43, the club has recently completed its 1947-1948 season, a season outstanding in colorful speakers and group socials.

The Worcester Natural History Museum provided the setting for the club’s first fall event. Featured was Richard C. Potter, Executive Secretary of the Museum, who presented the 30 members present with an illustrated lecture on “Historic Trees and their Legend.” Eleanor Reardon, CLA’32, was hostess for the day. Later, Mrs. John Hurley, Grad’33, and Mrs. Walter Beth, ex-PAL’37, arranged a Koffee Klatck.

Mrs. Sally Harris Remington was guest speaker at the November 18 meeting held at the Sawyer Furniture Store. Mrs. Remington, in her talk, “Trends in Interior Decorating,” demonstrated how small homes could be groomed for more gracious living at nominal costs. Hostesses for the evening included, Catherine Benoit, Ed’34, Mss’34, Grad’47, Marie Butler, ex-PAL’36, and Madeline Wilmouth, Grad’34.

A turkey dinner, exchange of gifts and Christmas carols were highlights of the Christmas Party held on December 18 at 21 Harvard Street in Worcester. Dorothy Harrahy, CLA’32, Margaret Donellan, PAL’23, and Estelle Harrahy, PAL’34, planned this very successful event.

Helen Ephraim, Ed’34, Mrs. John O’Connor, PAL’36, and Mrs. F. Joseph Donoghue, PAL’28, planned the January 29 meeting at which $100 was turned in by club solicitors for the scholarship fund.

Esther Fortes Hoskins, winner of the $150,000 semi-annual 1947 Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Award for her novel, “Running of the Tide,” was the distinguished speaker at the March 18 meeting. In 1943, her “Paul Revere and the World He Lived In” won the Pulitzer Prize. Miss Hoskins was informal, generous and seemed genuinely interested in the group, to whom she spoke about her experiences in writing and publishing.

The club’s traditional Theater Party was held on April 16 under the direction of Verna Stanhope, PAL’42, Jane Hayes, PAL’48, and Mrs. Carroll M. Abbott, CLA’26. At the Shubert Theater in Boston, the 28 members watched Katherine Cornell in her famous play, “Antony and Cleopatra.” Dinner at the Town House preceded the theater.

Dr. William Kvaraceus, Assistant Professor of Education at the Boston University School of Education, was guest speaker at the annual dinner and election of officers which took place at the Abner Wheeler House in Framingham on May 19. Elizabeth Foster, Ed’43, and Mary E. V. Shea, Ed’24, Grad’33, arranged the event. Warren Freeman, Mss’32, Ed’37, Executive Secretary of the University, was also a guest. Dr. Kvaraceus’ lecture on juvenile delinquency stressed the need for early detection of delinquency in vulnerable children. He named such indications as truancy, continued academic failures and unhappy or broken homes as danger signals.

The community, he said, must try to direct young people’s activities by providing varied programs where boys and girls of all types might find proper outlets and experience a feeling of success. Mr. Freeman announced that Boston University would match dollar for dollar any scholarship fund which the club might provide.

Officers of the Boston University Women’s Club of Worcester are, Miss Margaret C. Callahan, Ed’43, President; Miss Margaret T. Broderick, CLA’27, First Vice-President; Miss Estelle M. Harrahy, PAL’34, Second Vice-President; Miss Catherine Benoit, Ed’34, Mss’34, Grad’47, Recording Secretary; Mrs. Carroll M. Abbott, CLA’26, Treasurer; Mrs. John F. O’Connor, PAL’36, Auditor; and Miss Margaret M. Carroll, Ed’45, Grad’46, Program Chairman. The Nominating Committee includes Miss Dorothy V. Harrahy, CLA’32, Mrs. John F. Hurley, Grad’33, and Miss Eleanor A. Reardon, CLA’32. Members of the Board of Directors for the past year were Miss Marie A. Butler, PAL’36, Mrs. Kenneth A. Senter, PAL’42, and Miss Madeline A. Wilmouth, Grad’34. Next year’s Board of Directors includes Miss Helen Ephraim, Ed’34, Miss Margaret M. Carroll, Ed’45, Grad’46, and Miss Virginia J. MacFarland, SW’46.

New York Social Work Club

The New York Alumni Club of the Boston University School of Social Work, one of the newest organizations to be founded, held its first meeting in New York on April 16. Officially opening the meeting, Miss Ina L. Morgan, RE’37, Professor of Psychiatric Social Work at the School of Social Work, outlined the rapid growth of the School since its inauguration in 1940 as a separate graduate school of social work. At that time, Miss Morgan said, there were only 57 full-time students enrolled. Today there are 128 full-time students, she continues, and the various departments have been accredited by the national associations, Boston University being one of the few universities offering a major in group work.

Miss Morgan went on to explain that the School is now one of the ten largest schools in the American Association of Schools of Social Work, and that further growth may be anticipated by the recognition provided thus far by the Federal National Mental Health Act which is presently asking a budget of $58,000. She also indicated that there is an optimistic outlook for obtaining funds to provide a third year program, leading to the degree of doctorate. The machinery for this third year study has already been organized she said, and would provide for additional training in psychotherapy, research and supervision. She added that both the Boston Psychopathic Hospital and the Psychosomatic Clinic at the Worcester State Hospital have been organized for this third year field work training.

Regarding the organization of the chapter, Miss Morgan declared that the group should maintain as much independence and freedom as it desired. However, she made it clear that for a central channel in any future work, contact should be continuously maintained with the Executive Committee in Boston.

