2004-03-09

Panel discussion: Putin's second term: prospects for Russia and America

Shevtsova, Lilia

Boston University Institute for Human Sciences

http://hdl.handle.net/2144/20130

Boston University
LILIA SHEVTSOVA is Senior Associate at the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace where she co-chairs the Russian Domestic Politics and Political Institutions Project. Before joining the Endowment, she was deputy director of the Moscow Institute of International Economic and Political Studies of the Russian Academy of Sciences and director of the Center of Political Studies in Moscow. She has been a visiting professor at the University of California at Berkeley and at Cornell University, and a fellow at the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars. She is currently a political observer for Russian television, Moscow News, and Nezavisimaya Gazeta and is the author of six books, including Yeltsin's Russia: Myths and Reality (Carnegie Endowment, 1999).

ANGELA STENT is National Intelligence Officer for Russia and Eurasia at the National Intelligence Council. She is on leave from Georgetown University, where she is Director of the Center for Eurasian, Russian and East European Studies in the School of Foreign Service and Professor of Government. From 1999 to 2001, she served in the Office of Policy Planning at the U.S. Department of State. An expert on Russian and Soviet politics and foreign policy, and on German foreign policy, she has published widely on: Soviet relations with Europe and the United States; Russian foreign policy; West and East German foreign policy; and East-West trade and technology transfer. Her latest book is Russia and Germany Reborn: Unification, The Soviet Collapse and The New Europe (Princeton University Press).

ARNOLD HORELICK is currently an adjunct staff member of the RAND Corporation where he was a corporate fellow for many years until his retirement in 1997, when he became Vice President for Russian and Eurasian Affairs at the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace (1997-2000). From 1983 to 1997, he was also Professor of Political Science at UCLA. In 1983, he became the first director of the Rand/UCLA Center for Soviet Studies, serving in that position until July 1989. He was also the founding director in 1994 of the Aspen Strategy Group's US-Russia Dialogue. From 1977 to 1981 he served in Washington, DC, as National Intelligence Officer for the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe for the US intelligence community. He is co-author of Strategic Power and Soviet Foreign Policy, US-Soviet Relations: The Next Phase, and US-Russian Relations at the Turn of the Century.