2006-02-02

Cousins and strangers: America, Britain and Europe in a new century

Patten, Chris

Boston University Institute for Human Sciences

http://hdl.handle.net/2144/20090

Boston University
Christopher Patten is Chancellor of the University of Oxford, a post he was elected to in 2003. Previously, he served as Chancellor of Newcastle University. He was Governor of Hong Kong from April 1992 until the handover to China on July 1, 1997. He later became Chairman of the Independent Commission on Policing for Northern Ireland, set up under the Good Friday Peace Agreement, and from September 1999 until November 2004, he served as European Commissioner for External Relations. On leaving office in Brussels he was made a life peer and took his seat in the House of Lords in January 2005. He is an Honorary Fellow of the Royal College of Physicians, Edinburgh, and Honorary Fellow of Balliol College, Oxford. In 1998, he wrote East and West a book on Asia and its relations with the rest of the world. He has recently completed Cousins and Strangers: America, Britain and Europe in a New Century (2006).