Miss Toni Marmo, CLA’44, SW’45, Temporary New York Chairman, pointed out that the purpose in organizing the group had been to contribute towards the improvement and further development of the School. A discussion regarding the formulation of more definite goals and methodology was held.

John Bauer, SW’47, outlined the tentative purposes formulated by the club as (1) social and group, (2) curriculum improvements (including revisions and additions), and (3) work in more general areas for the development of the school (including psychotherapeutic training, thesis, etc.). He also suggested publishing a weekly newsletter for the students of the school, informing them of the whereabouts of alumni members, their fields of work, and what they can do for the students. Another motion suggesting that periodic "weekend institutes and social activities" be held by returning graduates at the School of Social Work was made and popularly approved.

At the second meeting, held on May 21, the chapter was formally organized and various working committees were formed.

All club secretaries are requested to send reports of the election of new officers and program news to BOSTONIA for publication in the first fall issue.

BOSTON UNIVERSITY CLUB OF BALTIMORE AND C.P.E.S. CLUB HOLD JOINT MEETING

On Friday, May 7, the Boston University Club of Baltimore held its annual meeting in conjunction with the Baltimore Sargent Club at the Hotel Stafford in Baltimore. This was the first time in the history of either club when such a joint meeting was held, and it was deemed by all a huge success.

Guest speakers at the affair, which was attended by approximately 30 members, were Dean George Makechnie of the College of Physical Education for Women, Sargent, and Miss Ruth Whittaker, Associate Editor of BOSTONIA. Dean Makechnie, who was accompanied by his wife, gave a brief talk on the activities of his department telling in some detail of the summer camp program planned at the Sargent Camp in Peterborough, New Hampshire. Dean Makechnie’s remarks brought forth some amusing memories of student days at the Camp by the C.P.E.S. alumnae in attendance. Miss Whittaker brought greetings from the Boston University Alumni Association and recounted some of the activities now under way in Boston. She made a brief plea for support of the new Student Union Building Fund Campaign now in progress from members of both clubs.

Presiding at the dinner were the presidents of both clubs: Mr. George Paul Cox for the B.U. group and Miss Lucy Hyde for the C.P.E.S. group. The clubs plan a 1949 joint meeting.

The meeting was called to order by President Loretta Hunter, M.A. '39, and the minutes of the last meeting were read by Marie L. Reynolds, L. '22, Grad '34, Secretary of the Club. Following an informal discussion concerning plans for future meetings, refreshments were served.

WOMEN GRADUATES' CLUB WELCOMES MEMBERS OF THE CLASS OF 1948

The Boston University Women Graduates' Club, which was formed in 1911 to promote the interests of Boston University and to unite the alumnae of the various departments in fellowship and service, is enjoying post-war expansion and promises to exert considerable influence on the activities on the new Charles River Campus.

CLASSES OF MEMBERSHIP

The Club By-Laws provide for four classes of membership — active, associate, life, and honorary. Any alumna of any school or college of Boston University is eligible for active and life membership.

Realizing the advantages of membership, including representative younger graduates, the Club in 1946 inaugurated the policy of extending invitations to membership to an entire graduating class. The procedure was repeated in 1947.

RECENT RECIPIENTS OF LIFE MEMBERSHIPS

Among the outstanding Boston University alumnae recently honored with honorary memberships were: Judge Emma Fall Schofield of the First District Court of Eastern Middlesex, Massachusetts, a past president of the Club, an alumna of the College of Liberal Arts and the School of Law of Boston University, of the Sorbonne and Paris Law Schools, and of the Boston School for Social Workers; Mrs. Everett O. Fisk, a past president of the Club and of the Boston University Women's Council, a College of Liberal Arts alumna and the Graduate School of Boston University, and of Newnham College, Cambridge, England, a trustee of Boston University; and Mrs. Edward R. Collier (Eleanor Rust Mosely), Director of Publicity for Boston University, the first woman president of the American College Publicity Association, an alumna of the School of Education. Citations accompanying letters of notification of life memberships emphasized numerous highlights in the educational and professional careers of these graduates of Boston University.

PORTLAND

Professor John Gleason, of the School of Public Relations, was guest speaker at the most recent meeting of the Boston University Club of Greater Portland held at the Graymore Hotel in Portland on May 13. Professor Gleason clearly outlined the activities and functions of the new School of Public Relations, establishing its position in the pattern of other University colleges and predicting an important place for it in the future academic structure of the University.

After the annual business meeting, an election of new officers was held. The new officers are Donald McGovern, Ed '47, President; Kenneth Stahl, CBA '41, Vice-President in Charge of Publicity; Frances Callan, Ed '46, Vice-President in Charge of Programs; Robert Hinchcliffe, CBA '47, Vice-President in Charge of Membership; Geraldine Freise, Ed '46, Secretary; and Kenneth Snibborn, CBA '23, Treasurer. The Board of Directors for the new three-year term includes Richard Woodbury, CBA '37, Grad '38, Marion Cooley, PAL '23, and Arthur Charles, CBA '36.
MEDICAL SCHOOL ALUMNI REUNION

Following clinical sessions during the morning and afternoon, a buffet lunch at noon, and a social hour in the early evening, a banquet in the Georgian Room of the Hotel Statler was the highlight of the Annual Reunion of the Boston University School of Medicine Alumni Association on May 7.

