1968

Mount Vernon Student Association

http://hdl.handle.net/2144/537

Boston University
THE CUMULATION OF HIGHER EDUCATION

I

So that a cumulative experience may be made this four-year institution seeks in conjunction with the public high schools of the city to provide a dual curriculum of liberal and technical education through the cooperation of the public school authorities and the cooperation of the University, to the end that the high school student may be made to understand the value of college education as a means of progressing in life.

Today there is a new situation in higher education which deserves notice in the light of this transformation. The student is not only a new type of college material but a new type of college student. He must be prepared for the examinations and the challenges that lie before him. It is not enough to achieve an academic degree; he must also achieve a moral and intellectual one.

General College, the proud boast of the University, is the place where the student finds his way. Here he meets with men and women who are his equals in the problems of life. Here he learns to think for himself.
Here he is taught to appreciate the beauty of life and the dignity of man.

The College is the university of the student. It is a place where he may find the path that leads to success in life. It is a place where he may find the means to achieve his goals.

A letter to the College from the President of the Board of Directors of the College:

We are a group of dedicated educators who are committed to the welfare of the students in our institution.

Comment

an occasional collection of observations on topics of current interest.