D. D. WHEDON, D.D., Editor.

New York, Nov 14, 1887.

Dear Nephew

I learned the other day that you do not now write book notices for the Advocate.

If you are not doing so for any body I would like to engage you for the Secretary for which I will afford you the books

& two dollars per page. If

And you I will send you something for the January No. Please in that case perform me where the book sh. be addressed.

I sold my orange crop to C & King ^{at} $2 per box on tree.
At present I am told that the promise for the season is very fair both for fruit & market. But I am sorry that none of us go down there.

You know the Greek says being asked what was good & fat a horse replied "The eye of his master." Same is good for many crops.

Truly
O. D. Whedon