Addressing more than 200 alumni and guests, Dr. Duncan E. Macdonald, Director of the Boston University Optical Research Laboratory, was the principal speaker at the dinner. Attorney Francis I. McCanna, President of the General Alumni Association, Dr. James M. Faulkner, Dean of the School of Medicine, and President Daniel L. Marsh were also included in the list of speakers.

Discussing the problem of “Human Relations in the Atomic Age,” Dr. Macdonald admitted that American colleges and universities have failed to find the formula for world peace and called upon the students to carry the torch.

Dr. Marsh extended his greetings and apologized for having to leave early. He was due at the Senior Prom, where he received the first copy of the 1948 HUB. Dean Faulkner gave an inspiring report on the progress of the School of Medicine in the past year.

During a business meeting at the dinner, Dr. Frank E. Barton, last year’s Vice-President and a member of the faculty at the School of Medicine for 21 years, was elected President of the School of Medicine Alumni Association for the coming year.

Other officers elected were: Dr. George Levine, First Vice-President; Dr. Clifton T. Perkins, Second Vice-President; Dr. Ensio K. F. Ronka, Secretary; Dr. Virginia Towsie Chadwell, Assistant Secretary; Dr. Kenneth Christophe, Treasurer; and Dr. Wesley T. Lee, Auditor.

Dr. James Vance, retiring President and Master of Ceremonies at the Dinner, was elected Representative of the Medical School on the General Alumni Council. Dr. David B. Stearns and Dr. Howard F. Reid were elected to serve on the Board of Directors.

Dr. Vance, who also presided at the business meeting, cited Dr. Wesley T. Lee, of the Class of ’98, as the oldest alumnus present, and Dr. Leopold H. Fraser, Class of ’23, of Richmond, California, as the alumnus who came the farthest in order to attend the Reunion.

Arthur E. Sullivan, President of the Senior Class at the School of Medicine, responded for his classmates, many of whom were present as is the custom, as guests of the Alumni Association.

At the head table, in addition to President and Mrs. Marsh, Dr. and Mrs. Macdonald, Dean and Mrs. Faulkner, Dr. Vance, and Mr. McCanna, were Dr. and Mrs. Reginald Smithwick, Dr. and Mrs. Chester Keefer, Dr. and Mrs. Wesley T. Lee, Dr. and Mrs. Philip Bonnet, Dr. M. Gene Black, Dr. Kenneth Christophe, and Dr. Frank E. Barton.

Beta Gamma Sigma Initiates 48 New Members from C.B.A.

Representing the top 10 per cent of the graduating class at the College of Business Administration, 48 students were honored for their academic records when they were initiated into Beta Gamma Sigma, Alpha Chapter of Massachusetts, last month at the Charles Hayden Memorial Auditorium. Named to the national honorary society for business students were seven women and 41 men.

President Daniel L. Marsh greeted the initiates, who were students of both the College of Business Administration and the Evening College of Commerce. Greetings were also conveyed by Dean William G. Sutcliffe, of the College of Business Administration, and Professor John Waters, of the Evening College of Commerce.

The principal address of the evening was given by Robert A. Chadbourne, CBA'39, now Field Secretary of Associated Industries of Massachusetts, who discussed, "The Case of Massachusetts Industry." Professor John Waters, President of the Alpha Chapter and Director of the Evening College of Commerce, presided at the meeting.

New Epsilon Officers Elected in May

The Alumni Council of Epsilon Chapter, College of Liberal Arts Alumni Association, met on May 21 at the University Commons, for election of officers and other business.

The President, Mrs. Marion Wheeler Parsons, 1920, reviewed the year's activities of the Chapter. Among the highlights she cited were the highly successful Spring Reunion and Open House in March, and the pioneer series of science lectures sponsored by Epsilon and given by members of the College of Liberal Arts science faculties.

New officers elected are: Auditor, George R. Ericson, '15; Directors, Harold E. Lane, '36, and Mrs. Frances Newell Webb, '21; Representative to the General Alumni Association, Robert E. Moody, '22. On the Nominating Committee for 1949 will be Mrs. Marion West Ballou, '09, Mrs. Helen Farwell Bailey, '13, Arthur J. Watzinger, '37, Otis Oakman, '32, and Virginia Brigham, '36.

Continuing in office are Mrs. Parsons, President; Royal Frye, '11, Vice President; Carroll Q. Jones, '03, Treasurer; Esther M. Clement, '24, Secretary; Mil-made plans for these events. Another very successful event held on Alumni Day was the reception to seniors and alumni sponsored by the Boston Sar gent Club in the Clalin Room at the College of Liberal Arts. Many C.P.E.S. alumni attended and spent a happy afternoon renewing acquaintances.

Alumni Day

Alumni Banquet

Even as the skies cleared and the sun poured down on the wet but happy Boston University alumni, last minute plans were made to serve the annual Alumni Banquet in Hayden Memorial Hall and in the University Commons. The Big Tent, around which so many gay plans had been made for the affair in the evening, stood disconsolately beside the river, by this time nothing more than a great mass of wet canvas. Plans had been made to have reunion classes sit together, but such arrangements were impossible as the huge group split in two divisions, one going to Hayden Memorial and the other to the University Commons.

Head table guests spent an athletic evening running between the Hayden Memorial and the Commons addressing both groups. All alumni, however, heard an address of greeting by the President of the Alumni Association, Mr. Francis I. McCanna, L'00, and the greetings of Alumni Secretary, Warren S. Freeman, as well. Toastmaster for the evening and an alumnus with an amazing fund of amusing stories was Clifford "Tiny" Johnson, B'26. A report on the state of Boston University was given by President Daniel L. Marsh.

