2005-04-06

From elsewhere: poetry and national borders

Sommer, Piotr

Boston University Institute for Human Sciences

http://hdl.handle.net/2144/20150

Boston University
The Institute for Human Sciences at Boston University serves as a forum for new, non-partisan debate, research, and education in the matters of international (especially transatlantic) relations, introducing European insights and experiences to American debates on major social and political issues, and bringing American perspectives to European discussions. It is affiliated with the Vienna based Institut für die Wissenschaften vom Menschen (IWM), an independent, interdisciplinary center for advanced study in the humanities and social sciences.

Institute for Human Sciences
Boston University
745 Commonwealth Avenue
Boston, MA 02215
www.bu.edu/ihs

Since its founding over 30 years ago by Askold Melnyczuk (winner of PEN’s lifetime achievement award for magazine editing in 2001), AGNI has offered readers a sophisticated and cosmopolitan vision of our literary culture. Bringing together unique homegrown as well as translated fiction, poetry, and essays, the journal is known for presenting the best emerging writers alongside established voices. Edited since 2002 by critic and essayist Sven Birkerts, AGNI publishes two issues a year, maintains an active website (http://agni.bu.edu), and sponsors a variety of readings and public events.