FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Lois O'Grady, M.D., who received the B.S. degree from Simmons College in 1958, was presented a Distinguished Alumnus Award from the Boston University School of Medicine Alumni Association at the organization's 106th Annual Meeting and Banquet, recently held at the Colonnade Hotel in Boston.

O'Grady, who was awarded the M.D. degree from the School of Medicine in 1962, was cited by the Alumni Association for her contributions to medicine and medical education.

She is vice chairman of the Department of Medicine at the School of Medicine at the University of California Davis Medical Center, Sacramento, and is a professor of medicine at the School of Medicine at the University of California, Davis, where she previously served as associate dean for student affairs and admissions.

O'Grady has received several teaching awards, including the 1973 Senior Class Award for Best Clinical Professor at the University of California, Davis, and the 1975 Kaiser Foundation Award for Excellence in Teaching Clinical Sciences.

A native of Medford, Mass., O'Grady lives in Sacramento, Calif.

Boston University School of Medicine is the site of several major interdisciplinary research centers, including the Hubert H. Humphrey Cancer Research Center and the Cardiovascular Institute of Boston University. The School is an innovator in medical education, offering several alternative curricula leading to the M.D. degree.