Presentation of Alumni Medals for 1948

Highlight of the evening's program was the presentation of the Boston University alumni medals to two distinguished alumni, Mr. J. Richard Sneed, T'33, and Mr. Waitstill Sharp, A'23. Waitstill Sharp, a "bonafide" son of Boston University inasmuch as he was the son of Dallas Lore Sharp, one of Boston University's famed and beloved professors, was honored for his efforts in behalf of American Relief of Czechoslovakia during the past two years. Mr. Sharp received his medal for "distinguished public service." The Reverend Doctor J. Richard Sneed, who is now minister of the Court Street Methodist Church in Rockford, Illinois, was honored for his "service to alma mater." Dr. Sneed served during the past year as Chairman of the National Committee of the School of Theology Fund Campaign. He did an outstanding job in this position. Both men represented the finest type of Boston University alumni.

"Swede" Nelson Award

A special presentation of the "Swede" Nelson trophy was made in surprise ceremonies at the Banquet to Evie Dorr, student at the School of Education, in recognition of his courageous comeback as an outstanding college athlete. Dr. John M. Harmon, Director of University Athletics, received the "Swede" Nelson trophy in behalf of Boston University which he will retain for a year. Jim Britt, radio sportscaster, presided at this feature on the evening's ceremonies.

Alumni Day Ends

Following the Alumni Banquet and the brief speaking program, alumni adjourned to Hayden Memorial Hall for dancing. C.B.A. alumni gathered at the Hotel Somerset for the dance sponsored by the C.B.A. Alumni Association. It was undoubtedly a great disappointment to all members of the Alumni Day committee who worked so hard during the year to make this Alumni Day a great success to have their program so damped by an unfortunate siege of New England weather; however, for the 5,000 alumni who returned on June 5, there were few who could count the day as a disappointment. Certainly Alumni Day proved one thing — any Boston University reunion is measured not by the details of an elaborate program but by the good fellowship engendered by all Boston University alumni when they get together.

Baccalaureate and Commencement

A rather abashed sun appeared on Sunday, June 6, to greet the graduates who poured into the Boston Arena for their Baccalaureate Service. Dr. Daniel L. Marsh delivered the Baccalaureate address to the large graduating class. The full text of his address appears elsewhere in this issue. On Monday, June 8, 2,177 degrees were awarded. Included in the honors given 98 students were eight magna cum laude, representing six colleges and schools in the University.

Commencement weekend was climaxed with the annual Boston University Night at "Pops" when B.U. alumni thronged Symphony Hall to hear the Boston Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Arthur Fiedler.

HOWARD W. SCHAFFER, CLA, President of his class upon graduation, is now serving as Manager of the Organ Department of Grinnell Brothers Music Company in Detroit. He has two sons, John, living in Vestal, New York, and Robert, in Detroit, and four grandchildren. He lives at 13275 Strathmoor Street, Detroit.

1913

MILDRED BATES SMITH (Mrs. Harold R.), CLA, lecturer, author, and social service leader, spoke recently to the members of the Serovist Club on the topic "The Responsibility of Being an American Today." Mrs. Smith is a native of Whitman.

1916

LUCY M. BUKER, CLA, a librarian, is now in the Fine Arts Division of the Cleveland Public Library. She resides at 1754 Page Avenue, East Cleveland.

1917

MISS ESTHER NAZARIAN, CLA, has served as assistant minister of St. Paul's Methodist Church of Lynn for the past twenty-five years. The calendar of that church for February 29 was dedicated to an appreciation of her services to the church, adding that "she has been and is a splendid inspiration and example, for Christian living" to hundreds of young men and women who have enjoyed her leadership as minister of music.

1922

MARIE ELLIS BEVERIDGE, CLA, is now teaching in Detroit, Michigan, where her address is 14941 Ardmore Street. Besides attending various conventions, including that of the National Association of Deans of Women in Chicago recently, her hobbies include carving plastics, for which she has a regular shop in her basement.

Class Report

Your Reunion Committee has held several meetings this winter, and we were rewarded by a very good turnout at 27 Garrison Street at 12 o'clock on June 5 to start our Twenty-Fifth Reunion.

It has been a wonderful committee — Edna Cahill, Mary Twomey, Marguerite Greer Anderson, Miriam Scott Stickney, Esther Dworet Fanger, Kathleen Galvin, Mildred Walker Shepard, Dorothy Herrick, Kathryn Gagan Sullivan, Sybil Smith Berk, and Alice Monahan Murray.

Questionnaires are already turning up interesting information. GLADYS EVELLE WOLLEY has kept up with her music, doing mostly church work and dabbling in lecture work.

MURIEL GUILD McCAY's daughter has already been accepted for PAL in the fall, as has the daughter of ELOISE ODEN WELLINGTON. There'll have to be a "Daughters' Club" there soon.

MAE HELLER ROTHBLATT's son will get his degree from Harvard this June. Her daughter graduates from Brookline High and her husband celebrates his 50th reunion at Tufts the same month.

ANNE JENKINS ADAMS' son graduates from the University of Cincinnati this spring. Her daughter is married, and Anne expects to be a grandmother soon. Her own 25th wedding anniversary is coming up this month.

HARRIET KATZ STROUSS' son graduated from Harvard in 1946. Her daughter graduates from Wellesley this June, and Harriet also celebrates her 25th wedding anniversary in June.

GERTRUDE LEVIN ALPERT's son has passed the Massachusetts bar.

GERTRUDE MILLER is Public Relations Secretary for the Connecticut Music Educators Association.

MARGARET OLDHAM HUMPHREY is Secretary of the Boston University Alumni Club of New Haven and Dean of the Whitney Secretarial School.

Rose Smith Connell hopes to show her son and daughter "real Yankee country" this June and is making a special effort to be on hand.

Sibyl Smith Berk's son is in pre-med school and her daughter is a freshman at Jackson.

ESTHER DWORET FANGER's daughter is a sophomore at Smith.

RUTH STICKNEY HOWARTH is Director of the Child Care Center in Redwood City, California.

ENITH E. MULLEN, Class Agent

Plans for establishing a Grace Church Counseling Center with social workers, doctors, and psychiatrists on the board of directors were outlined by the Reverend Clarence H. Horner of Providence. In announcing his plans, Dr. Horner said that the Reverend CHARLES FREDERICK BROOKS, CLA, rector of All Saints Church, Denver, Colorado, and "one of the five presbyters in the Church who holds his M.A. from a school of social work" had accepted the directorship of the center. Mr. Brooks is a member of the Colorado Industries for the Blind, Chairman of the Department of Christian Social Relations for the Diocese of Denver, and a member of the American Association of Social Workers. He served as Assistant Minister in several parishes and as Vicar of All Saints Cathedral in Albany before taking the Denver rectorship in 1952.

MISs M. GERTRUDE GOULD, CLA, Grad, 29, became Head of the Commercial Department of East Boston High School in January. She taught at Jamaica Plain High School for many years before going to East Boston.

On the occasion of his twenty-fifth year with the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company, WHEELER H. KING, CLA, was recently honored by the president of that company, who presented him with a handsome desk clock on behalf of the company. Mr. Wheeler is general agent for New England Mutual in New York.

Bishop NEWELL S. BOOTH, CLA, T'27, T'30, of the Methodist Church, stationed at Elisabetsville, Belgian Congo, Central Africa, was preacher at the morning service recently at St. Paul's Methodist Church, Lowell. Bishop Booth's Episcopal supervision covers Belgian Congo, Mozambique (Portuguese East Africa), Angola (Portuguese West Africa), Southern Rhodesia and the Transvaal.

He was elected to the Episcopacy in 1944, two days before his 40th birthday, thereby becoming the youngest bishop of the Methodist Church. He had to his credit many years of missionary service in Africa prior to his election to the Episcopacy.

The REVEREND JOHN BRETT FORT, RE, Rector of All Saints Church, Springfield, has accepted a call from St. John's Episcopal Church in Bangor, Maine. He will assume his duties on September 15. Mr. Fort, who is Diocesan Director of Youth for the Western Massachusetts Diocese, will continue this summer as Director of Bucksteep Manor in the Berkshires, which he organized in 1937 for youth conferences.

Dr. J. RICHARD SNEED, Grad, T'35, pastor of the Court Street Methodist Church of Rockford, Illinois, preached a series of Lenten sermons over a national network of the Mutual Broadcasting Company during February and March.

1925

Miss DALE ANGELE, PAL, is Office Manager of the Cleveland, Ohio, Advertising Office of the Curtis Publishing Company. She lives at 3688 West 153rd Street, Cleveland.

MIRIAM MOYER BARNES, CPE, is living at 2568 Edgerton Road, University Heights, Cleveland, where she is "staying home raising two sons."

GRACE TITUS WOODRUFF, Grad, and her husband, the Reverend JAMES H. WOODRUFF, T'25, T'26, have three sons. The oldest, James Robert, is a freshman at Chapman College, Los Angeles; Wesley Daniel graduates from Washington High School this month; while David Titus is a student at the Presidio High School in San Francisco. Mr. Woodruff is Associate Minister of the First Congregational Church of San Francisco.

Miss Elizabeth Etz, RE, Ed 37, is currently teaching in Northville, Michigan, where her address is 2005 Sheldon Road. Reverend Homer C. Gigns, RE, is currently serving as Superintendent of the Providence District of the New England Southern Methodist Conference.

1927

Herbert N. Faulkner, CBA, CBA'31, of Melrose has been elected President of the Federal Home Loan Bank of Boston. Mr. Faulkner became Vice-President of the bank in 1932, when the bank was organized, having previously been affiliated with the Workmen's Cooperative Bank. He is a past president of the American Savings and Loan Institute and a former president of the Financial Advertisers' Association of New England. In Melrose, where he resides, he is Chairman of the School Committee.

Miss Marion Walker, RE, is a member of the faculty of the High School of Commerce in Detroit, Michigan, where she teaches English. She resides at 14858 Greenview Boulevard, Detroit.

College of Liberal Arts
Class Report

The Class of 1928 should have a large attendance at its twentieth reunion if one may judge by the early and enthusiastic response to the class questionnaires.

We thought you might be interested in a few notes gleaned from recent letters:

Myra Perkins is living at 1016 16th Street, Washington, D. C., where she is a secretary at the Department of Agriculture.

Dorothy Roys Cardell is living with her husband and two sons, Jim, age 10, and Kent, age 8, at 392 Suffield Road, Birmingham, Michigan. Paul is a research electrical engineer for the Detroit Edison. Dot writes that her brother has bought Camp Kineowatha in Wilton, Maine, and thus adds another summer camp to the family. Father, L. D. Roys, owns the Kids-Worker Camps. If you are looking for a good camp for your children this summer, contact Dot.

Eleanor Gannon St. James has a son, W. Andrew, age 9. Her husband, William, is a teacher in Pittsfield, Massachusetts, and they live at 24 Waverly Street. Eleanor is an active member of the League of Women Voters and of the Pittsfield College Club.

Cornelius Dr. Bois, rector of the Church of the Good Shepherd at Elizabethtown, New York, is a member of the Kiwanis Club and the Adirondack Mountain Club.

Marian Kelly Larson keeps busy making a home for her husband and three children, Joseph, Carolyn, and Mary Louise, and engaging in countless civic activities. She is Past President of the Malden College Club, of the Glenwood P.T.A., and of the Congregational Church Mothers' Club, a member of the Board of the Malden Family Service Society, and Superintendent of the Church Kindergarten. Husband, Gustave, is a teacher of printing at Malden High School.

Dr. Clifton Leech has five children, Clifton Jr., Rosamond, Michael, John Sinclair, and Brenda Sewell. He lives at Rumstick Point, Barrington, Rhode Island, and maintains an office in Providence. Dr. Leech is a heart specialist and a member of the leading medical associations. He has written a large number of articles for medical journals.

Bessie Howland Grogett is an administrative assistant at M.I.T. She lives in Jamaica Plain with her three-year-old son, Francis, and three older step-children.

Thelma Eaton has taken up photography as a hobby, specializing in Kodachromes. Thelma still teaches in her home city of Wal- tham, and takes an active part in the College Club and the Teachers' Association.

Ruth Bain Morton has two children, Ralph, Jr., and Marilyn. Her home is at 29 Russell Street, Arlington.

Blanche Canham Kuhberg is a member of the faculty of the Thomas School of Rowayton, Connecticut. She lives with her husband, Fred, and two children, Joel and Betty Ann, in New Canaan, where they are building a new home.

Esther Glickman is a social work instructor at the University of Chicago School of Social Service Administration. Her home address is 5631 Kenwood Avenue, Chicago, Illinois.

Esther Sparrow Walp lives during the school year at 410 Fourth Street, Marietta, Ohio, where her husband, Russell, is Professor of Biology at Marietta College. In the summer with Esther Lee and Mary Spargo, they go to Sea Pines Camp at East Brewster, Massachusetts, where Esther is Associate Camp Director.

Reed Walker has returned to his duties as Chairman of the Department of Social Studies at the Plant Junior High School in West Hartford, after serving as air navigator in the Navy with the rank of lieutenant com-

Margaret Vaughan Webber says her time is taken up by her twin sons, David and Philip, her daughter, Judith, and son, Alfred, Jr., with Sunday School teaching, Brownies, and so forth, on the side. Husband, Al, is Research Supervisor at E. I. DuPont Company in Arlington, New Jersey. Their home address is 136 Alexander Avenue, Upper Montclair, New Jersey.

KENNETH GODING is a physics teacher at Attleboro High School. During his spare time he acts as research worker in the laboratory of metals and controls of the General Plate Branch, Attleboro, Massachusetts. He and his wife, the former Edith Feinberg, have two children, Charles, Jeffrey, and Lyman Stowell.

GLADYS WEBBER was civilian instructor of the U. S. Armed Forces Institute during the War and is now a history instructor at the Galesburg Division of the University of Illinois. She holds membership in the American Historical Association, and the Foreign Policy Association. Gladys reports that she can not attend the reunion as she has a "prior" engagement to give a final examination in Modern European History on that date. We are sorry, too, Gladys.

BOB WASH is Assistant Director of the Fats and Oils Branch of the Products and Marketing Administration of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. He lives with his wife, the former Corinne Dewey, and children, Don and Diana, at 1312 North Emerson Street, Arlington, Virginia. Bob says that household repairs is his hobby — one which all wives will appreciate.

ANDY HAAN is Principal of Charlemont, Massachusetts, High School. Andy was married to Margaret Dawson in 1942 and they have two children, Margaret Alice and Thomas Andrew.

ELEANOR DIMICK is teaching Latin and French at Roger Ludlowe High School in Fairfield, Connecticut, and directing the Y. Teens. She is also an active member of the Bridgeport College Club, A.A.U.W.

KENNETH CHESTER is Director of Research at the Oklahoma A. & M. College Experiment Station at Stillwater, Oklahoma. He has written three books and many technical and popular science articles. With his wife, the former DOROTHY GODDARD, CLA'30, and daughter, Desire, he lives at 327 Admiral Road, Stillwater.

BERNHARDENA MORRISON STRATTON is Curator and Corresponding Secretary of the Ontario County Historical Society in Canandaigua, New York, where her husband, Ralph, is General Secretary of the Y.M.C.A. She has two step-sons and three grandchildren yet finds time for a number of interesting hobbies.

DR. ARMAND DE ROSA and his wife, the former INEZ Lo PRIESTE, PAL'32, have two daughters, Laura and Rita. Armand left the Dr. ELLSWORTH WAITE, his wife, the former ETHEL KIDD, PAL'33, and their three children, Joseph, Jr., Richard, and Patricia. With her husband, JOSEPH C. CROSBY, Ed'32, Ed'33, she lives at 80 Lake Shore Road, Brighton.

AGNES CASEY writes that her only claim to fame is the fact that she did not change her name when she was married on July 10, 1946, to William J. Casey, a Lynn business man. Before her marriage, Agnes was a teacher at Lawrence High School and at present her time is taken up with her baby son, William, Jr., at their home at 51 Hamilton Avenue, Lynn.

ESTHER POPE has been secretary to the Dean of Physical Education at Harvard since her graduation. Esther lives at 90 Humphrey Street, Swampscott, so she can indulge her hobby of sailing along the shore. Her vacations are spent in travel to far-off and mysterious places.

BOSSONIA
HERMAN ALLEN is living at 96 Rice Road, Wollaston, with his bride of a year, the former Lois Rider. Herman spent three years with the Army in the Southwestern Pacific and is now back with the Boston Safe Deposit and Trust Company. His hobby is music. He plays both piano and organ.

LEO CAROLINE is general manager of Barron's Department Store in West Newton. Leo resigned ZELDA STEELE, CBA,29, and lives at 71 Montvale Road, Newton Centre. Son, Peter, is eleven years old and Nancy is three. Her activities include Cub Scouts and Community Fund Drives.

Reverend Rev. H. Newton Clay, RE, pastor of the Cliftondale, Massachusetts, Methodist Church, presided at a recent round-table discussion at the Parish House of his church. His residence is at 37 Gratton Street, Arlington, with his 'partner', the former Gertrude Dauphinee, and son John Steven. We are glad John is near Boston so he can lend a hand to the Parish Committee.

Hyman Kaufman taught in Amesbury, Massachusetts, High School before joining the AAF when war began. After leaving the Army, Hyman entered Harvard Law School and expects to receive his law degree in September. He is living with his wife, the former Zelda Mensh, and sons, David and Roger, at 7 Jarvis Court, Cambridge. His latest invention is the "Amber Wizard", an educational gadget for teaching children arithmetic. His political interest is in boosting Justice Douglas for President. Life has never been dull for Hyman.

FRANCES D. HARPER, Glass Secretary

WINHROP A. CLARKE, CBA, Manager of the Boston office of the Acacia Mutual Life Insurance Company since 1936, has been appointed to the field advisory committee of that company for 1948. Mr. Clarke is married, has three children, and lives at 59 Woodward Road, Arlington.

Reverend H. Newton Clay, RE, pastor of the Cliftondale, Massachusetts, Methodist Church, presided at a recent round-table discussion at the Parish House of his church under the sponsorship of the Saugus Council of Churches.

Miss Katherine W. Ross, Ed, Grad '31, has been Head of the Commercial Department at Girls' High School, Boston, since January. A community drive is being conducted in Roslindale to collect a $10,000 scholarship fund to benefit graduates of Roslindale High School as a testimonial to AMBROSE BENSON WARREN, Grad, who retired as headmaster of that school last year. Roslindale High is the only Boston high school that has no scholarship fund.

Dr. MILTON J. COLE, Grad, a veteran of World War II, has opened an office for the practice of internal medicine and diseases of the heart at 75 Pratt Street, Hartford. Dr. Cole is also a graduate of St. Bartholomew's Medical School, London, England. He completed his internship at St. Francis Hospital, Hartford, and recently finished a two-year residency in internal medicine at Goldwater Memorial Hospital, New York City. He is married to the former Mimi Janes of London, England.

School of Medicine Notes

The following letter from Dr. Clark was forwarded to BOSTONIA by Dr. Mary R. Lakanem, and should be of interest to his classmates.

Richmond
Tasmania
April 3, 1948

The December Bostonia has just arrived. It seems that the class of ’95 only adds up to eight! and as I understand that there is a reunion in prospect in 1948 and I can’t make it, the most I can do is to let you know how sorry I am about it and report progress. The ‘nation’ I have founded now numbers twenty-three counting in-laws. Our five soldiers and sailors suffered only minor casualties and collected three decorations and are now home except two. One is at Oxford and one still in the Navy, where he has been since he was thirteen.

I am thankful to say that I am still in practice and have no desire to give up yet. As you know, we have a socialist government whose aim is to nationalize the profession, and I feel I must do my bit in helping to prevent this. The Reds offered me a very good job if I would give up — more money and better conditions, etc. But I am glad to say I am still captain of my own soul.

We have just had a poll of the district and to my great surprise and delight the scheme was thrown down by more than a 2 to 1 majority, which I regard as a personal victory, since the district is a strong Red one and they make a determined effort — many meetings and plenty of propaganda — while I made no effort at all — just said I was opposed to it in principle. A huge satisfaction to an old man forty years here.

At the moment I feel very low — Dr. Gould is dead. (EBEN COLMAN GOULD, ’90) He came down to Melbourne and took over my old job at Prince Henry Hospital. After finishing his term there he joined up with the Phosphate Commission at Ocean Island which you will find just on the Equator due north of New Zealand. Here he was a sort of king over hundreds of Chinese and Japs and Island boys for many years and each second year he would come away to cool off, and always came down to us for part of the time tho’ he made trips to Japan, China, England, etc. A queer old soul, never married — sound doctor and good fellow — and marvelous in handling natives who liked him a lot.

It seems he just couldn’t help buying things he liked the look of wherever he went and especially he liked to buy clothes and curios. We used always to joke with him when he arrived with all his trunks and I can just see him grinning when he left all this plunder to me. I also love old things, which is lucky because we can’t get any new ones owing to the shortage of shipping.

Dr. Gould came down to Melbourne and was taken sick. Luckily we have a daughter there and she looked after him until he was taken home. Plenty of servants and nurses etc. and his last days were very pleasant. Then all the trunks came. You never saw such loot — the accumulation of years — suits, overcoats, shoes, sporty coats, pajamas, ties, socks, hats — gorgeous wrappers etc. The place looked like a pawn shop. We have been handing things over to people he knew and liked. His curios and weapons, costumes (native), etc., he left to the grandchildren. We had the Museum people come and take what was of value to them, leaving plenty for our savings.

He did a splendid work for the Commission. They thought very highly of him. I have some letters from native boys with whom he corresponded and after he left the island, which was about a year before the war. The Japs destroyed everything, and most of his friends were never heard of again. This was a terrific shock from which he didn’t full recover.

A great loss to us all. We regarded him as one of the family. The children thought he was their real uncle. As for me, I have lost the only one I could really talk with — the last real link with home except my nice Yankee daughter-in-law.

It has been a long spell of homesickness. Dr. WILLIAM G. C. CLARK

1927

DR. NORMAN E. COBB, who has been practicing for many years in Washington County, Maine, has been elected manager of the Calais, Maine, Community Hospital.

1930
Recently married to Miss Bernice Doherty of Boston, Dr. Herbert K. Bloom is now practicing medicine at 834 Broadway, Everett. Dr. Bloom spent four years in military service during the war.

1936
Governor Bradford appointed Dr. Harry L. Benson, of Winchester, as Medical Examiner of the Fourth Middlesex District. He will succeed Dr. Richard W. Sheehy whose term has expired.

1938
Dr. A. A. DeNuccio, was recently certified as a Fellow of the American Board of Urological Surgeons following the successful completion of oral, written, and clinical examinations held in Chicago by the American Board of Urology. Dr. DeNuccio served his internship at the Waltham Hospital, and was house officer at the Hule Hospital, Haverhill, for a year. He was associated with Boston City Hospital for 18 months and with Massachusetts Memorial Hospital for two years. Dr. DeNuccio, Head of the Department of Urology at the McCarthy Clinic, is on the associate staff of the Lawrence General Hospital and on the staffs of the Burke Memorial and McGowan Memorial Hospitals.

Dr. Morris Taylor announces the opening of medical offices at 311 North Street, Pittsfield, Massachusetts.

Dr. Walter E. Batchelder is Director of the Student Health Service at the University of New Hampshire.

1943
Dr. Frances J. Bonner, M.D., recently addressed the College Club of New Bedford on the subject, About Ourselves. Following her graduation, Dr. Bonner had three years of training in neurology at the Boston City Hospital and three months at the Children’s Hospital. She is now at Massachusetts General. For two years, Dr. Bonner has been the recipient of the Helen Putnam Fellowship for research in genetics and mental health.

1944
Dr. Franklin A. Munsey, who is now living at 505 Haskel Avenue, Rockford, Illinois, has gathered the following news about members of the Class of 1944:

About a month ago, Nick Rizzo was here, but unfortunately we had only a short time to talk. Nevertheless, I did observe that four years out of school has done him no harm. He is continuing his work in Pediatric Psychiatry at Massachusetts General and will soon be ready to strike out on his own. He reports that Edith and their two children are coming along as well as a doctor’s family does. It was great to see someone from Boston.

I have received a swell letter from Art Parker, who has a medical residency at Kings County Hospital, New York, and she is to continue with a fellowship at the Goldwater Memorial Hospital, New York City. He and his wife are living at 414 Lindon Boulevard, Brooklyn.

In addition, Art says that Herbie Chinn recently flew in from Hawaii where he is a captain in the Army. Herb is planning to return to Kings County for more work in G. U. Surgery.

Art asks for news of Joe Connor. From the N.E.I.M., we learned that Charley Bonzey is living at 6 Surrey Lane, Natick, Massachusetts. — How about some news from you, Joe and Charley?

Dr. Walter G. Leonard, Jr., was a surgical intern at Massachusetts Memorial Hospital for fifteen months, and is now working in Obstetrics and Gynecology.

Lieutenant David L. Smith, U.S.A.M.C., of Meriden, Connecticut, has sailed for Germany, where he will remain for one year, specializing in pediatrics. He interned in pediatrics at Boston City Hospital, and after one month’s training at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, he took a three month course in pediatrics at Walter Reed Hospital, Washington, D.C. Lieutenant Smith is married to the former Bernice Lynch, also of Meriden, and they have a year-old son. Mrs. Smith and young David accompanied him to Germany.

Opportunities for Medical School Graduates
There is an excellent opportunity immediately available for a physician to take over a large, established practice in a town of 15,000 in Massachusetts. Income, $7,000 to $10,000 to start. For details, write Alumni Office.

Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat Specialist
Dr. Vincent J. Irwin, Jr., of Springfield, Massachusetts, died on February 26, 1948. His practice is for sale. This practice was started by Dr. V. J. Irwin, Sr.; on his retirement about 25 years ago, it was taken over by his son, Dr. V. J. Irwin, Jr. The office is fully equipped, well laid out, with a reasonable rent, at a centrally located spot in an industrial center with a drawing area of 750,000 about midway between Boston and New York. Full case histories are available, and the right man can take over a lucrative practice from the start. Contact Justin F. Hoar, Attorney, 196 Worthington Street, Springfield, Massachusetts.
